$10,000 Will Be Raised for 19th Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival

SANTA CLAUS CERTAIN TO MAKE ANNUAL VISIT TO CITY'S POOR CHILDREN

GIFT DISTRIBUTION WILL BE IN NEW WAY IF COURSE IS FOUND TO BE NECESSARY

Liberality Without Extravagance to Be Keynote of Victory Year Fete—Dinners for Poor Families as Usual.

Ten thousand dollars will be the goal this year, as it was last, of the Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival Fund. The Executive Committee of the Festival Association, at its first meeting of the season last Monday, found the situation regarding its work to be very similar to that of a year ago. Reports showed that in some directions still greater savings than were effected then would be possible, but that all such savings would be offset by further increases in prices. Therefore, it was decided that at least the sum called for last year would be needed. Also, since this is victory year in the great war, there was a sentiment in favor of providing a liberal Christmas for the deserving poor of the city, with due care, however, to avoid extravagance of waste in any direction.

One of the principal savings this year will be another reduction in the number of dinners in baskets which will be required to supply worthy poor families, because of the great increase in the number of persons employed.

Last year 1200 baskets were distributed as against 1900 the year before. It is believed the number of applications which investigators will pass favorably upon this year will be fewer than 1000. But the offset—or rather more than offset—comes immediately in the fact that the cost per basket will be a great deal more than last year. Chairman Louis Nolte, of the Food Purchasing Committee, estimates the additional cost at $1 per basket, on the basis of prices for supplies which have been submitted to him.

To fill 1000 baskets, therefore, would cost about $1000 more than last year, while a reduction of 200 in the number of baskets would save only $540, the cost per basket last year having been $2.70.

Dr. George B. Mangold, chairman of the Basket List Committee, will continue to receive applications for baskets at 2221 Locust street, until about 10 days before Christmas, and the number to be distributed will not be definitely known until a few days later, when all investigations shall have been completed.

The Executive Committee decided to again omit the dinner formerly provided by the Festival Association for homeless men, since the homeless man has virtually disappeared because of the abundance of work created by the war. The last such dinner was given in 1916 at a cost of $1019.

Prices of Gifts Higher.

Robert D. Corlett, chairman of the Gift Purchasing and Distribution Committee, reported having to pay advanced prices for toys and children's gifts of all kinds, although he took the precaution to make nearly all of his purchases as long ago as last May. Since then there have been further advances, averaging something like 66 per cent in the kinds of goods that he bought. He paid for his purchases a total of $3027.10, whereas at present wholesale prices they would cost $2052 more, or a total of more than $5000. Thus the children are to be the gainers by about $2000 worth of presents, for the gift chairman is not authorized to spend greatly more than the amount he did, and if he had done his buying later he would have got much less for the money. Which helps to prove again that early Christmas shopping pays. Other gift buyers for the Christmas Festival have had similar experiences in previous years.

The Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival Association lost two members by death in the last year. They were James A. Reardon, president of the Reardon Manufacturing Co., who for years was chairman of the Gift Purchasing Committee, and Stephen A. Martin, resident manager of the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Co., and former newspaper man, who long served as chairman of the Tree Committee. Mr. Reardon's duties were assigned to Chairman Corlett of the Gift Distributing Committee, and those of Mr. Martin to Chairman Cunliff of the Entertainment Committee, who also retain their former chairmanships. Dr. W. U. Kennedy, who served last year as chairman on the Doctors' and Nurses' Committee, is in the military service. His successor was not chosen.

Members of the Executive Commitee with chairmanships who have not already been mentioned are: Edward Devoy, executive; C. J. Kehoe, transportation; Mrs. A. H. Sippy, basket packing; H. J. Bube, hall; Miss Sara Elizabeth Edwards, lame children; J. R. Cooke, finance; Oscar Stifel, door. The remaining members, who serve on the various committees, are Oscar Leonard, C. M. Hubbard, Julius Glaser, Frank Wyman, and Samuel J. Russack. The Post-Dispatch is represented on the Executive Committee by George S. Johns.

Entertainment Plans.

Arrangements are well under way for the big annual entertainment at the Coliseum on Christmas day, which it was estimated last year was attended by 12,000 children. The estimate was that of policemen and firemen who had been on duty at the entertainments for several successive years. If the influenza situation permits the entertainment to be given this year, it will again begin at 10:30 a. m., with the doors open at 9 o'clock, and will be concluded in time for the children to be home for their Christmas dinners. Mere sightseers will be rigidly excluded, in order to make room for every child possible. In the hope that the affair can take place the Coliseum has been rented for the occasion. If, however, the health authorities should not by that time permit gatherings, the gifts will be distributed otherwise and the children will miss only the Coliseum entertainment.

The gifts this year number almost 40,000, as against 32,000 last year, and there is an unusually large assortment of them. If distribution can be made at the Coliseum, they will be passed out to the children as they enter. This has been found to be a more satisfactory plan than reserving the gifts until the close of the entertainment, for the children never appeared to be able to fully enjoy the show provided for them while they were still in ignorance as to what their gifts were going to be.

The distribution of Christmas Festival contribution lists will begin tomorrow or Tuesday. As many of the larger donations as it is possible to obtain will be needed, but because of the many demands there have been for money the Festival Committee will make an even stronger appeal than last year for small gifts—for quarters, dimes and even nickels. This will also be in line with the end toward which the committee long has been working, that of making this great annual hospitality so widespread a popular affair that the fund for it will be made up of nothing but small donations.

Over 20,000 Contribution Lists.

Entirely new lists of offices and business places have been made up from latest telephone and business directories and it will be the aim to place a contribution list in every place of business, large or small, in the city. Between 20,000 and 25,000 lists will be sent out.

The distribution of the lists will be in two ways. Young women workers will place them in the downtown district, and some of the distributors will go well out along the principal thoroughfares, west, north and south.

It will not be possible to employ this method in more than a limited area, however, and elsewhere the lists will be mailed.

Some one person in each place that a list goes will be asked to take charge of it and of contributions and, when the list is closed, to send the money subscribed, with the list, to the office of the Post-Dispatch. Every individual contribution, large or small, will be acknowledged in the Post-Dispatch, and the name of the contributor published.

Applications for Festival Baskets Must Be in by Evening of Dec. 16

APPLICATIONS for Christmas dinner baskets must be in the hands of the Basket List Committee not later than 6 o'clock on the evening of Monday, Dec. 16. This date was fixed by the Basket List Committee in view of the work the applications require at the hands of those who endeavor to see that all deserving applicants receive the festival hospitality.

Applications should be sent in writing to Dr. George B. Mangold, chairman of the Basket List Committee, at 2221 Locust street.

"KOSHER" FOOD FOR JEWISH FAMILIES WHO GET BASKETS

The Jewish families who receive Christmas dinners from the Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival Association this year will again have "kosher" articles of food in their baskets, in accordance with arrangements made with the Jewish Educational and Charitable Association. The chickens in these baskets will be purchased from a Jewish butcher and prepared in accordance with Jewish dietary laws, under the personal supervision of Oscar Leonard, superintendent of the Jewish charities.

The baskets will be delivered to the homes of needy Jewish families by the Jewish charities, through whom application must be made.

CHRISTMAS CAROLS FOR FUNDS FOR CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY

Bands of Singers to Stop Before Each Lighted Candle on Christmas Eve—Report on Work Done.

Miss Van Sickler, general secretary of the Children's Aid Society, gave a report to the board of directors Friday, showing that the work of the society has almost doubled. During Uovember 212 children were under care, 70 children boarding in private families, where from $12 to $14 a month is paid for each child; 30 children in free homes, where clothing is supplied but no board paid, and 112 children under the supervision of the field workers of the society, were given aid and protection.

The additional funds needed to carry on the work are to be raised by the Christmas carol singers. Bands of strolling carolers will sing before each lighted candle Christmas eve. In each band there will be a "script bearer," costumed in flowing scarlet cape and hat, who will carry the collection box.

In some instances whole groups will be costumed and carry picturesque torches and lanterns. Children of America Loyalty Leagues, under the direction of Mrs. Charles D. Ashcroft, have organized 12 bands of carolers, who will sing in costumes at the hotels and Union Station.

The caroling will be opened on Christmas eve, when a very picturesque band of carolers from the Bethlehem Congregational Church will sing before Mayor Kiel's residence on Missouri avenue at 7 o'clock.

NO TURKEY FOR THOSE WHO KEEP WATCH ON THE RHINE

But Soldiers Abroad Will Have Best Christmas Dinner Quartermasters Can Provide.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The American army in France will not have the usual turkey, cranberry and mince pie menu for Christmas dinner. The War Department announced today that owing to the difficulties of distribution it had been decided not too forward turkeys and Christmas dinner accessories. To the quartermasters of the Expeditionary Forces will be left the task of providing such a holiday repast as can be made up from regular commissary supplies.

Troops at home will get turkey.

WHAT POST-DISPATCH CHRISTMAS FETE IS

Who Managers Are and How Fund Raised for Annual Big Hospitality Is Spent.

THE Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival Association, which was organized by the Pst-Dispatch 18 years ago, is managed by an Executive Committee of about 20 representative citizens of St. Louis. Members of this committee are appointed by the chairman to head the various committees which carry on the diffrent departments of the association's work, and these chairmen in turn choose their associates.

The spirit of the association's work is hospitality, rather than charity. The purpose is to have as large a number of persons as possible be the hosts for one day of the poor and needy of the city, the association offering itself as a medium through which this may be accomplished in an organized and systematic way that insures every deserving persons being reached and is a guarantee against duplication of giving and against needless giving.

Work of Committee.

The chairman of the committee which prepares the list of the hundreds of families to whom a Christmas dinner in baskets is supplied is an experienced social service worker and three of his assistants are the heads of leading benevolent organizations.

The money expended goes for the exact purpose for which it is contributed, and the hospitality reaches those whom it should reach, instead of being scattered haphazard among the unworthy, as well as the worthy.

Conservation is further carried out in the purchase of all articles distributed by the association. Chairmen of the committees which purchase the provisions and the gifts are men experienced in buying in large quantities the kind of supplies which they purchase for the association, and they have the co-operation of wholesale dealers or manufacturers of those supplies.

Tickets of admission to the Coliseum, where a great Christmas tree is erected and an elaborate entertainment given especially for the children, are distributed with the same care to reach the deserving that the basket list is prepared. The chairmen of most of the committees have served for years in the same capacities, improving their methods from year to year.

How Festival Is Given.

Estimates for this year have not been completed by the various committee chairmen, but a good idea of what the association does to extend a day of hospitality each year to the city's poor may be obtained from the records of last year's work. Then dinners in baskets were distributed to 1200 worthy families on Christmas day and the two days immediately preceding. All of the baskets were delivered at the homes of the recipients, with as little ostentation as possible. The association has gradually worked away from the plan of having the baskets called for by the recipients at basket packing headquarters. To fill these baskets costs an average of $2.70 each. The cost at retail would have been much more, and the cost at wholesale will be considerably more this year.

At the Coliseum at 10:30 a. m., the association entertained thousands of poor children and a parent or caretaker with each. The total attendance, mostly of children, was estimated at 12,000. For all of these the association ararnged free street car transportation to and from the Coliseum. Each child, upon entering the hall, received gifts, according to age and sex, and then was sent to a seat in one of the balconies. When all were in the electric lights were turned on in a wonderfully decorated, giant Christmas tree which stood on the arena floor. Then there was an elaborate spectacle in the form of a Christmas play entitled "In the Palace of King Santa Claus." After this the children were sent home in time to have their Christmas dinner there.

Every cent which is collected for the Christmas Festival is devoted to that purpose. In addition to making an annual contribution of several hundred dollars to the Festival Fund, the Post-Dispatch pays all administration expenses of the Festival to the last detail.

40,000 Toys and Other Gifts Have Been Provided for Victory Christmas

Variety of Articles to Be Given Away Unusally Large and Special Effort Was Made to Obtain Them to Suit All Ages.

The poor children of St. Louis will be given a Victory Christmas this year. The Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival Association has provided for them the largest number of presents ever purchased by the association in a single year, and probably the larget variety. A special effort was made to obtain toys and other articles to suit all ages. The total of them is 39,840.

Since dolls are one of the staple Christmas articles, and they have been exceedingly scarce during the last two or three years, ti may be said at once that there will be plenty of them again this year for the little Christmas Festival guests. Santa Claus' chief buying agent in St. Louis for the less fortunate youngsters of the city had another bit of luck. He found one large lot of dolls which could be had at a comparatively low price by taking the lot. He accepted and acquired 5040 dolls. They are handsome "children," with American faces, but they came from far-off Japan, and they have every appearance of being as sunshiny and cherry-blossom dispositioned as might be expected, considering their origin.

Toques, or skating caps, are another staple which is in this year's list of gifts. Six thousand were purchased and both boys' and girls' kinds are included. Of course, Christmas won't be Christmas without a certain amount of noise, so there will be horns—9500 of them, which ought to be enough to let anyone know something is going on in the Coliseum. Another of the larger items is rubber balls, of which 6000 have been purchased.

5000 Books Purchased.

One of the important features of the gifts this year will be books, which always have been in favor with and frequently used by the festival committee, both because they please the children and for their educational value. This year's assortment is unusually large, and the total number of volumes to be distributed is 5000.

For the younger children there are 1000 picture books. The remaining 4000 volumes are for children from 8 to 14 years old and there are so many kinds of them that no boy or girl will have one chance in a hundred to guess in advance what he or she is going to get. Of the famous Henty series there are 500 volumes and in the lot are 45 different stories 1000 volumes of the equally noted Alger series include 68 different stories. Then there are 750 "Peter Rabbitt Books," 750 copies of "Little Small Red Hen," 500 copies of "Child's Garden of Verses," and 500 copies of "Queen Magies." In addition to the other gifts 8000 packages of candy have ben provided.

Within the next few days samples of all of this year's toys will be put on display at Christmas Festival headquarters, 310 North Twelfth street, on the ground floor of the Post-Dispatch building, where inspection of them is invited, not only by children, but also by grownups, that they may have a better idea of what they are being asked to contribute their money for when they encounter a Christmas Festival contribution list.

The economy of organized buying, and of buying sufficiently in advance to avoid having to pay advanced holiday prices is indicated by the prices at which this year's Christmas Festival gifts were purchased. The dolls cost 16 2-3 cents each, or about 2 cents more than those purchased last year. The horns were the same price, 3½ cents, while the toques were a cent more, at 17 cents. The rubber balls were 6½ cents each, and 300 pacifiers were 3¾ cents each. The picture books cost 6¼ cents, while all of the other books ranged from 17 cents to 19 cents per volume.

An illustration of how the prices for gift articles have advanced since last summer is the fact that dolls of the same grade as those purchased for 16 2-3 cents each are now 30 cents each at wholesale. The toques, bought at 17 cents, are now 33½ cents each, the 3½-cent horns are 6¼ cents, and the dealer has offered to buy back some of the story books for which 17 cents was paid at 25 cents each. None of them could be bought at less than 20 cents per volume, wholesale.

Liberal Christmas Dinners.

Although food prices are sharply higher than a year ago, the deserving families which receive dinners from the Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival Association this year probably will fare better than usual. There will be disposition to tuck in a little extra in the way of provisions rather than to do any stinting.

The amount of food which goes into each basket varies in accordance with the size of the family which is to receive it, but below is shown in menu form what the Christmas dinner provided for an average sized family will consist of:

Soup (can)
Chicken (one)
Potatoes (half peck) Rice (pound)
Onions (three)
Sugar Corn (can) Beans (can)
Bread (two loaves) Sugar (pound)
Coffee (pound)
Candy (pound)
Dried peaches (pound)
Apples (half dozen)
Candy (pound)

The amount, it will be seen, is more than enough for one meal, and the contents of a basket cometimes are conserved to last for two or thre days.

Post-Dispatch Christmas Fund Has No Collectors; How to Make Contribution

FOR the Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival there are no collectors of contributions.

As in former years, subscription lists will be distributed by young women, where that is practical, and elsewhere by mail. These lists are sent out with the request that they be so displayed that anyone wishing to do so may subscribe and give any sum, large or small. This request will be made by the young women wherever they distribute the lists, and these helpers will make further visits to see that the opportunity to contribute has not been mislaid of forgotten, but none of them will ask for or receive money.

When a list has served its purpose it may be returned to the Post-Dispatch by the person in whose charge it will be placed, or, if that be not entirely convenient, a telephone request will bring a representative of the Post-Dispatch anthorized to receive and receipt for the list and the money.

Except through contribution lists, donations can only be made by mail, or in cash at Christmas Festival Headquarters, 310 North Twelfth street, or at the office of the cashier of the Post-Dispatch.

Full acknowledgement will be made in the Post-Dispatch of every individual subscription, of whatever size, unless a request for omission is made.

BRITAIN DAY CEREMONIES

Celebration of yesterday as Britain Day, commemorating Great Britain's part in the war, was confined here to the display of Union Jacks by those who had them, influenza precautions preventing the mass meeting which was to have been held last evening at the Coliseum to jointly honor the empire and the signing of the armistice.

Many cities and military camps in the country observed the occasion with ceremonies.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

American and German Potash.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

An article on the first page of today's issue requires some correction to conform to facts and to be helpful to a much-needed new American industry. I refer to the article on potash. It is not true in two vital features; first, in regard to price, the article states that German potash was sold in the United States for $27 to $30 per ton.

As a matter of fact the 10-year average for potash content of German potash salts was $41 per ton. These salts carried from 12 to 40 per cent K2-o.

Second, the headline states that German potash will soon be again available. Now, as a matter of fact, it is more than possible that all of Germany's production will be needed at home and by the potash-hungry lands of England, France, Belgium and Italy. Besides, by the very nature of Germany's deposits, mines that are not constantly and very carefully worked soon become filled with water and the potash and common salt become mixed to a degree that renders both of no value. The harm done by this article is in the spreading of the idea that we have no potash that can be worked profitably and must depend on Germany. As a matter of fact potash (muriate) can in time be produced in quantities right here at home. There is a vast quantity in slate, feldspar, etc., requiring a considerable capital investment as well as skilled labor to operate. But it can be produced and in quantities at from 1½ to 2 cents per pound, and when produced is a much purer article than that coming from Germany. It is undoubtedly true that the Nebraska fields cannot operate at this cost—at least they have not done so. However, it is a new industry there and with the prices they have been getting they were more concerned in getting quantity than in cutting down cost. One reason why they are not finding a ready sale for the product is the fact that they make no effort to separate the potash from other salts in the brine. Another is the price; still another may be in the fact that propaganda has been carried on during the past two years to the effect that fertilizers could be used without potash. This is only partly true and is a mischievous lie in part. It may be that the ownership of potash mines in Germany by the packing interests have some influence on the situation also.

Prior to the war we used around 200,000 tons of K2-o annually, principally for fertilizers. The port of entry price averaged $41 per ton. The use was increasing every year. Our American packers were heavily interested in German mines. Since the war began our production has been: 1914, 3000 tons; 1915, 4000; 1916, 16,000; 1917, 32,000 (estimated); 1918, 60,000. The price has been from 16 to 30 cents per pound.

We need a domestic supply. Our farms need potash, as do manufacturers. It can be produced here, perhaps not quite as cheaply as in Germany, but we should encourage the industry.

"Frightfulness in Peace."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The question as to whom the surrendered German navy belongs is to be solved by sinking the entire fleet. The idiotic suggestion as proposed by the British Admiralty, should be forcibly opposed by this Government, whose people have denied themselves and sacrificed so much, to end the destruction of war, to find it followed by a destruction of peace. Their priceless value as carriers, and the cost of construction other than the commodity famine in that class of metal, would at least indicate that "swords into plowshares" could follow to the sea as well as land. It appears incredible that such a course will be followed. The highest bidder should be allowed to compete with the world for the ships, and the sum realized used jointly in Red Cross or for reconstructive purposes. Surely, some method of disposal can be reached without resorting to a silly wasteful plan of economic frightfulness.

MERCHANT MARINE.

A Sailor's Greeting.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I just finished reading several issues of my good old home-town paper, sent to me by my father, and as I cannot write to all of my friends personally, would be very much obliged if you can find space to say that my home town is represented by one of his boys over here—but not in France. I made the trip across in a transport and overland and had many thrilling adventures and I am now about 4000 miles from dear old St. Louis, but my thoughts are often of my home folks and friends. We have accomplished many things since leaving the states, the details of which I cannot tell, as the rules of the navy are very strict and we are giving the submarines hell over here and I am very proud of my two brothers who are in France somewhere now and hope that we will meet again in the dear old U. S. A.

Trusting this letter reaches you safely, I beg to remain, very truly yours,

SHOULD THE EX-KAISER BE TRIED?

If the allied nations which forced Germany to unconditional surrender get possession of ex-Emperor William how will they give him an impartial trial for the crimes charged against him? Under what legal process can he be brought to trial without violating every principle of justice and legal practice? Under what criminal law can he be tried and where is the tribunal to try him.

If Holland refuses to give the Hohenzollerns up to the allies they cannot use either force or threats without doing what they have unitedly and unqualifiedly condemned in Germany's conduct—treat international law and the obligation of political refuge as scraps of paper. It is inconceivable that the nations which have fought for civilization and for justice to all nations and peoples would violate the fundamental principles of justice and fair dealing in their conduct towards one of the smallest of the nations and toward a defeated enemy. No strong nation would yield to such a demand. England and America have offered refuge to political exiles, regardless of the crimes charged against them in connection with their political activities. Nearly every exiled ruler has found refuge in Great Britain. It is the boast of the nation.

If Holland should yield, the ex-Kaiser as a prisoner in the dock would be the biggest white elephant in history.

After every great war the outcry for blood revenge is loud and insistent. At the end of our civil war the demands for the punishment of Davis and Lee and other leaders of the rebellion were many and vociferous. It is to our everlasting credit, recognized by the world, that we refrained from inflicting any personal punishment upon the South's leaders, but let them live under the flag they fought.

The right of peoples to dispose of their own fallen rulers and leaders is recognized. But brutality or death inflicted upon the fallen has ever been regarded as a blot on the national record. It has usually been done in hot resentment of oppression or in the fury of red revolution. It has usually been excused as an act of defense, but has never been justified. England won no glory by the execution of Charles I, nor France in the guillotining of Louis and his Queen. England merely exiled and interned Napoleon, but gained no praise by it.

It was the practice of barbarism to imprison, torture or kill the fallen enemy leader, but it has never been the practice of civilization. It is abhorrent to civilization, not less abhorrent than the brutalities of war.

Without in any degree mitigating the offenses against civilization that are charged to William, they are moral and political offenses, not legal crimes. There is no specific international law under which he can be tried on criminal charges and no existing tribunal having jurisdiction in any case of this kind. The law to cover his offense would have to be formed and adopted and the tribunal for his trial would have to be created. William's conviction and punishment under such a law and in such a tribunal would be ex-post facto, which is obnoxious to every principle of justice and law.

The sinking of the Lusitania, which was the worst of the German Government's sea crimes, was designated by us as moral murder and a violation of international law yet we did not regard it as a crime to be punished under any form of law. We did not even declare war on account of it, but accepted Germany's excuses and promises of reparation and reform as satisfactory.

History would pronounce a trial of the ex-Emperor a ghastly farce. It would condemn without measure his trial under the laws and in a land of an enemy nation. How could his enemies, thirsting for vengeance, give him an impartial trial? As well turn a man accused of murder over to the family and friends of his victim for impartial trial. The mockery of such a proceeding would savor of hypocritical diabolism.

If the allies are determined to punish the ex-Kaiser, let them seize him by force or strategy and execute him in avowed retaliation and punishment for his moral and political crimes. Let us not be guilty of the shameful hypocrisy of resorting to a pretext of law and a pretense of fair trial. Talk of indicting and trying Germany's civil and military leaders for crimes committed in war, or of punishing men who committed war offenses under their orders is foolish and futile. So is all talk of revenge upon and unusual punishment of the whole German people for supporting the war under the Kaiser's despotic rule.

Retribution lies in defeat with its humiliations and sufferings, its burdens of loss, indemnity and reparation. Woe to the vanquished under civilization is not embodied in slaughter and captivity, but in the disasters of defeat and the burdens of financial and economic penalties.

In the case of the ex-Emperor the greater retribution lies in life rather than death—life with the fall of his empire, the destruction of his dynasty, the blasting of his ambition and hopes and, worse than all, the loss of human respect and sympathy. Eternal justice is working in his case.

Let William Hohenzollern remain in the custody of Holland and let us build on the ruins of Kaiserism and militarism a humaner civilization with laws against international crimes and tribunals with power to enforce them.

A soldier suggests in the Louisville Courier-Journal, that the men to be left in camp for police and other necessary work should be "the men whose wives wanted to get rid of them, men who married in the hope of escaping the draft," and other slackers. ORGANIZING FOR GOOD ROADS.

Because the laws of the various states make the good roads movement one of county units, there has been a marked lack of uniformity between sections of the same state and often the benefits expected by one community was handicapped by the failure of the adjoining county. Even the various road associations, boosting a particular route, failed to make a definite program. Often these associations contributed heavily to unbalanced work and because of heavy expenses on this route, brought dissatisfaction.

The good road interests of Nebraska have taken a step in the right direction. Under the leadership of the Omaha Automobile Club and the Chamber of Commerce of the same city, a State-wide Nebraska Good Roads Association has been organized. The object is to co-ordinate effort, to confine improvements to permanent road building, to see that general traffic routes are given the consideration due to them and to aid each county in working out a general good roads plan based on its business needs.

THE TREES AND THE HERO MEMORIALS.

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

WHILE the communities of the country, large and small, are getting their bearings as to the character of the permanent memorials to the heroes of the world war there will be complete unanimity as to the wisdom of formal tree-planting in parks, on highways, boulevards and parkways, in and about schools, public buildings and on college campuses in honor of those who gave their all for their homes and their country.

It has been clear, too, for some time that the country is decidedly impatient with the general average of the soldier memorials that sprang up everywhere after the Civil War. The least said about the most of them the better. So, as the better thought prevails and there is a demand everywhere for pause and judgment in selecting the kind of memorial that will meet the needs of the hour, the immediate desire to do something at once can well take the form of tree-planting. For over a generation most of us have been familiar with the Arbor day idea, and it will be very easy to direct this vital idea into new channels called for by the proposed soldiers' memorial, tree groups and memorial avenues.

Curiously enough, Joyse Kilmier, one of the militant poets who gave up their lives for their country, evidently had a premonitory sense that the tree was to figure more largely and emotionally in American life. And it would be fitting, therefore, if, wherever the tree memorials to our soldiers and sailors be set up, there should appear in imperishable bronze his lovely tribute that makes the trees, as it were, brothers to the heroes their greenery will commemorate. It runs as follows:

I think that I shall never see
A poem lovely as a tree.
A tree whose hungry mouth is prest
Against the earth's sweet flowing breast;
A tree that looks at God all day
And lifts her leafy arms to pray;
A tree that may in summer wear
A nest of robins in her hair;
Upon whose bosom snow has lain;
Who intimately lives with rain.
Poems are made by fools like me,
But only God can make a tree.

THEY ALL ABDICATED.

From the Omoha World-Herald.

THE question whether the Kaiser really abdicated seems to be in doubt in London, as no formal document of abdication has yet been produced. There is documentary evidence, however, that nine of the lesser Kings and Grand Dukes in Germany really did abdicate. They formerly reigned under the following titles: King Wilhelm II of Wurtemburg, King Friedrich August III of Saxony, Grand Duke Friedrich August of Oldenburg, Grand Duke Freidrich Franz IV of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, Duke Ernst August of Brunswick, the son-in-law of the ex-Kaiser; Prince Heinrich XXVII of the younger branch of Reuss, King Ludwig III of Bavaria, Grand Duke Ernest Ludwig of Hesse.

Several inquiries have been received concerning what became of these smaller rulers. There can be no doubt concerning them. They all abdicated. Every monarch who allied himself with the Kaiser has been dethroned.

AN EMPEROR'S THOUGHT.

UPSTART! Ye dare breathe your Emperor's name
In common talk of freemanry and equity; whose hands
Would once have striven even against Hell's flame
To raise my banners there or fling my prestige upon lands.
For shame that I, God's chosen, deal with men
That shake with strange passions and have these children's meetings where Thy Emperor is tossed like chaff therin.
Ranked but a little higher than a Burgomaster there.
My Prussian sword that struck fire from Europe's air
Hath curse too flaming bright to sully it with a blood not red
Once bathed in wine the French, not Teuton's, bear.
Else far below me (being God-chosen) the grizzled head
Each traitor shakes would shake no more alive.
Cursed be the fate of treachery—for even as the taste
Of glory sat on my lips, it hath to shrive
The honeyed kiss therefrom so that 'tis but thick, clammy paste
Instead of jewel they wooed, and I, the fool.
Yet if my country fail me, I have had my fling and lost;
Poor beasts! a while we few had had our school
And taught clowny pigs how Germans live and drive—and crossed
The mighty sword of William o'er all the earth.
Ah, still I laugh to think of crawling hunchback nations
I dreamed were court-fools for their Emperor's mirth
Borne nearly double with the weight of recitations;
Begging a mark given one that shone indeed!
Fain were I yet, as fresh, with plastic molds to dream, a gleam
If thou would listen—I might yet succeed!
But thou are not my people, nor fit as yet for the great scheme—
Too bloodless thou; too much dissembling 'twixt right and wrong and power.
I vow, thou should be only blessed a king to eat and sleep,
Not one how planned to bear up and held you for an hour
Like I did once, against the sun, and in the sea chin-deep.

Alas! if in beloved Germany the stone
Europe hath thrown into my face, now there cut off to death
The valiant breath that beat in me alone
For love of Fatherland, 'tis sad, indeed, to draw the breath
In a coward's country which once was mine!
Yet, to be damned like this, cursed by the bloodless lips at home,
Hated abroad, mentioned in councils with swine,
I—William—have laughed at Germany as she died!
I tore youth from its mistress pregnant and good,
Laughed in my mustache as the foolish mother's hearts have cried
For pity; I, William, cursed you when I stood
And prayed in felicitation for the dead—and damn you now.
You turn upon me, God is my witness, I have done my best
To ruin my country—madman, I guess, to care not how!
I'd say I'd had my fling and won—if you would let me rest!

ALAN HERBERT.

The German Crown Prince is quoted as saying that he wanted to quit after the first battle of the Marne and make peace with the allies on the moderate terms possible at that time. He says he was convinced at the time that Germany could never win the war, and only subsided when he was told to mind his own business. We are very sorry he could not have talked to one of our two-story thinkers at that time and have been induced to see that nothing else was so peculiarly his own business as making the general staff see the jig was up. He would have saved the world a tremendous sacrifice through the four years that followed if he could have persuaded the general staff that the war was lost in that early reverse; and with no great damage, perhaps, to democracy. The German people were only kept in the war by a delusion that they were going to win, and the explosion of that fallacy would have produced about the same result one time as another. The Crown Prince is sadly smoking cork-tips on an island in the Zuyder Zee. He might have made himself something of a hero by suppressing his papa and his papa's pet coterie of baby killers. Most young men everywhere handle their papas, and the Crown Prince had a chance that almost no other young man has had. He might have been alone in that revolt for which we all waited so long. A rumpus in the royal family would have very soon won adherents to the rebellion, and papa might have slid over the Dutch border four years ago with his own boy after him. It will surprise young men the world around to learn that papa was to him something unconquerable and that in the face of merely parental power the son subsided. Almost no other boy does it.

Possibly somebody interested in the literature of the war will arise at the last and ask Arnold Bennett just what he was driving at in "The Pretty Lady." We have read that book carefully, and have not been able to detect any purpose in writing it. More than any other book reflecting the great conflict it confirms our impression that given the war as their subject the luminaries of present-day fiction in England made a terrible mess of it. Bearing the diverting name of Mr. Bennett, "The Pretty Lady" leaves the reader with something of the sense of shell shock. One cannot help thinking that Arnold, lured out to watch air raiding, saw for the first time something of night life in London and also happened to have his shirt blown off. There is not too much to be said for men like Mr. Locke and Mr. Wells, who seem not to have cared about seeing Zeps and kept their shirts on. Still, only Mr. Bennett wrote "The Pretty Lady."

Gen. Foch was quoted some time ago as crediting his appointment to Lloyd George, but Premier Clemenceau is reported now to have said that he brought it about. If these gentlemen are trying to settle it for the purpose of fixing any blame in the matter, we shall be very glad to admit that we did it.

TAX BILL FOR NEARLY 6 BILLIONS REPORTED

Republican Leaders in the Senate Prepare to Attack the 1920 Levy Plan.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—In reporting the War Revenue bill to the Senate today Chairman Simmons of the Finance Committee arranged for beginning of debate on next Tuesday with exclusive right of way given the measure.

Filing of committee reports on the bill was deferred until next week. Senator Simmons will present the majority report and Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania will file the minority report attacking especially the plan of fixing 1920 rates. Senators Smoot of Utah, and La Follette of Wisconsin, Republicans, gave notice that they would file separate reports to present their individual views.

Will Expedite Measure.

Senator Simmons served notice today that every effort to expedite the bill's passage would be made and Senator Penrose replied that, while no filibuster would be attempted, there would be thorough discussion especially of the 1920 tax plan which Republicans generally are vigorously opposing.

As revised by the Senate Committee to meet peace time conditions the measure is designed to raice $5,953,466,000 as against $8200,000,000 which would have been introduced by the House draft passed September 20.

PLEA FOR RELIGIOUS FREEDOM SENT TO PEACE CONFERENCE

Baptists in Texas Convention to Send Messenger to Paris.

By the Associated Press.

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 7.—A plea for religious freedom throughout the world was forwarded today from the general convention of Baptists in Texas to the peace conference. The principles of freedom adopted by the convention and which will go to Paris by messenger, said in part:

"We hold that the right of all people to worship God, or not to worship Him, according to the dictates of their own consciences, is God-given and inwrought in the moral and spiritual constitution of the race; that it is inalienable and the most valuable franchise of the human soul.

"Therefore, we appeal for religious liberty for the whole world, to the end that the new democracies may rest on firm foundations of truth and righteousness."

NEW YORK UNIONISTS APPROVE NATIONAL LABOR PARTY PLAN

Central Federated Union, Representing 250,000 Workers, Votes to Join in Movement.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—The Central Federated Union, representing 250,000 trades unionists in New York City, decided last night to join in the movement for the formation in the United States of a National Labor Party similar to that in England.

It was explained that the party would include both "those who work with their hands and those who work with their brains."

SAN FRANCISCO LABOR VETOES PLAN FOR "MOONEY" STRIKE

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 7.—This city, the scene of the preparedness day bomb explosion tragedy, on July 22, 1916, will witness no strike demonstration next Monday on behalf of Thomas J. Mooney, the principal bomb cause defendant who is now serving a life sentence in San Quentin (Cal.) prison.

The Labor Council last night tabled a resolution under which affiliated unions would have been called upon to render decision on the strike question.

Labor organizations in other leading Pacific Coast cities also have canceled plans for a Mooney strike. A movement is under way, however, directed by the International Workers' Defense League, to call a meeting of labor delegates in Chicago on Jan. 14 to devise ways and means to continue the fight to obtain a new trial for Mooney.

NOTE ON FOOD IN GERMANY

Says After Feb. 7 Supply Will Be Reduced Two-Thirds.

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 7.—An official note concerning the food reserves issued in Berlin says that under the most favorable circumstances there will only be enough breadstuffs after Feb. 7, for a daily ration of eighty grammes, which is one-third the present ration. The note says that the death rate continues to increase in Berlin. It says that in October 1915, 1037 women died in Berlin, while in October 1918, the number of women who died was more than 3000.

MUNITION FIRMS PAID $9,418,000 IN TAXES

Seventy-Six Per Cent of Internal Revenue Came From Incomes and Excess Profits.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Direct taxes fell heavily on corporations and on persons having large incomes and lightly on the great majority of persons earning less than $3000 a year, it was shown today by the annual report of Internal Revenue Commissioner Daniel G. Roper for the year ending June 30. Although 2,319,000 persons with incomes of $3000 or less in 1917 filed returns, including many heads of families having incomes ranging between $1000 and $2000, which were reportable but not taxable, they were assessed only $22,395,000 in the aggregate or less than $10 each. On the other hand, 665,000 individuals with incomes of more than $3000 were assessed $592,613,000.

Corporation excess profits taxes of $2,045,713,000 came from 117,000 concerns, while 218,000 corporations were assessed income taxes of $48,175,000. Other assessments by classes were as follows: Insurance companies income taxes, 2100 returns $3,072,000; railroad companies income taxes, 4096 returns, $29,878,000; individual subject to excess profits tax, 31,000 returns, $88,731,000; partnership excess profits tax, 37,500 returns, $93,125,000; munition manufacturers, 2248 returns, $9,418,000. Actual collection figures differed slightly from the assessments.

Nearly Half Billion From Liquor.

Revised reports on collection show that $3,394,619,000 was collected from internal revenue, including $2,838,999,000 from income and excess profits taxes, $317,553,000 from distilled spirits, $126,285,000 from fermented liquors, a total of $443,838,000 from all liquors, and $156,188,000 from tobacco.

The year 1918 marked the beginning of a new era of taxation, commented Mr. Roper, because the bulk came from income and profits taxes rather than from liquor as in previous years. In 1914, under the first income tax law, only 16 per cent of total internal revenue collection were from incomes and excess profits taxes, whereas in 1918 76 per cent came from these sources.

The commissioner explained how the bureau had sought the advice of business interests in administering taxes last year to minimize the difficulties in reporting and assessing taxes and said this policy would be continued.

During the year 2238 illicit distilleries were seized, mainly in Southern States. North Carolina had one-third of the total.

DELAY OF CASUALTY LISTS IS EXPLAINED

The "Flu," Duplications and Names Not in Alphabetical Order Have Hampered Work.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The War Department has issued this statement as to the delays and mistakes in reporting names of wounded soldiers:

"Ten thousand men seriously wounded and reported by cable are being held up because of discrepancies in initials or enlistment numbers, and 100,000 men less seriously wounded, including many slight casualties, are still to be drawn from the hospital records which have been forwarded by courier from France.

"These records are not alphabetized and work upon them necessarily is slow as the same names usually appear more than once. In one case a single name appears in twenty different places. The work upon these hospital records was seriously delayed by the influenza epidemic but is now going on steadily.

"The foregoing statement does not cover all the discrepancies as will be seen, but in dealing with so great number of cases it may be assumed that the remainder is in process of checking and that reports will be made within a few days as to all identifiable casualties."

The statement attributes the great delay in reporting casualties and the large number of errors which have been found to the fact that "our growing army was operating on many fronts under many commands and in the later fighting it was used to press the enemy for a quick decision every other consideration being subordinated."

GERMANY NOT TO PAY DEBT WITH MANUFACTURED GOODS

Sir Auckland Geddes Says England Will Not Accept Them—Gold and Labor Acceptable.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—Sir Auckland Geddes, President of the local Government board, in speaking at Plymouth last night, declared that whatever else Germany might pay in discharging the cost of the war, she must not be allowed to pay in manufactured goods dumped on Great Britain.

It was better, he said, to run the risk of Germany failing to pay a part of the cost of the war than to take her manufactured goods, which would crush out British industries and lead to a lowering of wages beyond living limits.

Germany would pay with such gold as she has and also with such material as could be wrung from her, Sir Auckland affirmed, and she could pay in labor in restoring the damage she wrought in France and Belgium.

"She will have no colonies when the allies have done with this business," he added.

"Don't Be Ashamed to Carry a Bundle, We're All Doing It," Is One of the Slogans to Be Used in the "Bundle Day" Campaign Which the Junior League Will Sponsor on Saturday, Dec. 21—Of All Tag Days This Will Be the Only One Where Money Contribution Will Not Be Requested.

"DON'T be ashamed to carry a bundle, we're all doing it" and "You'll be lonesome without a bundle"—These are two of the slogans to be used in the Bundle day campaign which the Junior League will sponsor on Saturday, December 21. St. Louis has had many tag days for many worthy causes but probably the unique one will be "Bundle day." No other city in the country has ever had one and the idea was originated by the League. Everyone is asked—not for money, because the League doesn't want to ask everyone for money—but for a bundle of old clothes which is to be taken down town that day whether coming to business in the morning or going shopping at any time during the day.

Every one of the 150 Junior League members who are at present in the city and which numbers among its membership the most prominent young matrons and maids of St. Louis will be on hand that day and as early as 7:30 a. m. will be stationed at corners on all the principal streets.

A big box will be on the pavement into which you are to drop your bundle as you step from the street car and then you will be tagged with a smile by the girl in charge.

AUTOMOBILE trucks, "manned" by League members, will make collections at various corners and will also be in front of department stores during the rush hours. The greatest appeal is for children's things, because the Allies' Shop at 610 North Broadway, where all the Junior League rummage collections are sold, can never fully supply the calls for them.

Poor mothers have found the shop a marvelous place to get bargains in warm, comfortable winter clothing for their children, and it is a pity not to keep the supply in excess of the demand.

Hardly a comfortable home in which there are children has not a few outgrown garments, and so many new things are bought at Christmas that it was felt that this was the most auspicious time to make the appeal for old clothes. Surely no Christmas aid could be more easily given than this nor one which will mean so much to many a poor family. If there are any toys not being used you are asked to include these in your bundles. Adult's clothes are also asked for, and no bundle will be too small to be welcomed by the league.

Men in all walks of life are being solicited to promise to bring a bundle downtown with them on "bundle day," and many prominent citizens will be seen dropping some cherished article of personal apparel in the bundle boxes that day.

From high church dignitaries to the most ordinary workman, from the grande dame of the social world to the youngest cash girl in the stores, each is being asked to bring her contribution.

EVERY possible precaution will be taken to receive the bundle quickly and tag the donor without confusion, so that no one will be delayed in getting to business that morning. Special arrangements will be made to take charge of those who come downtown in automobiles.

The Arrangements Committee for the day is headed by Mrs. Robert A. Holland, Mrs. C. R. D. Meier and Miss Jane Shapleigh, and a number of captains will be appointed to direct the members. The donations will be sold at the Allies' Shop and the proceeds divided between the American Fund for French Wounded and the Junior League, to be used by the latter for their most deserving home activities, which benefit many poor sick and children's welfare agencies. So don't forget your bundle on Saturday, Dec. 21.

WHO IS THIS?

It is the Tired Business Man

He is chain-lightning in his office. He knows all about the bank-statement, the corn crop, the freight-car shortage, the liquidation of Smith-Jones, Inc., and the drop in Iceland Moss Preferred. He can quote you, instantly, the August production of his Grand Rapids branch factory to one-tenth of one percent.

But socially! great Beatrice Fairfax!

He is lost at a dance; swamped at a dinner; helpless when confronted with hostesses, buds, dowagers, visiting French generals, literary lions, Hindu musicians, Japanese dancers; dumb at discussions of Eli Nadelman's sculpture, or golf, or airplane production, or pedigreed dogs.

Sometimes, in his secret soul, he wonders how other men get on so well with people who are, to him, as incomprehensible as the dodo.

And yet it's so easy—so simple—so inexpensive to learn the secret of social success.

All he needs is tear off that coupon and spend a single dollar for six issues of the forward-marching magazine of modern American life—its arts, sports, dances, fashions, books, operas, gaieties, and humors: Vanity Fair.

Vanity Fair costs $3 a year—35 cents a copy. There is more joyous fun-making and mental stimulation in one single copy than in fourteen yards of Bergson or Ralph Waldo Emerson. Yet, if you do not know Vanity Fair, or would like to know it better, you may have five whole copies for an insignificant dollar bill—six, if you mail the coupon at once.

BUY FURS NOW

Why?

Europe Wants Our Furs; This Means Fur Prices Will Be Higher

This is a secret. The real reason Paris has been making so much of fuzzy yarn trimmings is that she has been unable to get furs in anywhere near adequate quantities.

There will be no release in the demand for Furs. The catch has been short the world over. The basis for next year's prices is the price paid to trappers today. And the figures show that the trappers are getting higher prices than skins ever brought before.

At our principal export shipping points, they are parcel posting Furs to London and Paris every day. There can be but one answer: Fur prices will be higher.

Lieut. and Mrs. Hughes are graduates of Washington University, class of 1917. He is stationed at Camp McArthur, Waco, Tex., where he took his bride to reside until he is mustered out of service.

Cards have been received announcing the marriage Nov. 28 of Miss Genevieve Burks, daughter of Mrs. A. O. Burks of Springfield, Mo., to Capt. Robert F. Hyland, which took place at Columbia, S. C., where the bride, accompanied by her mother, had gone for a short visit. Capt. Hyland is chief surgeon of the United Railways and a member of the staff of St. John's Hospital. He was commissioned a Lieutenant and stationed at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., and received his promotion to a captaincy on the day the engagement was announced. He now is at the base hospital, Camp Jackson. The bride was educated at the Visitation Convent, and was one of the most popular debutantes of Springfield. She entered a Red Cross training course at St. John's Hospital, where she met Dr. Hyland.

The marriage of Miss Marjorie D. Ryan, daughter of Mrs. Nollie A. Ryan, 5175 Enright avenue, to Corp. Clifford A. Oswald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip H. Oswald, 3348 Commonwealth avenue, Maplewood, was celebrated Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock, in Pilgrim Congregational Church, the Rev. Dr. Samuel H. Woodrow officiating. Miss Leota Curl was maid of honor and the best man was the bride's brother-in-law, H. W. Richards. A small reception at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. H. W. Richards, 1344 Belt avenue, followed the ceremony. Corp. Oswald is stationed at Camp Raritan, N. J., but expects his discharge in two months. He arrived last Thursday on a 10-day furlough. The bride is a sister of Mrs. K. A. Reed of Brooklyn, N. Y., who was married last July.

MISS NATALIE ROSS and Miss Mary Card will entertain on Christmas night with a benefit dance in the grillroom of the Hotel Jefferson, the proceeds of the entertainment being devoted to the Belgian Orphan Fund. The chaperons for this occasion will include Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Busch, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Collins, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Griesedieck, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Lueking, Mr. and Mrs. William Aloffs, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Thurston, Mr. and Mrs. George Aschen, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Boetner, Mrs. A. S. Orvis and Mrs. A. C. Roth. The girls who are interested in the affair include many belles from Webster and Kirkwood.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Ingle of 4185 Enright avenue had as their guests, Brigadier-General and Mrs. Rufus Longan. Gen. Longan is Chief of Staff at the port of embarkation and had charge of transporting United State troops and supplies to Europe. He departed for an Eastern port last night, from where he will sail for overseas duty which will consist of aiding the return of troops to America.

On account of the health restrictions the Sunday night supper at the Allies' Tea Shop at 3625 Washington boulevard will not be given this evening. Miss Marian Franciscus, who has had charge of the tea shop, has been obliged to resign because of illness in the family and Mmes. Tyrrell Williams, Charles Kimball, Sam Scott and Miss Juliet Reyburn are in charge.

Members of the St. Louis Woman's Club have been obliged to postpone their luncheon with a talk by Mrs. Harry C. January and also the bridge party at the club for next Thursday afternoon owing to the restrictions against any large gatherings. If the ban is lifted by Thursday evening, Dec. 26, the club will give its annual Christmas dance.

Mrs. Fritz Riesmeyer and her husband, who is an ensign in the navy, have recently been visitors in New York, but have returned to Norfolk, Va., where Ensign Riesmeyer is stationed and where Mrs. Riesmeyer has spent most of her time the past year.

AMONG the prominent women war workers and leaders of progressive thought who will be in St. Louis this week is Madame Avril de Sainte Croix, who is generaly recognized as the foremost public woman of France today.

Word was received yesterday by Mrs. D. S. Brown, chairman of the Y. W. C. A. South Central Field Committee, who will entertain the celebrated French woman, that Mme. de Sainte Croix would include St. Louis in her itinerary while in America. Se will arrive here on Tuesday morning, to remain four days.

Mme. St. Croix is in America on a semi-official mission to gather data of value in the proposed extension of the feminine movement in France. She enjoys the distinction never before accorded to a woman in France, of having been appointed to membership in the Interparliamentary Commission for the Reform of Public Morals, one of the more important of the investigating and deliberative bodies that is at present occupied with the consideration of public reforms in France.

Mme. de Sainte Croix leads in a large proportion of the important social and industrial committees having to do with the welfare of women in France. In addition to her membership in the commission privileged to recommend to the French law-making body regulations on social and moral questions, Mme. de Sainte Croix is president of the leading French society that is concerned with rescue work among French girls and of a committee which maintains restaurant, clubs and welfare centers for women munitions workers of the French National Council of Women; and is a member of the Commissions of Feminine Work and of public health of the French Ministry of Armaments.

Mme. de Sainte Croix will be accompanied to St. Louis by her associate and interpreter, Miss Marie Butts of the teaching staff of one of the noted seats of learning at Lausanne, Switzerland. Miss Butts is an English woman, who has spent a great part of her life in studying the phases of the European labor problem and is regarded as an international authority on labor and labor questions.

As the ban on all public gatherings is still in effect, it is likely that the distinguished visitors will not be publicily entertained. There will be a series of parlor meetings, however, a speech at Central Y. W. C. A. Tuesday and a tour of the city, with special attention given to its industrial life, under the chaperonage of Mrs. Harry January of the St. Louis Consumers' League. On Thursday she will attend the meeting of the Executive Board of the National Council of Women.

While in St. Louis Mme. de Sainte Croix will give much time to a study of the work done by the War Work Council of the Y. W. C. A., under the supervision of the South Central Field Committee, particularly that part of it that concerns the welfare of the women munition workers at the Old Hickory powder plant in Tennessee, where the committee has established dormitories, clubs, educational facilities, cafeterias, employment bureaus and other aid forms for the convenience of the girls and

"UNDER FOUR FLAGS" BEGINS RUN TONIGHT

Government's Own War Picture Shows Troops of Four Nations in Action.

St. Louisans will have an opportunity this evening to see how an American doughboy looks as he is going into action with the bayonet—and how a German trench looks after that same doughboy has stopped there for a time, and then pushed on.

"Under Four Flags," the Government's own views of the fighting that brought about peace, will have its opening presentation at the Odeon, under the auspices of the Committee on Public Information.

The picture is a combination of the most fortunate bits of action caught by the official camera men of the American, British, French and Italian armies, and the various navies. It is called the victory picture. A special musical program has been arranged for the exhibition.

The picture begins with the German drive, shows the French retreat, the conference at Versailles and the appointment of Foch as supreme chief, the historic meeting when Pershing pledged every man and gun to the task of stopping the foe, the flood of American reserves across the sea and then the fighting by each of the four great armies that forced the Germans to cry quits.

"Home Fires Night."

"Home Fires Night" is the name that has been given the opening presentation for all the home auxiliaries representing men in the service are especially urging their members and friends to attend them, and have first look at our men and those of the allies, going in with bayonet and bomb against the foe. A short address will be made by James R. Dunn, chairman of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Relatives' Committee of the War Camp Community Service.

A special letter was sent to members of the United States Sailors' Parents' League, urging attendance and another to members of the Marine Corps League. Notification was given their memberships by the Camp Funston Relatives Club, the United States Sailors' Parents' League of St. Louis County, the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Twelfth Engineers, the Ladies' Auxiliary of the 128th Field Artillery and the Relatives' Auxiliary, St. Louis National Guard; the 128th Field Artillery and the 138th Infantry.

Archbishop Is Expected.

Monday evening is being boosted by the Knights of Columbus. Archbishop Glennon will occupy a box. An address will be made by Luke E. Hart, and the celebrated Knights of Columbus Choral Club of 80 voices will sing.

"Allies Night" is Tuesday evening. A card urging attendance on Wednesday evening, or at some other time, has been sent to every Young Men's Christian Association member in St. Louis.

Exhibitions will be at 2:15 and 8:15 daily after this evening. There will be no matinee today. On week days tickets are on sale downtown at Kieselhorst's, 1007 Olive.

DR. ROSCOE H. HEALY DIES

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar C. Healy of Denver, were summoned here and were with him when he died. The father is a wealthy druggist of Denver. SUPPORT GIVEN TO PLAN FOR INTERNATIONAL KAISER JURY

Formal Charge Made by French Widow Whose Husband Was Killed on the Sussex.

PARIS, Dec. 7.—The formation of an international jury to try the former German Emperor is gaining wide support in France. The Matin says:

"Attorney-General Lescouve, after an investigation, has transmitted to the Ministry of Justice the charge of murder made against the former Emperor by Madame Prieur, whose husband was killed in the torpedoing of the mail steamer Sussex. The Attorney-General said that he considered the charge admissible in the French courts."

4-MINUTE SPEAKERS AGAIN

Will Spend Week Explaining Accomplishment of America's War Aims.

Beginning tonight and continuing for a week, the four-minute men of St. Louis will speak in the theaters on the war aims of America and will show how these aims were accomplished when the enemy and the allied Powers agreed to base the future world peace on the 14 points of President Wilson.

The speakers will trace the development of the Monroe Doctrine to its complete culmination in a basis upon which will be built the future peace of the world, which will establish a reign of law, based on the consent of the governed, sustained by the organized opinion of mankind.

NEGRESS WAS IN DISTRESS; HUNG FLAG UPSIDE DOWN

Husband in Army; Allotment Overdue, "I Wants Mah Money or Mah Man," She Says.

How the wife of a negro soldier flew the S O S signal when her allotment failed to come, was related Thursday evening at a meeting of the St. Louis Flag Society, whose members aim to see that flags are properly hung, by Jacob Kuhl, a member.

Kuhl knocked at the door of a house in the vicinity of Thirteenth and Linden streets, where a flag appeared in the window upside down. A negro woman responded.

"Your flag is hung improperly; that is a signal of distress," he said.

'Oh, you is the Guv'ment, is you? Well, heah me; I is in distress. I suah is," she declared. "Dey done took mah husband in de ahmy, but dey ain't sent me no money; no sah. I wants mah man or I wants mah money, dat's all."

ARMY AVIATOR IS DIVORCED

Wife Testifies Lieut. Ira M. Avent Hit Her With Swagger Stick.

Mrs. Madeline Preston Avent of 5225 North Market street, was granted a divorce yesterday from Lieut. Ira M. Avent, an army aviator, after she testified that soon after their marriage he beat her with a swagger stick because she would not give up her two children by a former marriage. She said the swagger stick was a present to her from the Chicago Red Cross Chapter, and that she had given it to her husband after the wedding, June 8, last.

Lieut. Avent was in court and heard the testimony, but offered none in his own behalf. Following the granting of the decree he walked over and conferred for several minutes with Mrs. Avent. She did not ask for alimony.

BANK ROBBER SAYS HE WAS CONVICTED AT A FAIR TRIAL

Influenza among court attaches prevented the sentencing yesterday at Edwardsville of "Big Gus" Zeidler and Alexander MacKeon to the penitentiary. Judge J. F. Gillham will hold court at Pinckneyville next week, returning to Edwardsville Saturday to take up the Zeidler and MacKeon case. The men were convicted of robbing the Tri-City State Bank at Madison of $17,000 on May 16 last in a daylight holdup.

Zeidler said yesterday that he had been fairly convicted and that while his attorney was considering moving for a new trial, he personally did not want one. Zeidler said that he had received word that his wife, who resides in Evansville, Ind., and is wealthy, plans to sue him for divorce. The Illinois law provides that conviction for a felony is ground for legal separation.

A telegram from Evansville yesterday said that Mrs. Zeidler admitted that she was starting divorce proceedings, but would not say where. She is said to own some property in St. Louis and in Cincinnati.

PRESBYTERIANS AFTER $95,000

The $500,000 endowment and equipment fund for Westminster College, at Fulton, Mo., can be secured only by raising $95,000 by midnight of Dec. 31, an average daily subscription of $4000. Systematic canvass of the Presbyterian churches of the State has been finished, and it is hoped that many of those who subscribed on the first call will subscribe again.

Dr. L. E. Holden, secretary of the College Board of New York is in St. Louis to aid in the final stage of the campaign. Presbyterian pastors will make a strong appeal at today's services.

ST. LOUIS GOT THIRD OF DEMOCRATIC FUND

Statement of Committee Fails to Name Individual Contributors.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 7.—Names of individual contributors to the Democratic State campaign are not revealed in the financial statement of the Democratic State Committee filed in the office of the County Recorder in St. Joseph by James E. Cox, treasurer of this committee. In previous campaigns ti has been customary for every contributor to be listed.

Although it is generally known that the closing days of the campaign were financed by National Committeeman Edward F. Goltra, who advanced more than $6000 for expenses at a time when party leaders feared they would have to stop all activities because of lack of funds, there is no indication in the report that Goltra contributed anything to the campaign.

The principal sources of income as shown in the statement were assessments of State employes in Jefferson City, nearly every State department being credited with liberal contributions, though the attempt to collect 3 per cent of each employe's yearly salary was unsuccessful and the contributions average far under 1 per cent.

St. Louis Got One-Third.

Approximately one-third of this total cost of the campaign went to the Democratic City Committee in St. Louis, and ward and precinct workers. It is shown that members of the City Committee received $5000 for which they were supposed to make a poll of the city, and that in addition to that amount $12,500 was paid precinct workers and committeemen.

The total receipts of the committee were $54,487.08, and the total expenditures $54,149.18, leaving a balance of $337.85.

The assessment of State employes is shown to have yielded the following amounts:

Supreme Court, $1888.75; Mine Inspection Bureau, $177; Kansas City Court of Appeals, $85; Springfield Court of Appeals, $265; Public Service Commission, $686; Department of Permanent Seat of Government, $60; Secretary of State, $344; Oil Inspection Department, $325; Insurance Department, $237; Factory Inspection Department, $200; Beer Inspection Department, $35; Farmington Hospital, $90; State Treasurer's office, $239.50; Superintendent of Schools, $191; Hotel Inspection Department, $143; Board of Health, $79.80; Food and Drug Department, $255; St. Louis police, $329; St. Joseph Grain Inspection Department, $200; State Tax Commission, $50; Booneville Reformatory, $192; Attorney-General's office, $199; Circuit Attorney's office in St. Louis, $378; Fish and Game Department, $270; State Highway Department, $85; Labor Bureau, $9; Nevada Hospital, $188.50; Mount Vernon Sanitarium, $108; Fulton Hospital, $147.50; St. Joseph Hospital, $220; St. Louis Grain Inspection Department, $551; Kansas City Grain Inspection Department, $803.75.

$12,730 From National Committee.

Adolph Musser of Holden, a member of the State committee, is credited with contributions totaling $2559, which is supposed to be a number of small contributions merely entered in his name.

The Democratic National Committee sent $12,730 into Missouri for use in the campaign to elect Joseph W. Folk to the office of United States Senator and for use in the campaigns of Democratic congressional candidates.

PLACING SOLDIERS BACK IN CIVIL WORK IS DISCUSSED

Various Organizations Promise U. S. Employment Service They Will Aid Men to Find Jobs.

W. W. Brown, Director for Missouri of the United States Employment Service Bureau, at a meeting at the Chamber of Commerce yesterday, was promised the co-operation of the Knights of Columbus, the War Camp Community Service, the Central Trades and Labor Union, the Jewish Board of Welfare Work, the Associated Retailers, the Y. M. C. A., and the Automobile Dealers' Association, in the work of placing in positions in civil life soldiers and sailors discharged from the service.

In Missouri the agency will have representatives here and in Kansas City. Men will be placed in the positions they are best qualified to fill.

St. Louis employers, it was stated, promised the men in service their old places will be open for them upon their return, and these promises will be fulfilled. Offices for the agency have not been obtained yet.

LIVELY CHASE ON PINE STREET

Pedestrians in Pine street, between Eleventh and Thirteenth streets, became excited at 11 a. m., yesterday, when detectives chasing two negroes began firing their revolvers.

Miss Stella Grimm, sister of the proprietors of the St. Louis Suburban and Grimm Bros. Express Co., saw two negroes take a bundle of wall paper from one of the company's wagons and run. She chased them. In Pine street, two detectives relieved her of the pursuit. One negro stopped at command, but the other kept right on and the detectives began firing. The second negro was captured in the basement at 1306 Pine street.

TWO WEEKS' TRAINING CAMP FOR CIVILIANS

Resumption of Plattsburg Idea Announced for Jan. 5.

A two weeks' military training camp for civilians at Camp Pershing, in the Zachary Taylor cantonment, near Louisville, is announced by the Military Training Camps Association, which thus reverts to the Plattsburg training camp idea which it sponsored before the war.

Prospective candidates will report to the commanding officer on Jan. 5, and the training will end on Jan. 18. The enrollment will be limited to 500 men. Applicants must be citizens of the United States, 18 years old or more. There is no maximum age limit. Indorsements of two professional or business men of standing must be presented, as well as a certificate of physical fitness from a physician.

St. Louis candidates should apply to the Military Training Camps Association, 422 University Club Building.

The camp is authorized by the War Department, and the commandant will be an officer of the regular army, Capt. F. L. Beals, who handled with ability seven civilian training camps at Lake Geneva, Wis.

There will be two courses, for men with previous military experience and for those with none. To the latter will be taught the rudiments of military life, such as drilling, manual of arms and care of the rifle. The former will receive a taste of the intensive training used at many camps during the war for the manufacture of officer material.

Attendance at Camp Pershing will be purely voluntary, and no obligation for further service of any kind will be entailed at the conclusion of the course. Preference will be given to applications in the order of their receipt.

DWIGHT DAVIS NOW LIEUTENANT-COLONEL

Former Park Commissioner Writes of Commanding Nondescript Battalion in Argonne.

Maj. Dwight F. Davis of 16 Portland place, former Park Commissioner, in a letter written Nov. 4 to his wife, states that he has been promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.

He has been Adjutant of the Sixty-ninth Infantry Brigade and as such was mentioned in orders for coolness and bravery under fire during the fighting near Baulny, Sept. 29 and 30.

He was Captain of L Company of the old Fifth Missouri Infantry when the regiment left St. Louis.

In a letter to his 11-year-old son, Dwight Davis Jr., the Colonel thus writes of the Argonne fighting:

"Our division was one of the original shock divisions to make the attack on a sector which I suppose must be nameless. We attacked a strong position in a dense fog, after heavy artillery preparation. The brigade headquarters I was with moved up the night before to dugouts practically in the front line, and we had a wonderful view of the bambardment early in the morning.

"The boche defense was chiefly machine guns and artillery. The men behaved splendidly and I believe went as far as could have been expected. One field we had to cross with a boche battery across the river firing at us over open sights stands well in my memory, because I had to cross it three times.

"I found myself at one time leading a nondescript battalion of men lost in the fog from various companies, and on two other occasions with a rifle helping repel a counter attack. My assorted battalion helped capture over 300 prisoners. It was magnificent to see the men in loose formation walking steadily up to the German machine guns and around them. We had three towns and several woods in our sector which were particularly difficult to tackle."

PATROLMAN ON BETTY RAY RAID CHARGES A "FRAME-UP"

Officer Holt Said His Transfer to "Sticks" Was All Part of Plot to Get Him Out of Department.

Patrolman Alonzo N. Holt, who was transferred to the so-called "sticks" following a raid on the resort of Betty Ray, 617 Leonard avenue, on the night of Nov. 11, resigned from the Police Department Thursday and yesterday recited the circumstances that brought about charges of insubordination, which prompted his resignation.

"The charges were part of the frame-up," said he. "It would have done me no good to stand trial."

He asserted the charges resulted from his statement to a Police Sergeant that if what he had heard was true the hair of the Police Commissioners would turn gray. This remark, he said, was prompted by an incident Oct. 17 at the house conducted by Mme. Cole, 717 Leonard avenue. When he entered there and insisted that noise-making should cease, he says the Cole woman told him that "he looked the same as anybody else" and that "he would keep on coming in here until some night he would find a Police Commissioner in here."

Aged Theater Doorkeeper Dies.

Jacob Close, 86 years old, of 4036 Shaw avenue, who for many years was doorkeeper at the old Pope's Theater, died yesterday after an illness of several months. Interment will be at Valhalla Cemetery tomorrow. Close was widely acquainted among early day theatrical people and told many interesting stories incident to the old-time "green rooms." In 1850 he crossed the plains with an ox team. He was a member of Frank P. Blair Post, G. A. R.

Mother, Your Child needs a Harmless Laxative.—Quick!

If Tongue is Coated, Stomach Sick, or Child is Cross, Feverish, Constipated, give "California Syrup of Figs."

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. See if the tongue is coated; this is a sure sign that the little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with bile and imperfectly digested food.

When listless, pale, feverish, with tainted breath, a cold, or a sore throat; if the child does not eat, sleep or act naturally, or has stomach-ache, indigestion, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the waste matter, bile and fermenting food will pass out of the bowels, and you have a healthy, playful child again. Children love this harmless "fruit laxative," and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their "insides" sweet and wholesome.

Keep it handy, Mother! A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a bottle of genuine "California Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," made by the California Fig Syrup Co., which has directions for babies, children of all ages, and for grown-ups, plainly on the bottle.—ADV.

WAR STAMPS AS GIFTS URGED

With St. Louis approximately $4,000,000 behind on its War Savings Stamp quota, employers are being urged by the War Savings Committee of Missouri to pay bonuses and give Christmas presents and extra pay in the form of War Savings Stamps instead of cash. CIVIC LEAGUE HAS PROGRAM OF RECONSTRUCTION

Municipal Ownership of Utilities, Short and Secret Ballot and Court Revision Is Urged.

WIDER CAMPAIGN PUBLICITY SOUGHT

Constitutional Convention Favored to Remove Technical Objection to Acquisition of Service Industries.

Municipal ownership of utilities, as chief means to destroy special privilege in municipal government, is the most important feature of Civic League reconstruction work, outlined by the Executive Board of that body at a special meeting yesterday.

Special privilege in government, the Civic League reports it has found, is the one great cause of the difficulties facing governmental honesty and efficiency.

Other specific reconstruction measures, in addition to municipal ownership, which the Civic League will push as a means of weakening privileges, are:

Reforms Advocated.

The short and secret ballot, proportional representation, nonpartisan local elections, revision of municipal court system, full publicity on candidates with recommendations of the most desirable, and a new State Constitution.

These measures, designed to meet all the fundamental obstacles to municipal progress, were adopted after lengthy study and consideration.

The Civic League's statement on its reconstruction activities, which is based on its platform adopted last year, follows:

"Not the least of the problems of post-war reconstruction is that of municipal reconstruction. The public utility question alone in municipalities is of the greatest importance. Unless urgent and forceful methods are taken to readjust conditions in cities the country will be thrown into a state of instability and disturbance. The new significance which has been given to the term democracy requires a speedy attention to city governmental conditions. The Civic League, in accordance with its platform of principles, seeks to combat special privilege in government and to improve local conditions. The various combinations of difficulties facing honesty and efficiency in local government, as we see it, arise from causes which are all part of one cause—special privilege in government.

"To weaken special privilege and secure honesty and efficiency in local government, the league has pledged itself to the following general program:

Pledge of Activities.

"1. It will carefully look into the record of all candidates for public office, publishing the facts for the guidance of the voters of the city, in order that they may be able to judge of the merits and abilities of candidates, and of their intentions to serve all the people or a favored few.

"2. It will strive for the perfection and adoption of such a system of elections as will enable public-spirited citizens to go into public office unpledged to serve any interest except that of the general public.

"3. It will study the problems of municipal life and government as they obtain in other cities, as well as in our own, in order to learn, make public and secure the adoption of means by which St. Louis will become a more wholesole, a healthier and a happier place in which to live and prosper.

"On the basis of the above, we specifically stand in our reconstruction work for the following definite steps:

1. Municipal ownership as the final solution of the confused utility situation.
2. The short ballot and the secret ballot.
3. Proportional representation in our Municipal Assembly.
4. Nonpartisan system of municipal elections.
5. Revision of Municipal Court sytem.
6. Full and fearless publicity in regard to candidates for public office, with specific recommendations of the most desirable.
7. To remove technical obstacles to any of the above steps, the immediate creation of a State constitutional convention.

"Step by step we hope to push forward the above measures. In all earnestness of purpose, we ask the co-operation of earnest men and women in St. Louis in accomplishing these objects."

ROBBER COUNSELS HIS VICTIM

R. J. Brice Told How to Avoid Getting Hurt as He Is Relieved of $12.

A talkative highwayman halted Ralph J. Brice, 2223 Park avenue, near Park and Missouri avenues, at 12:30 a. m. today. He held a revolver against Brice, and immediately opened a rapid-fire conversation.

"You look intelligent," he said. Brice found some difficulty in acknowledging the compliment in the circumstances. "Intelligent men don't fight under these conditions. Had any experience like this before?" he inquired, and Brice said he hadn't.

"Well, the best way is to turn your back, and then the likelihood of getting hurt is greatly lessened," the robber went on, as he took $12 from Brice's pocket. "Now the proper think is to go straight ahead, thus reducing the danger to a minimum," he concluded as he departed.

Civic Leagues' Plans.

The Executive League yesterday delegated the Leagues' Secretary, Louis F. Budenz, to represent that organization at the Constitutional Convention Conference at Kansas City tomorrow. The revision of the bonded indebtedness limitation on utilities, it is understood, will be one of the principal features discussed at the meeting.

3925 CASUALTIES IN LONGEST LIST THUS FAR ISSUED

Official Announcement Accounts for 3835 in Army and 90 in Marine Corps; 872 Deaths Included.

ROLL OF ST. LOUIS WOUNDED IS LENGTHY

Lists to Date Show 46 Per Cent of All Casualties, but 87 Per Cent of the Deaths.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The longest official casualty list thus far given out, recording 3835 army casualties and 90 in the Marine Corps, was issued tonight. It was accompanied by an official summary showing that, by the War Department's figures, 116,823 army casualties have been announced, of which 47,403 are deaths; and 4758 Marine Corps casualties, of which 1831 are deaths.

The total number of names thus far announced, 121,581, is nearly 46 per cent of the entire number to be announced, which by a recent anoucemet is approximately 264,886. The names of the known dead announced, numbering 49,234, is 87 per cent of the entire number of deaths to be announced, that number being 56,478 by the revised figures.

This indicates that, while the issuance of long casualty lists will continue for several weeks, the lists will, before long, be devoted largely to casualties other than deaths.

Today's list shows, for the army, 406 killed in action, 173 died from wounds, 260 died of disease, 7 died from accident and other causes, 3 died from airplane accident, 285 missing in action, 1918 wounded severely, 227 wounded, degree undetermined, and 556 wounded slightly; and for the Marine Corps, 8 killed in action, 9 died from wounds, 6 died of disease, 2 missing, 1 in hands of enemy, 58 wounded severely, 2 wounded, degree undetermined, and 4 wounded slightly.

The number of those from St. Louis and vicinity, and from Missouri, listed today as severely wounded, is noticeable. Names from St. Louis and vicinity, Missouri, and Illinois outside of Chicago and suburbs, are:

8 DAYS PERFORMANCES NET GREAT LAKES REVUE $8000

Money Goes to Navy Relief Society—Extra Show Tonight Is Farewell Appearance.

Net profits from the eight- days' run of the Great Lakes Revue; at the Park Theater, will be $8000, including receipts from the sale of seats for the special farewell performance tonight, according to Roy J. Mason, chief petty officer who is in charge of the 135 men from the Great Lakes Naval Training Station who form the company.

The money goes to the Navy Relief Society, and will be used to endow hospital beds for the wives of men in the Navy and Marine Corps. As the men are paid by the Government, the only money deducted from the total receipts is for their maintenance and transportation.

Tonight's performance is an extra one, the company having remained to give it in response to numerous requests.

RED CROSS DRIVE HERE DEC. 16 FOR 500,000 MEMBERS

Campaign Will Be Continued for a Week With Dec. 14 and 15 as "Volunteer Days."

10,000 IN FORCE TO MAKE THE CANVASS

Four Downtown Wards Placed Under Separate Organization — Membership Fee Is $1 a Person.

When the Christmas roll of the American Red Cross is called, it is expected that half a million men, women and children in the St. Louis district will answer "Here!" This is the number of volunteer members set as the goal of the annual 1919 drive, which will take place in the week of Dec. 16 to 23.

The number is not quite half the total population of the area of the St. Louis chapter, and is more than twice the enrollment of last year, which was 234,176. As in the 1918 campaign, the fee for yearly membership is $1. The St. Louis district embraces this city, East St. Louis and all of St. Louis County except Webster Groves.

An innovation in the coming drive will be the institution of two volunteer days, prior to the opening of the campaign of solicitation. There will be a registrar at every precinct headquarters on Dec. 14 and 15, to whom prospective members may hand in their names and fees. Cards of invitation will be sent by mail to every household on the Tuesday previous, with the instruction: "Go to your precinct headquarters either Saturday or Sunday, take your $1, and give in your name to the registrar in charge. One member of the household take the membership fees ($1 for each volunteer), and give in the names of the whole household, or as many as wish to volunteer."

Special Volunteer Badges.

Everyone taking advantage of this opportunity will receive a special volunteer's badge, in addition to the regular Red Cross membership button and window service flag that go to every member.

On the morning of Dec. 14, that no one may forget, special cards of reminder will be placed in every house by children, either under school or Boy Scout auspices. It is the belief of the managers that this volunteer feature will appeal to the victory spirit of the community, so that the week of solicitation to follow will be something in the nature of just "mopping up."

The force of membership solicitors, it is stated, will total between 8000 and 10,000 men, women and Boy Scouts, and a reserve organization is being formed to provide re-enforcements in case they are needed to put St. Louis again "over the top." No one is limited as to the number of $1 memberships he may purchase.

The four downtown wards, the Fourth, Fifth, Sixth and Seventh, will be placed under a special organization, as in this area is centered the bulk of the city's business enterprise, together with most of the office buildings. In general charge of the four wards will be Judge T. C. Hennings, with R. King Kauffman and L. W. Childrenn as aids. The four ward chairmen are Herbert D. Condie, Frank Houston, Thomas S. McPheeters and Judge Daniel G. Taylor.

The organization for the entire district comprises three different committees—roll call, executive and advisory. Of the first, L. F. Boyd is chairman, S. C. McCluney is vice chairman and F. C. Belser is treasurer.

The Executive Committee includes F. S. Marks, F. C. Belser, I. F. Boyd, A. E. Brocker, L. W. Childrenn, Herbert D. Condie, J. D. Dana, T. C. Hennings, Frank Houston, R. King Kauffman, S. C. McCluney, Thomas S. McPheeters, J. E. Newell, S. I. Rothschild, H. E. Sprague, G. R. Wendling, D. G. Taylor and Mrs. J. L. Mauran.

The Advisory Committee is composed of Mrs. Louis P. Aloe, J. L. Ford Jr., J. L. Mauran, Louis Reidel, H. H. Simmons and C. M. Talbert.

Chairmen of special committees are: East St. Louis, Paul Schlafly; Supplies, E. L. Skinner; Industrial, Warren C. Flynn; Advertising, John Young Brown Jr.; County, W. M. Wright; Speakers, L. L. Leonard; Music, William John Hall; Booths, A. W. Jones Jr.; Publicity, F. Y. Anderson.

Ward chairmen are: First, Mrs. David Shuttee; Second, Mrs. P. J. Ludwig; Third, Mrs. John Hoffman; Eighth, Mrs. W. F. Miller; Ninth, Mrs. E. Nirk; Tenth, Mrs. L. Renfrow; Eleventh, J. W. HOW FIRST MISSOURI "GOOD ROADS" JOB HAS BEEN BUNGLED

Post-Dispatch Correspondent Goes Over Old Trails Project in State Engineers' County and Sees Machines Rusting, Much Work Undone.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MINNEOLA, Mo., Dec. 7.—Since the resignation of A. C. McKibbin from the State Highway Commission, and his charge that the good roads program in Missouri had been a failure because of the alleged incompetence of State Highway Engineer A. W. Graham, the Post-Dispatch correspondent has made an investigation of conditions here, where a section of the National Old Trails Road has been under construction by the Highway Department for more than a year. This is also the old home of Engineer Graham and the present residence of his father, and the road here was one of the first designated as a State road by him after he took office. The investigation disclosed the following:

The law provides that where State aid is given, the total cost of construction shall be equally divided between the State and the District. The estimated cost of the road here was $29,929.42. Nearly $25,000 in cash has been spent, of which the State has paid its legal half. In addition, however, the State has furnished more than $10,000 worth of machinery at its own expense; is keeping men on the job and paying all of their salary and expenses, and paid all the cost of making the map and profile, said to be about $1100. Of the money spent, $1550 was donated by the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce.

Road Far From Finished.

The road is far from completed; the funds are almost gone; the Highway Department is preparing to discontinue work, and the people here are criticising the Highway Department vigorously.

The local Road District Commissioners estimate it would cost fully $25,000 more to finish the road according to specifications, and about $15,000 to finish it at all. Meantime, the district's money is nearly all gone, and the State engineer in charge of the work says it will be stopped as soon as the money is gone.

The District Commissioners say if this action is carried out, they will take the matter to the courts to force the Highway Department to complete the road, as, they say, they placed their funds at the State's disposal with the express agreement that the State would complete the construction.

A considerable part of the money expended on construction has paid for building a part of the road along the edge of the farm owned by William A. Graham, father of the Highway Engineer.

Begun on Own Initiative.

While the Hawes road law, which created the Highway Department, provides that districts desiring State aid shall make application to the Highway Engineer, the correspondent found that the work here was started first, that several months later an application was sent to the District Commissioners to be signed and sent in, and that it never was sent in. The Secretary of the District Commission still has the blank application.

This commission, formed in 1911, had built roads by private subscription. Immediately after the creation of the State Highway Department in March, 1917, the commission called an election and voted $8900 of road bonds, which was its limit. The District Commissioners are D. D. Baker, president; J. B. Tate, secretary and treasurer, and Edward Cole.

Baker said: "Soon after we voted the bonds, the State Highway Commission called on us, and agreed to give us State aid if we would turn over the bond money and let them have entire charge of building the road. They said the job required engineering and scientific knowledge, and that they proposed to make the road a monument to the Highway Department. Well, we feel that they have.

"We are only farmers here, and don't know anything about engineering, but we had a considerably better road in some places than we have now. We know better than to plow up a good dirt road and then not put any rock on it. And we know that rock won't stay on a curved bed unless the dirt is shouldered up along the sides to keep it from washing into the ditch."

Used Prison Labor.

The road was surveyed in the summer of 1917 by Kirk McFarland, a Highway Department engineer. McKibbin then got the arrangement whereby convicts were put to work on the road, and the first prison "honor camp" was established at Mineola. Construction started in September, 1917, with W. E. Barnes, selected by Highway Engineer Graham, as superintendent. He was supplanted in December by P. D. Thurmond, who remained in charge until June. Alfred Riske was then in charge two months, followed by R. H. Kunz, who lasted a month. McFarland, the engineer, who made the original survey, has been in charge since the middle of September.

The clause in the law which provides that the State shall bear half the expense specifically states that this includes the cost of preliminary survey, maps and profiles.

McKibbin and former Assistant Highway Engineer J. P. Davis told the reporter that the cost of the original survey, maps and profiles was about $1100. The records show that the only part of this borne by the district was $282.45, for McFarland's salary and expenses and for labor.

Salaries Being Paid.

The reporter found that McFarland is getting $150 a month and expenses; R. H. Hall, in charge of a grading outfit, $150 a month and board, and R. H. Kunz, in charge of tractor, $100 a month and board, all of which is paid by the State. McFarland drew $100 in October for expenses, making a monthly total for the three, exclusive of Kunz' and Hall's board, of $400, all paid by the State. The district books show that the total amount paid out for labor and hauling in Octiber was $502.26, divided between tSate and district. Thus the State is paying $251 a month for actual labor, and $400 to the men in charge of it. Most of the work is done by convicts, who get $1.50 a day.

No rental ever has been paid by the district for the machinery, much of which has never been used. The reporter found expensive road-making devices rusting at the side of the road.

Of the eight and a half miles, two and a half have had no rock or gravel whatever. McFarland admitted that no part of the road that is considered finished has been built according to specifications, which provided for two five-inch coats of rock or gravel of a certain size, to be rolled to a thickness of four inches each. There never has been a roller or a screen on the road, McFarland said.

The road begins two and a half miles east of Danville, proceeds to Mineola, which is two miles west of Danville, and thence to the Callaway County line, four miles west of Mineola. Danville and Mineola each have a population of less than 100.

William A. Graham sold a 30-foot strip of right of way along the edge of his farm to the County Court in November, 1916, for $206.70, at the rate of $75 an acre. It is given a "full valuation" on the county tax books of $24.29 an acre. This, however, was before A. W. Graham became State Highway Engineer. This was the first place on the entire length where grading was started when Engineer Graham took charge of the construction.

Ben Graham, a cousin of W. A. Graham, shortly afterward donated to the State a right of way 40 feet wide and 200 yards long, considered the best farm land in that locality, and valued by other farmers at $150 an acre. Ben Graham also fenced the right of way at his own expense and has given the Highway Department 6000 loads of gravel.

The reporter found that, on the four miles west of Mineola, gravel had been spread on in four different spots, ranging in length from 150 feet to more than a mile. The longer stretch was that passing William Graham's farm. Other parts of the road had been dug up at three different places, more than six months ago, in preparation for graveling, but much of it had not been graveled, and the trenched-out surface had filled up and become corrugated with ruts. In one place was a mudhole 150 feet long.

So far as the cost of material is concerned, the reporter found that all the rock and gravel that has been used was given, free of charge, by Mineola farmers.

Early in the summer last year, when nearly all the bond money had been spent, and one part of the road having become impassable from lack of rolling stock, the District Commissioners stopped payments on construction bills, and went to Jefferson City to see the Highway Board. Commissioner Cole and Stanley Gregory, a Mineola farmer, who had led the movement for good roads in that district, also visited Gov. Gardner. They say hepromised them that the Highway Department had to complete that road.

As a result of the visit, one of the State men was ordered to load a heavy truck with rock, and run it over the impassable place until it was packed down enough for traffic to go over it. To relieve the financial situation, McKibbin went out into the counties along the Old Trails road and raised $4754, including $1550 donated by the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, and $500 by Montgomery County, in which the road is. Kansas City civic organizations also contributed.

The reporter, in traveling over the road, found a foreman superintending the work of one convict. The foreman was getting $3 a day and the convict laborer, $1.50. McFarland, when asked about it, said only one man was needed to do that work. In reply to a question, he said that this foreman, listed on the books as a "straw boss," had never had charge of more than three convicts at one time.

About three months ago, it was decided to widen the right-of-way east of Mineola. Farmers agreed to set their fences back, on condition, they say, that the right-of-way should be widened all along the road. It was so widened, with the exception of that part running through Ben Graham's farm.

Ben Graham told the reporter that the agreement was made without his knowledge, and that the other farmers had begun setting their fences back before Highway Engineer Graham ever consulted him about it. The expense of moving the fences was borne by the farmers themselves, and the Kinloch Telephone Co. also moved back its poles along the road.

The law provides that the right of way of State roads must not be less than 40 feet wide. The reporter measured the right of way at two points where the road runs between the farms owned by Ben Graham and his mother, and found it 37 feet wide at one point, and 37½ feet at another.

Graham's Explanation of Mineola Road Project Operations.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 7.—State Highway Engineer Graham told a Post-Dispatch reporter here that men and machinery were sent to Mineola by the Highway Department because the Prison Board, which should furnish the machinery, did not have the necessary funds. He admitted that the Mineola Road District did not pay any part of the cost of making maps and profiles, which, he said, was about $400.

He disclaimed responsibility for the condition of the road, saying that McKibbin "made him get off the job" last year, and took personal control himself. Gov. Gardner and the Highway Board insisted that work be started at Mineola, against Graham's judgment, Graham said. The first grading was done in front of his father's farm, he said, "because at point the most dangerous features of the old road were to be eliminated."

Cold weather would soon put a stop to the work, he said, and he believed that sufficient funds would be available to continue work until then. He thought it would be resumed next year, but didn't know where the money was to be had. He said the original estimate of the cost of the work was $40,000. The blank application which was sent by his department to the Mineola commissioners, however, gave the estimate as $3521.12 a mile, a total of $29,929.42.

Gov. Gardner says he does not remember telling Cole and Gregory the department had to complete the Mineola road, but that he might have, upon inquiry, said the board "would finish the work."

McKibbin, when Graham's statement was shown to him, said: "It is ridiculous for him to try to unload his blunders on me," and he cited a passage from the road law which states:

"All road and bridge construction done under the provisions of this act shall be under the supervision and control of the State Highway Engineer." McKibbin continued:

"The facts are that he sent men and machinery, at the State's expense, to his home town, and still couldn't get the job done. That was one of the reasons I asked him to resign.

"The Mineola people were reasonable; there was enough money to do the work, and it should have been done. The reason it was not done was that the Highway Engineer was not competent to do it."

KNABE AMPICO
Reproducing Piano

My Dear Mr. Conroy: December 7, 1918.

My new Knabe Ampico Piano is the joy of my life. It has helped me wonderfully in rehearsing my songs and practicing my dances by making me entirelly independent of an accompanist.

Then, too, it is a musical education in itself. My work at the theater leaves very little time for attendance at concerts and recitals by the best artists, but the Ampico brings them all to me. In the privacy of my own home I may hear at will Hofmann, Godowsky, Ornstein and the rest of them. Cordially Yours,

EDNA HIBBARD.

CITY PLEDGES $12,500 FOR AERIAL MAIL SITE

Offer Made on Condition That Chamber of Commerce Gives Same Amount.

Half of the $25,000 required to grade the site selected in Forest Park as an aerial mail terminus was pledged yesterday by Mayor Kiel on behalf of the city, on condition that the remainnig half is underwirtten by the Chamber of Commerce. Hangars also must be constructed.

Recommendations to the Chamber of Comerce that it take this action were promised by John Ring Jr., president of the Adevritsing Clubs and W. B. Weisnberger, director of publicity for the Chambar of Commerce, at a conference with Mayor Kiel and Postmaster Selph. The Postmaster asserted speedy action must be taken if St. Louis is to be a terminal point and not a waystation in the projected national system of aerial mail.

It happened that the city had on hand $12,500 which was appropriated for "advertising purposes." Mayor Kiel held that the aeroplane landing in the park would legitimately serve this purpose. Ring at first objected to using the sum for that end, unless he could be assured that a similar amount would be appropriated for the ensuing year, beginnig next April, also to be used for advertising purposes.

As one member of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, the Mayor assured him that he would vote for such an item in the budget. Comptroller Nolte, another member, was called in, but declined to commit himself, saying that with the imminent big loss of revenue from dramshop licenses, the city might not have the money to spare.

Then the Mayor telephoned to the third member of the board, President Aloe of the Board of Aldermen, who promised to give his vote for the appropriation. With a majority of two to one assured, Ring consented to request the Chamber of Commerce to supply the required $12,500.

The field is a tract 1700 feet long and 1200 feet wide, lying west of the Mounted Police District and north of Forest Park Highlands.

2 POLICEMEN TO APPEAL FROM DECISION THAT THEY RESIGNED

To Ask That They Be Permitted to Stand Trial on Charges Against Them.

John J. Mealey and Morris Silverman, whose application to compel the Board of Police Commissioners to reinstate them as Sergeants of Police was denied by Circuit Judge Klene, on the ground that the plaintiffs had orally resigned from the Police Department Oct. 18, when Chief of Police Young, Capts. Pickle and Hess and Sergt. Phillips were suspended, announced yesterday that they will file an application for another hearing.

Speaking in their own behalf, they said that the Board of Police Commissioners, in their case, had departed from a time-honored custom and had established a precedent in demanding their resignations at a time when, as the President of the board announced, "serious charges" had been preferred against them.

In the past, Mealey and Silverman said, when a policeman was under charges, he was not permitted to resign, and in the event he did not apepar for trial, he was carried on the Police Board records as having "resigned while under charges."

The men insist that they did not resign, and maintain that if the Police Board has any charges against them they should be permitted to stand trial.

COFFEE SHORTAGE IN U. S. PREDICTED BY ASSOCIATION

National Organization Sends Petition for Lifting of Restrictions to Washington.

Asserting that the United States is facing a coffee shortage and greatly increased prices despite the fact that the coffee supply in Brazil is greater than in any previous year, the National Coffee Growers' Association, which met in Cleveland last Thursday, places responsibility for this condition on the failure of the Food Administration to lift regulations imposed to keep the price unchanged during the war period.

The restrictions, the association says, have placed the dealers in this country at the mercy of the coffee industry in the United States." A petition asking that the restrictions be lifted was sent to the Food Administrator in Washington by the association.

Foreign interests have been left free to advance prices to the extreme, the ptition assrts, and already there has been a radical increase in the cost of roasted coffee to the consumer. Unless means are taken to check this advance, the normal price of coffee will be more than doubled, dealers assert.

MOTORIST EXONERATED BY JURY

Verdict of Accident Returned in Death of 91-Year-Old Pedestrian.

A verdict of accident was returned yesterday by a Coroner's jury at the inquest of the case of Theodore Mueller, 91 years old, 6749 Alabama avenue, who died Thursday from injuries suffered the day before when struck by an automobile truck driven by George Gebhardt, 6317 Virginia avenue, at Virginia avenue and Quincy street.

It was shown at the inquest that Mueller was "jay walking" and that the street was not well lighted where he attempted to cross in front of the truck. Gebhardt, who was arrested after the accident, was exonerated of all blame.

1000 MEN DAILY ARE LEAVING CAMP. FUNSTON

Tenth Division Will Be Kept Intact Until Independent Units Are Gone.

By the Associated Press.

CAMP FUNSTON, Kan., Dec. 7.—Demobilization of forces here now is proceeding at the rate of about 1000 men a day, but it is apparent that the Tenth Division, whose training only recently was completed, is to be retained intact, at least until the other independent units in camp have been mustered out. A number of orders for the discharge of men in these miscellaneous units have been received, the largest number affected by any one order being the Sixty-fifth Pioneer Regiment, composed of negro road builders. This order called for the discharge of 5000 men this week.

Men found physically unfit will be retained in camp until they are again in normal health and condition. Equipment is being checked carefully as the men leave camp, only an allotment of clothing being allowed each man, and he is under specific instructions that he must return every article of clothing to the Commissary Department not later than three months from the day he is mustered out. To those who so desire it, money advanced on Liberty Bonds being purchased on the installment plan, is being refunded upon departure from camp.

Camp officials say 1000 men a day probably will be the maximum for releasing the men, and that this pace will not be maintained for any considerable length of time.

The problem of providing railroad equipment to carry the men to their home states has been solved. A field clerk is now stationed at the mustering out barracks. His duty is to record the destination and hour of departure of each man. These records are delivered to the passesnger agents of the Union Pacific, the only railroad line into Funston. Destinations are classified and proper notice given to each connecting line which will catch a part of the traffic.

Dischcarged soldiers may buy railroad tickets on the day of their discharge at the rate of 2 cents a mile, from the point of discharge to the point of enlistment or induction. This applies to regular day-coach travel, and also there is a slight reduction for tourist sleepers.

Robbed by Five Men.

Ferdinand Feeler, 65 years old, 1905 Paul street, was taken to the city hospital with a fractured nose, scalp wounds and lacerations of the face at 1 a. m., yesterday, after he had been robbed by five young men as he stepped from an owl car at Eleventh and Hickory streets. He told police the men took a diamond ring, a watch and $43.

RHEUMATIC PAINS

Can be relieved. Don't suffer any longer. In 1864 a wonderful remedy for rheumatism and gout was discovered by a well known physician. This now famous medicine is known as Prescription A-2851.

The extensive and ever growing output of A-2851 (nearly 60,000 bottles sold annually) and the many letters of gratitude we have received are proof positive of its great efficacy and strength. Contains no opiates or narcotic drugs in any form. Pleasant tasting. If every other treatment has failed give Prescription A-2851 a trial and watch results. At your druggist's.

WARRANT FOR BOGUS MAJOR

Stephen H. Cordill Going to New York on Embezzlement Charge.

A fugitive warrant charging the embezzlement of $246.72 by Stephen H. Cordill, who was posing as a Major in the army when arrested at Hotel Statler Nov. 13, arrived here yesterday from New York and Cordill announced that he would waive extradition and return to face the charge. It is alleged that, after he was dishonorably discharged as a First Lieutenant in the army, May 1, last, he continued to cash pay vouchers.

When arrested he was with Miss Janet Woodworth, 16 years old, of 5890 Delmar boulevard, whom he had bigamously married at Dallas, Tex., Oct. 23, not telling her that he had a wife in San Antonio. Neither his wife nor the girl have shown a desire to prosecute him for bigamy, however.

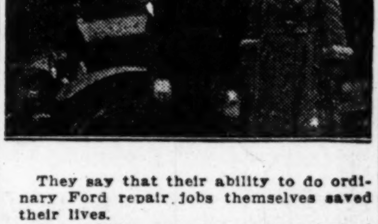
FORD CAR WRECK AVERTED

Ford Tourists Narrowly Avoid Tragedy on Mountain Grade

Tragedy, on a dangerous mountain road, nearly ended the trans-continental Ford tour of Mr. and Mrs. George Hunter, Philadelphia.

The Hunters found themselves gaining headway down a grade so steep that a smash-up seemed certain. At last, however, the loose brakes brought the Ford to a stop. The Hunters shakily got out, eased the car to safety and adjusted their brakes.



They say that their ability to do ordinary Ford repair jobs themselves saved their lives.

This ability can be easily acquired through a valuable book, which tells in a simple way how to overcome Ford troubles, make repairs and reduce running expenses. This book, "Ford Care and Home Repairs," is being distributed free to readers by Ford Owners Magazine 623 Montgomery Bldg., Milwaukee, Wis. and also contains a chart showing what you should pay for any work done by your repairman. Send 25 cents in coin for a three months' subscription and get this valuable book free.—ADV

6639 NEW INFLUENZA CASES HERE LAST WEEK

Total Was New Record—263 Influenza and 110 Pneumonia Deaths During Week.

The number of new cases of influenza in St. Louis last week was 6639, which was 2259 greater than the number of the week previous, which had a total of 4280, at that time the largest since the start of the emergency.

The number of deaths from influenza last week was 263, which was 100 greater than the week previous. Deaths from pneumonia last week were 110, compared to 94 the week previous.

The number of new cases reported during the 24 hours preceding yesterday noon was 727, compared to 973 for the 24-hour period on Friday. The total number of cases since the start of the emergency now is 27,360.

There were 39 deaths from influenza and 21 pneumonia reported between 5 p. m., Friday and yesterday noon. The number of deaths from 5 p. m., Thursday to 5 p. m., Friday was 55 from influenza, which was the largest 24-hour period since the start of the disease. In addition there were 19 pneumonia deaths in that period. The death total now is 1378 from influenza and 631 from pneumonia.

High schools will reopen tomorrow for instruction of those students in the two upper classes, most of whom are over 16 years of age.

Health Commissioner Starkloff yesterday said that the increased number of deaths the last two days was a reflection of the large increase in the number of cases which began week before last and that it did not represent the situation now, which, from yesterday's figures, on new cases, is improving.

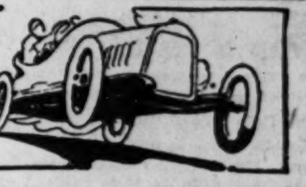
AUTOMOBILE NEWS



CAR BUILDING WILL BE SLOW UNTIL 1920

As the largest manufacturers of passenger automobiles were largely engaged in war work, some of them to the full capacity of their plants, and had almost ceased manufacture of automobiles, it is not to be expected that the output of cars will be normal before about the middle of next year.

On June 30, 1918, there were 5,-566,931 motor vehicles registered in the United States, of which fully 5,-000,000 were passenger cars. Ordinary wear and tear would eliminate about half a million of these in normal times, but probably most of the old cars have been kept in service and will be retired as rapidly as new cars can be obtained to take their place.

There still exists a shortage of iron, steel and other materials used in motor cars and the demands of other industries that have been curtailed will be large. The facts, therefore, indicate that new car production will hardly catch up with demand until 1920.

McCrea With Cadillac Co.

Bert L. McCrea, otherwise, Robert L. McCrea, who is one of the best known automobile salesmen in St. Louis, and whose connection in the trade in the sale of one of the highest class cars dates back 15 or 16 years, has attached himself to the sales force of the Cadillac Automobile Co., according to the announcement made by President I. G. McNiece of that company. McCrea has been a figure in the motor car business of St. Louis, where his genial manners and hearty laugh are familiar and welcome both among dealers and car owners.

Joseph N. Kellerman, formerly special representative of a well known automobile company has rejoined the sales force of the Cadillac Automobile Co., with which he was connected for several years.

Oakland at Full Capacity.

W. H. Masters, general sales manager of the Oakland Motor Car Co., spent a few days last week with the Mississippi Valley Motor Co. Speaking of production, Mr. Masters said that the Oakland factory at the present time was turning out 100 cars a day and that by January 1 it would go to 150 cars. This is almost the pre-war volume. The newly reduced prices are the direct result of the ability of the Oakland factory to resume quantity production in this short space of time.

PRE-WAR PRICES ON MITCHELL CARS

"One of the first industries in the country to accommodate itself to war conditions, the automobile business bids fair to lead the field in peace-time readjustment," says Vice President R. C. Rueschaw of the Mitchell Motors Co., Inc., of Racine, Wis., in a letter to the Mitchell Automobile Corporation of St. Louis.

"Not only were automobile manufacturers quick to adapt themselves to the economic changes brought on by the war, but the swinging over of vast factories from automobile to munitions production was accomplished in an almost miraculously short time. Similarly, now that peace is with us and we can return to automobile building, no time is being lost in changing over.

"In the Mitchell plant, where we were on practically 100 war work, with giant Government trucks as our chief product, we are getting back to passenger car production as rapidly as circumstances will permit.

"Working day-in, day-out, under the exacting requirements of the strictest kind of Government inspection, our men have learned to do better work than even they thought themselves capable of. Certainly this improvement shows itself plainly in the cars we are now building. The boys haven't forgotten how to do good work!

"With the changes in the automobile manufacturing program, mentioned above, a somewhat unsettled market is inevitable and most manufacturers are now more interested in stabilizing the market than in immediate profits. In our case, we are reducing our prices to a pre-war basis, sacrificing our profit, in order to help steady the situation against the time when all the changes will be made and values settle down to a normal level."

No Change in Dodge Prices.

The Tate-Gillham Motor Car Co., is in receipt of a letter from the Dodge Brothers' factory which states in no uncertain terms that the prices on the Dodge Brothers' car will remain unchanged during the selling season of 1918 and 1919. This, Mr. Tate says, will have a very stabilizing effect as it has been a question in many peoples' minds what policy Dodge Brothers would adopt. Mr. Tate further points out that in four years' time the Dodge Brothers have only made an advance in price of $300 and in that same period have added more than 60 changes and readjustments to the car, each of which cost additional money and increased the actual motor car value.

Instal Starter Same Day.

After a visit to St. Louis of H. C. Pickering, general sales manager of the Heine Springfield Electric Starter Co., George Holthaus of the Holthaus Saddlery & Auto Supplies Co., announced that in the future Ford owners would be able to secure immediate delivery on these starters.

There have been practically no shipments from the factory for the past eight months and it is only within the last 30 days that delivery has been resumed.

Mr. Holthaus, by transferring a large portion of the wholesale business including out of town shipments to the Sixth street house, has greatly increased the space available for service at the Locust street branch. The installation of starters can be made on four or six cars at one time. Special arrangements have been made whereby a car left in the morning can be taken in the evening with the starter completely installed.

Exports of Auto Horses.

P. D. Barbour, St. Louis sales manager of the One-Wheel Truck Co., of St. Louis started Wednesday for an extended trip through the southern states in the interest of his company.

The One-Wheel Truck Co. has shipped one of its Auto Horses to Vancouver, B. C., and one to Sidney, Australia. Orders for five of them have been received from Morroco, S. W. Africa.

Limited Chandler Production.

Chandler production will be limited throughout the winter. This is the message brought to the Lewis Automobile Co., by James M. Dunlap, general sales manager of the Chandler Motor Car Co., who was here last week.

There is no outlook at the present time for a reduction in Chandler prices in the near future. Mr. Dunlap explained that material was very scarce and high prices still prevailed. The labor situation has not changed with the resumption of peace work and cost of living is adjusted to a lower plane. With these conditions he could not promise any readjustment of Chandler prices until the actual cost of manufacture is lowered.

Battery Service for Life.

The Permalife Battery Service Co., 2127 Locust street, is finding difficulty in meeting the demands of owners who are seeking permanent and certain battery service. Their proposition is unusual. With the Permalife battery they give life-term service, making a nominal annual charge for the exchange of batteries. This gives the car owner a new battery every time a recharge is needed, this constituting the life-time service. The Permalife battery itself is one of the highest class storage batteries manufactured.

Economy in Truck Operation

Demonstrated by Packard Truck Efficiency Test

IN THE month of August alone, 9 truck drivers, under instruction of the Packard Freight Transportation Department, saved 1,638 gallons of gasoline.

On this basis, the 400,000 trucks in the United States would save some 96,000,000 gallons of gasoline per year.

By better handling of merchandise they saved in hauling expense an average of $58 per month—or $696 per year per truck.

On this ratio, transportation principles applied fully to 400,000 trucks would save American business $278,-400,000 every year.

Ton-mile costs were decreased.

Loads carried were increased at times 21 per cent—which means that the 400,000 trucks could do the work of 484,000 trucks, simply by applying modern business methods to loading and routeing.

The truck owner, the truck driver, is trying to get more work out of his truck, and at lower cost.

But beyond a certain point, he is apt to feel baffled—apt to feel that he might go further if he only knew where else to save.

What he really wants to do is to apply modern business methods to his trucking.

The performance of a motor truck depends on several factors—

The truck—its efficiency as a mechanism.

The load and the road conditions.

How the truck is handled on the road and in the garage; and how much time is lost in loading and unloading.

Choice of the truck in relation to its load has a great deal to do with it.

One of the worst fallacies the business world has to contend with is the practice of guessing at the size of truck needed.

Trucks should be bought for the job—on the advice of people who are competent to advise.

The trucks you have in service today are probably capable of 20 to 50 per cent more service than they are giving you.

What you need to do is to operate them on modern business methods. The Freight Transportation Department of your local Packard Branch or Packard Dealer will be glad to show you how—without charge.

Some Results of Packard 100% War Work

It was a Packard Truck loaded with machine gun ammunition that enabled the U. S. Marines to put the final punch into their fight at Chateau Thierry.

A Captain of the U. S. A. Motor Transport Corps, speaking at a recent Victory meeting in Detroit to recruit men for the Motor Transport Corps, stated that 14 per cent of Pershing's entire force is engaged in motor transport duty.

"If I could tell you the number of trucks under the American Flag over-seas," he said, "there would be a lot of thunderstruck people.

"Chateau Thierry was the turn of the tide," he said. "The Marines, who were smashing the last German offensive, were running short of machine gun ammunition.

"Their commander telephoned back for more.

"The motor transport commander called for four volunteers from among his 90 trucks—and every driver volunteered.

"He chose four, loaded the trucks with 50,000 rounds apiece of machine gun bandolier ammunition, and they set out—four trucks made in Detroit, turned out of the Packard factory just a few months before.

"Three of them were caught in the German barrage and their cargoes blown up and their drivers killed.

"The fourth made his way through with the priceless 50,000 rounds that put the finishing touch on the American victory at Chateau Thierry.

"The driver made his way back to the transport park, and reported in these words: 'Sergeant ——reports, Sir, the delivery of 50,000 rounds, and requests permission to make another trip.'"

Cole Is Reduced $300.

An announcement outlining the 1918-1919 sales and production policy of the Cole Motor Car Co., of Indianapolis, has just appeared.

First, the company announces that it has been able to take instant advantage of the Government's removal of restrictions on passenger car production and will increase its output immediately to double that which it was able to maintain during the war.

Coincident with this doubling of output the Cole company announces that restoration of former prices by a reduction of $300 in the present list price of its cars.

Haynes Plans for 1919.

The Haynes Automobile Co. will continue to build both six-cylinder and 12-cylinder automobiles, increasing production of both as fast as plant capacity is released from war work, according to an announcement just made by A. G. Seiberling, general manager of the company, to the Wilson Motor Car Co. of St. Louis.

All models are to be built with 127-inch wheel base and the stanch six-inch frame which has been a feature of Haynes construction for the past year will be continued. Five body types are offered in both the six-cylinder and 12-cylinder lines. They are the "Fourdore," a roomy four-passenger roadster with four doors; a seven-passenger touring car, seven-passenger four-door sedan, four-passenger coupe and a limousine.

Tube Served 13 Years.

Tucked away inside the big outer casing, the inner tube of a tire usually attracts little attention until something goes wrong with it. It is then that the autoist realizes its importance.

The inner tubes made by the United States Rubber Co., have played an important part in establishing the high reputation of United States tires.

One of the most remarkable performances ever recorded for an inner tube is that reported by J. E. Tucker of Anderson, Ind. In 1910, Mr. Tucker come into possession of a United States inner tube which had as a matter of positive record already been run five years. He put the tube on a single cylinder Cadillac in 1912 and used it constantly until late this year, when he was forced to remove it on account of a slow leak in a place that had been repaired.

New Willys-Knight Sedan.

T. L. Hausmann of the Overland Auto Co., Willys-Overland dealer, has received a bit of news from the factory to which he has been looking forward with keen interest. It is an announcement that owing to the War Industries Board's partial lifting of restrictions on passenger car production, deliveries have been started on the new Willys-Knight sedan.

According to Mr. Hausmann, who received photographs and detailed description of the new model from the factory some time ago, the car is an exceptionally attractive one both in appearance and appointments, and he is not at all sure that with his comparatively small allotment of this particular model he will be able to keep one on his salesroom floor very long at a time.

Allen Prices Down $100.

A reduction of $100 each on the Allen touring car and Sedan is announced. The output of the Allen plants was reduced by war contracts, and the release of this equipment was the signal for a revised manufacturing program on an enlarged scale for the coming year.

"We hardly expect," W. O. Allen stated in a letter to Joseph A. Schlecht, the local Allen dealers, "to get things going again fast enough to take care of the spring buyers, but we assure you that every effort will be made to get back to 100 per cent production as quickly as possible.

"With production mounting steadily our manufacturing costs will be proportionately less, and we feel that the present buyers should share in the benefits of this saving."

Indestructible Battery Jar.

The Exide factory is constantly working to improve the construction and wearing qualities of each and every part going into storage battery construction. One evidence of this work has just reached St. Louis in the form of a new rubber jar for industrial trucks, mine locomotives and other classes of severe service. H. B. Marshall, local manager of the Exide now has samples of these jars and it is interesting to note that they will not break even when laid on the side and a 200-pound man stands on them.

This is probably one of the most important advances in storage battery development and is probably the most important one that has been made since the "Ironclad-Exide" type was developed.

Goodyear's Enormous Sales.

The annual meeting of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., Akron, O., held at the company's offices, Dec. 2, 1918, showed gross sales for the fiscal year ending Oct. 31 amounted to $131,000,000, an increase of $20,000,000 over the previous year. Net profits for the year were $15,388,190.74 as against $14,044,216.10 for the preceding year, subject to Government war tax, the amount of which is not yet determined.

President F. A. Seiberling, in his report to stockholders stated that approximately 15 per cent of the company's total volume for the year had been Government business, upon which but a very low percentage of profit, if any at all, had been made.

Marmon Gets French Order.

France, the creator of the motor car, paid a signal honor to the Nordyke & Marmon Co., when in the midst of the world conflict, she placed orders for several hundred Marmon 34s for the use of the French General Staff. Confronted by the need of cars which could measure up to the varied and exacting requirements of the staff, the French High Commission to America learned of the Marmon 34s fine record in the United States army active service test in the Great Bend District of Mexico. An investigation of the merits of the car for unremitting service under most adverse circumstances proved favorable and an order was given.

Franklin to Change Prices.

Word has been received by F. W. Wolffe, manager of Franklin agency, that Government work on the Hispano-Suiza airplane engine has been discontinued by the Franklin Automobile Co., and contracts on the Rolls-Royce airplane engines are being completed.

Production on Franklin cars has already been resumed and prices have been readjusted to a peace-time basis.

This, says Manager Wolffe, will be good news to many motorists who have been deeply impressed by the war-time performance of the Franklin, and as it is impossible to reach some of these by other means than in the news columns, he proposes to make some very interesting and important announcements, in the next few days, in the newspapers.

Paint and Depreciation.

"A new coat of paint for a motor car is just as essential as an overhaul of the engine," says H. F. Fahrenkrog of the Kardell Motor Car Co., the local dealer for Dort cars.

"The outward appearance of an automobile and the condition of the body and chassis plays a large part in determining the value of the car. These days when it behooves every automobile owner to keep the value of his car up to its highest figure, this is especially true."

Equipped Salesmen's Cars.

Two more St. Louis business houses have equipped fleets of Fords with the U. & J. carburetor, according to L. B. Tebbetts of L. B. Tebbetts & Co., distributers in Missouri and Southern Illinois. They are the Valier and Spies Milling Co., and the David Nicholson Grocer Co. The former has installed five U. & J.'s and the latter, four, on salesmen's roadsters in each case.

Buda's Record in France.

All that the gasoline engine has done to help win this war may never be known generally, according to Lon R. Smith, sales manager of the Buda Co., of Harvey, Ill., there will never be a more brilliant page in history than that written about the achievements of the internal combustion engine on the fields of France.

Mr. Smith states that the information which is coming to them about the part their own particular product played in the war is, of course, only a small degree of the grand record made by the American transport, but he feels that it does throw a light on the situation in general.

"Our vice president, Mr. L. M. Viles, tells me that, from figures recently compiled, our Buda engine went to France 15,000 strong," he said. "It is hardly possible that at this time complete figures are available on the total number of trucks used over seas, but when it is considered that in our case we supplied something like 525,000 horse power, it is safe to say that the total horse power effort behind our men in France ran easily up into the millions.

Wants It as an Heirloom.

F. E. Slason, owner of the famous "Hyatt Roller," the Buick car with a mileage record of more than 270,000 miles on its original Hyatt bearings to its credit, has received many flattering offers for the relic but has refused to sell, preferring to retain it as an heirloom to be handed down to his 2-year-old son, Charles.

The "Hyatt Roller," the world's champion long distance car, which has traveled more than 270,000 miles on its original Hyatt bearings, has used up more than 300 tires, worth $8000.

PAIGE
The Most Beautiful Car in America

Proof of quality lies in the reputation a motor car has won after many years of public service.

It rests also in public confidence—the firm belief in the honest value of that product under any and all manufacturing and selling conditions.

The extraordinary demand for cars that now confronts the Paige is extremely gratifying and proves once more that the Paige—in War-Time or in Peace-Time—holds its place as the best dollar-for-dollar value in its field.

This popular clamor for Paige cars is, however, somewhat embarrassing. It will be several months before our factory can reach normal production. There is no magic wand to transform War-Time plants into Peace-Time plants over night.

We are forced, therefore, to ask your patience and indulgence. We are doing our utmost.

We suggest that for your protection you file your order for a Paige car at once, so that there may be as little delay in delivery as possible.

Back to Pre-War Prices
But Only for a While, We Fear

The Mitchell Company today announces a daring short-time policy.

Tomorrow we go back to Pre-War Prices. Back to $1,275 for the 40-horsepower Six—back to $1,525 for the 48-horsepower. Back to former prices on the latest styles of bodies, open and enclosed.

That means a reduction of $190 on one model and $210 on the other—an average reduction on open models of $200 per car.

It means that these Sixes—always unmatchable values—are today the sensations of Motordom. The average under-price, compared with other like-size Sixes, is enormous.

It means in today's market a price so low that these great Sixes have no competition in the Light-Six class.

Prices May Go Up

The prices we announce now are experimental. They are based on pre-war costs.

They are possible now because most of the materials we are using were bought at Pre-War Prices. We stocked up heavily two years ago on steels.

Some parts, like tires, are costing much more, but for a few weeks we are going to stand that loss.

We want to see prices get back. Our war work has left us a bigger factory, a greater organization. We want to keep it going full speed. We want places for our soldiers who come back.

So we answer the price question—now in everyone's mind—by cutting off all of the war-time advances. That for a short time, until we see what comes.

But the steels we bought at Pre-War Prices will soon be exhausted. So with leather, so with other things. What these materials will cost after January 1st is yet to be determined.

If they come down—down to Pre-War Prices—we can continue the prices we announce today. If they stay high, our prices must go up.

Judge that for yourself. Our opinion is that Mitchell prices cannot remain this low. And that when they go up, it will be a long, long time before again you see the values that we offer now.

Why Mitchell Advanced

During war-time Mitchell prices advanced much less than others. The average on touring models was $200.

The reason lay in vastly reduced production. We turned our factory on to war work, until in late months we were running almost exclusively on trucks.

Selling costs—ours and dealers'—could not be reduced with output. Nor could overhead cost. So we had to get higher prices.

Then we wanted to keep down demand. National interests required it. As it was, thousands who wanted Mitchells in those war days could not get them.

Today's Transcendent Value

These Mitchell Sixes at these Pre-War Prices—while they last—are by far the greatest values in the Light-Six field today. No rival comes near them. Compared with some, the values are amazing.

In pre-war days, no Sixes of the Mitchell size and power and class sold at Mitchell prices.

Now those values are increased. During this war period we have added many improvements. Our engineers had leisure. They have worked out scores of betterments.

In that time also we have added many able men. And our whole organization has grown more efficient in meeting Government exactions.

We were never equipped as today to build great cars. So these Pre-War Prices now are buying better than pre-war cars.

A 16-Year Attainment

The Mitchell Sixes of today mark a 16-year attainment. All we have learned, all we have evolved, in those 16 years are in them.

They are built in a mammoth model plant—in a plant which is famed for its efficiency and methods. In a plant where we build complete cars—chassis and bodies—in the most scientific way.

At tomorrow's prices—while those prices last—they offer sensational values. Our belief is that the prices cannot last. It will be long, we think, before anyone can match them—in this factory or anywhere.

Come see the cars and talk the matter over.

Hesitant Motor Car Buyers!

There are only FOUR factors which could probably cause a REDUCTION IN PRICE OF MOTOR CARS during the next half year

ANALYZE THEM FOR YOURSELF

(1) Will the Price of Materials Decrease?

ANSWER: The MATERIALS for the next season's production must be CONTRACTED FOR AT ONCE and at PRESENT PRICES. Steel is high—Parts makers are swamped with orders—Material costs can not be reduced at this time.

(2) Will the Cost of Labor Be Lowered?

ANSWER: The cost of LABOR will not decline until the high cost of living is reduced. It will be months before the supply of labor equals the demand. Until then labor cost will not come down.

(3) Can Quality Be Reduced?

ANSWER: Emphatically, NO! Past standards must be maintained. Cheaper matersals or less efficient labor cannot be used. This will not remedy the situation.

(4) Have Motor Car Prices Increased OUT-OF-PROPORTION to the Increased Cost of Manufacturing!

ANSWER: In SOME cases this is true and those cars are now adjusting their prices downward to an EQUITABLE FIGURE; but those cars which were PRICED RIGHT during the war cannot be reduced in price until manufacturing costs are reduced.

We wish that conditions were different and that we could promise lower prices in the near future; but THESE ARE FACTS THAT CAN NOT BE REFUTED. There is nothing to be GAINED by waiting, except the LOSS of the comfort, convenience and utility of a car during the Winter and Spring.

Truck Cost Forms Free.

The Federal Motor Truck Co. of St. Louis will furnish to any truck owner who requests them, record forms and advice as to the best method of using them in ascertaining what his truck or trucks is doing and costing day by day. The Federal company has had daily record forms and monthly recapitulation sheets printed for the express purpose of supplying them without charge to truck owners, this being in line with the Government's request that all transportation facilities be speeded up. Use of such forms should result in conservation of gasoline, add to the life of the truck, and increase its working capacity.

AUTO NOTES and GOSSIP.

The Nordyke & Marmon Co., at Indianapolis, Ind., has been officially notified by the Bureau of Aircraft Production that it has been awarded permanent possession of the Champion Liberty Motor Builders' Pennant, which it won last month in competition with four other factories building Liberty motors, General motors, Ford, Lincoln and Packard.

The great automotive occasion in New York this winter will be the Carry-Through Meeting and Victory Dinner of the Society of Automotive Engineers to be held Jan. 12 to 14.

The Holthaus Saddlery and Auto Supplies Co., is distributing a free book on "Automobile Tire Repairing" issued by the Miller Rubber Co. The book is of deep interest to users of tires as well as to repair men.

Owing to the influenza ban, no date, as yet, has been set for the joint meeting of the St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers' & Dealers' Association and the Motor Accessory Trade Association. When this meeting is held it will be one of the most important in the history of the local automobile business.

The International Harvester Co., during January will open a free school on tractors for dealers. This will be a complete course on tractor operation and construction with experts from Chicago as lecturers. A week's course will be given to each class. About the same time, county schools will be opened for county tractor owners in Missouri.

Trucks Open New Timber Lands

"Today, with the increasing scarcity of teams and drivers, to say nothing of the need of tapping timber beyond team haul from a railroad, the motor truck is truly demonstrating its usefulness for the lumberman and logger," says F. H. Harris, general sales manager of the Republic Motor Truck Co., Inc., Alma, Mich., in a letter to the Republic Truck Co. of St. Louis.

"There are millions and millions of feet of the finest quality of hardwood scattered throughout the Middle West and the South that have never been cut because, being located in small blocks and far from railroads, it was impracticable to haul the logs to a railroad or a sawmill. The motor truck has come to the rescue at the psychological moment and is enabling manufacturers to get out this timber. What is true of the hardwood sections also applies with equal force to those parts of the country where spruce and other much wanted timber abounds."

What Becomes of Old Cars?

The usual belief that five years is the average life of an automobile is disproved every once in a while by the turning up of some old-timer still doing business at the old stand after considerably more than that period. A Mitchell, which has been in continuous use for nearly three times its "average" life, has been found in Nebraska.

Shipped from the factory of the Mitchell Motors Co., Inc., at Racine, Wis., in 1904, the car is still giving daily, satisfactory service, according to its owner, R. H. Bunn of Gibbon, Neb. In commenting on the car, Bunn says, "I have had it for about 12 years and would not part with it, for the quality remains long after the price is forgotten. It is good for 100,000 miles yet."

Helping to Build Roads.

The increased load thrown upon the transportation of the country by war needs, has brought the realization of the tremendous economic influence of better roads. Special efforts are being made by the Lincoln Highway officers to speed up work wherever possible and to lay even larger plans for after-the-war work.

The Willis-Overland Co. has just been notified by the Secretary of the Lincoln Association that a large fund given by them is to be expended in facilitating progress on the highway in Wyoming. The particular stretches of road to be built with the assistance of the Overland fund run through Sweetwater and Carbon counties in Wyoming. Z. E. Sevison, the State Highway Engineer of Wyoming, is now making plans so that the work on the road may go forward immediately, the State and counties matching the Overland Fund dollar for dollar.

The road is to be built upon an agreement between the officials of the Willys-Overland Co., the Lincoln highway officers and State and county officials.

This Man Has Cut Tire Cost In Half—

Charles C. Gates, E.M

How Millions of Dollars are Being Saved

You have followed many great industrial advancements.

The bicycle, the automobile and now the truck, and if you are a car owner you have kept pace with the development of tires.

The pneumatic tire has made the automobile of today possible, but it has been the source of more trouble and expense than any other part of your car.

Like every other motorist you have said: "Some day inventive genius will put an end to this."

Your prediction has come true and like many other great inventions it has come out of the necessities of the World War and the genius of an American engineer.

Charles C. Gates, Engineer, has already put millions of dollars back into the pockets of American motorists. The "Half-Sole Tire" is today the wonder of the automobile world—it is revolutionizing the whole tire industry.

Gates has made possible 10,000 to 15,000 miles out of a single set of tires—he has taken ninety per cent of the worry out of driving by putting an end to puncture trouble.

—and still the Gates Half-Sole Tire costs only 1/2 as much as you are now paying for ordinary tires.

Is it any wonder that today more than 350,000 American motorists are using Gates Half-Sole Tires and that the largest business houses in the United States have grasped this saving.

To you and to every car owner this Gates Half-Sole Tire means an outright saving of 1/2 in cost and more—it means better tire service for everybody.

If you are a car owner it will pay you to investigate.

"The Car With the Half-Million-Dollar Motor"

F. O. B. FACTORY

Honest Value— No Camouflage

Briscoe Motor Cars throughout the war-time period maintained its normal pre-war price as a result of keen, but honest, manufacturing methods.

At no time did the Briscoe advance its price by leaps and bounds, thereby taking advantage of "war-time profiteering."

Any manufacturer, who a few weeks ago asked a higher price for his automobile than he does today or will within a reasonable period of time to come, has beyond doubt taken advantage of the public in offering his product at a higher price than it was actually worth.

Briscoe prices have always been based on actual manufacturing cost plus a legitimate margin of profit, thereby offering greater value at less cost than any car in its price class.

Briscoe's cars are 99% factory built, not assembled, thereby eliminating the middleman's profit.

We invite comparison by careful investigation and demonstration.

Attention, Dealers!

We have a limited amount of valuable territory unassigned. If you are interested in selling a car in the Briscoe price class that you can recommend and stand back of—then phone, wire or write us for agency proposition.

"PERFORMANCE COUNTS"

Chasing Father Time in an Auto

"America, prior to her entrance into the war, gave little heed to conservation," said T. L. Hausmann, St. Louis Overland distributer. "But now we have stopped to analyse the food we eat, the clothes we wear and, most important of all, the time we can save.

"Before the war produced unheard-of conditions, it is not surprising that people had paid little attention to these matters. Neither is it to be wondered at that we had never given consideration to the automobile as a great time-saving factor in the industrial world any more than we had thoughtfully considered whether we would use one or two lumps of sugar in our coffee.

"Now—every ounce of energy and every second is vital, and every automobile which is being used to conserve this energy of loyal Americans and allow them to do more in less time is essential.

"To determine just how automobiles are assisting in the conservation of time and energy, the Willys-Overland Co. recently made an investigation, based upon every Overland car which was sold in 1917.

"This survey inquired into the uses to which every one of these automobiles were being put. The result of this investigation, when charted, showed some surprising figures. It indicated that over 80 per cent of automobile use is for business purposes.

"The next great facts, gained at a glance, was that the men whose business depended upon covering a great deal of ground in a short space of time, were its largest purchasers.

"This investigation showed automobiles at work in almost every classification of industry and if this is true of Overland automobiles it is only logical to suppose that the same condition exists generally."

Approve New Taxation.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—"Motor car owners generally will unhesitatingly acquiesce in the revised taxation which the Senate Finance Committee has just placed upon self-propelled vehicles that are now in use," comments President David Jameson of the American Automobile Association, referring to the action of Chairman Simmons and his Senate associates in practically cutting in half the horsepower tax contained in the txation passed by the House of Representatives.

"It was to be expected that the automobile would be included in the things selected for revenue raising, for, while the average car is nine-tenths utility, we must grant that a fraction of its operation is for enjoyment purposes," avers the A. A. A. head. "With the new rates extending from the lower powered cars at $5 and the highest ones at $25, there can be no pronounced objection, especially since the Senate Committee also cut in half the tax on new cars, reducing it from 10 to 5 per cent and took similar action in regard to tires and accessories."

Tourists Slept in Snow.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry R. Lewis of San Francisco have just completed one way of a remarkable transcontinental tour in their three-passenger Dort Fleur de lys roadster. They were 74 days on the road, during which time they traveled 5339 miles without once stopping at a hotel or restaurant for sleeping accommodations or food. The car was never in a garage from start to finish of the trip.

The car was equipped with a complete camping outfit which, of course, included a cooking outfit. For the most part, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis slept in the open, only on 10 nights sleeping under canvas. They enjoyed every minute of the journey.

The transcontinental tourists left San Francisco April 30, and traveled north to Seattle, and then hit the Yellowstone trail. While in Montana they were compelled to make detours aggregating 500 miles, on account of the many washouts along the banks of the Yellowstone River. The floods were caused by the melting of huge quantities of snow and ice on the mountains and water sheds. On this they slept one night in the snow.

Tire Made 25,421 Miles.

Twenty-five thousand miles on a United States Royal Cord tire is no longer an unusual performance, but the manager of a bus line operating in Florida has turned in a record of a Royal Cord which has made 25,421 miles under exceptional circumstances.

This tire was part of the equipment on a 440-pound bus running between Tampa and Lakeland, 165 miles a day over brick, asphalt and clay roads. It ran 8052 miles on a rear wheel before a puncture came. It was then shifted to a front wheel for a run of 7700 miles and again back to the rear where it lasted for 9669 miles more.

The owner of the bus states that he has nine United States tires which have been in use several months and have averaged 15,000 miles each.

The Royal Cord which made the 25,421-mile record has been replaced by another Royal Cord that has already run 20,000 miles.

High Rates Increase Auto Use.

Even more general use of the automobile for business trips than heretofore is the condition foreseen by T. L. Hausmann, local Willys-Overland dealer, as a result of the increased railroad fares .

"Even when figured out on a purely dollar-and-cents basis, travelling by motor car, at least as far as the moderate-sized five-passenger car is concerned, is cheaper per passenger mile than travel by rail," said Mr. Hausmann.

"And on top of this there is the immense saving of time that the automobile effects in getting from town to town without regard to timetables, and the quickness with which it takes you from place to place in town.

"Thousands of people are coming to realize every day the time—and energy-saving advantages of the automobile in their daily work. That's why I look forward to a constantly increasing use of the automobile in business."

A Highly Useful Coupe

For these times of conservative expenditure this new Oakland Sensible Six Coupe is the kind of automobile that contributes to your personal efficiency and thrift by its own extreme usefulness and economy.

Always competent and comfortable in Winter, Spring, Summer and Fall, in rain or sunshine, on boulevard or pike, it makes your automobile dollar buy the most in service and satisfaction.

Powered with the 44 h. p. Oakland engine, very sparing of fuel, and mounted on the sturdy Oakland chassis, it exhibits a rapidity of pick-up, a volume of energy and an ease of control which heightens the enjoyment of its spacious interior.

The low-setting body of this Coupe is unusually convenient to enter, and one is most agreeably impressed with the extra-large doors, broad windows, gray striped upholstery and complete equipment.

Seats three very comfortably, while there is a separate seat for the fourth person in an emergency.

Every Soldier in the Motor Transport Corps Swears by Buda—It Stands the Gaff

WHEN the call came for motor transport in France it was the standard H-U Buda engine which measured up to the Government's requirements, and this standard Buda H-U engine was adopted by the U. S. Government without a single change in its basic design. Buda contributed approximately four hundred and twenty-five thousand unfailing horse power to the winning of the war, by far the largest contribution made by any single maker of heavy duty, slow speed engines. And mind you, every one of the fifteen thousand Buda engines delivered to the United States government was a regular stock standard H-U Buda.

The signing of the armistice increased rather than decreased the need for the standard Buda heavy duty engine.

Due to the fact that the Government required no change in the standard Buda engine, the big Buda plant went from war production to peace production automatically, and without the loss of a single hour.

Standard H-U Buda Features

Four cylinders, 4¼-inch bore by 5½-inch stroke—developing 34.5 h.-p. at 1091 r.p.m. Full pressure lubrication. Heavy duty slow speed type designed exclusively for truck and tractor purposes.

Unquestionably the answer to your power problem, whether in truck or tractor, is the war-tried standard Buda engine

THE BUDA COMPANY, HARVEY, (CHICAGO SUBURB) ILL.

"The Cadillac which I drove in England was the only car for the work I was doing," writes William Mason, now a garage man of Shediac, N. B., an expert automobile man and a member of the first contingent to go overseas from New Brunswick.

"I was chauffeur to Major-General Sir S. B. Steele, K. C. B., M. V. O., G. O. C., Second Division, later G. O. C., Shorncliffe Command. My old Cadillac has done the Shorncliffe to London trip three times in one day, myself at the wheel the whole day, and not a bit tired," continues Mason.

"The journey from Shorncliffe to London is 72 miles and my ordinary running time was two hours, 15 minutes for the trip, but I have done it in one hour, 55 minutes with a landaulet body."

Farmers Buy Expensive Cars.

"The cities are filled with pride," as Rudyard Kipling so aptly wrote, but this other fact must not be overlooked—the country banks are full of coin.

American automobile manufacturers, in fact, have been cognizant of the great wealth of the agricultural districts for many years and the makers of cars selling for $1000 or less have reaped their richest harvests in the wheat and corn belts. It is only recently, however, that the builders of the higher-priced automobiles have regarded the farmers as prospective purchasers of more costly cars.

"In the past three years thousands of farmers who once thought that they could get all the automobiles they wanted for $1000 or less, have come to the wise conclusion that the expenditure of $2500 or more for a car is money well invested, and have backed their judgment with their dollars," said George Weber of the Weber Implement and Auto Co., local distributer for the National Motor Car & Vehicle Corporation of Indianapolis.

"For verification of such statement one has only to look over the sales records of the National company for the past 12 months, during which period more cars were sold in the agricultural districts of the great Middle West and the South than at any other time in the 18-year-old history of the Indianapolis corporation.

Ask Gasoline Economy.

"One more false alarm has received an official quietus in the statement issued by the United States fuel Commission on the subject of gasoline," says J. C. Kardell, of the Kardell Motor Car Co., distributer for the Dort car in St. Louis.

"Mark L. Requa, director of the oil division, says that there has been plenty of gasoline for all requirements and will continue to be enough for normal purposes, providing it is not wasted.

"Mr. Requa makes a few timely suggestions worth repeating and remembering:

Do not use gasoline for cleaning mechanical parts.

Studiously avoid spilling, leakage and evaporation.

Do not let engine run when car is standing.

Have carburetor adjusted to give largest possible mileage per gallon.

Adjust brakebands so that they do not drag; keep all bearings well lubricated and tires fully inflated.

Keep spark plugs clean, have ignition correctly timed and drive with spark well advanced.

Do not accelerate and stop quickly; avoid high speed; stop engine and coast long hills .

Avoid aimless and unnecessary use of cars; do a number of errands in on trip; carry purchases home in the car to reduce deliveries by stores.

Combine with neighbors and friends in use of cars.

G. M. C. Tractor Plant.

A big tractor plant at Janesville, Wis., will be one of the first results of the Janesville Machine Company's joining forces with the General Motors Corporation, according to an announcement just made. The Janesville Machine Co. retains its present organization and tillage tools factories, but becomes the mid-west farm machinery unit of the General Motors Corporation. J. A. Craig, general manager of Janesville Machine Co., will have charge of the new tractor plant. For this a site of 125 acres on the south side of Janesville has been obtained.

The new line of tractors will include a size and power for every need. A full line of tractor plows and other tractor implements will also be made.

Starts Easy Below Zero.

Hundreds of Ford owners in St. Louis have anticipated the starting troubles that they can expect to have with the coming of cold weather by installing the U. & J. Carburetor, according to L. B. Tebbetts of L. B. Tebbetts & Co., 2125 Locust street, distributors of the U. & J. for Missouri and Southern Illinois.

"The fact that the U. & J. Carburetor in actual tests in the Dayton laboratory has started a motor on the first revolution at 10 degrees below zero indicates that the Ford owner will have no starting trouble with the U. & J. even in the coldest weather," Tebbetts declared. "And besides that we guarantee an increase in mileage of at least 50 per cent, more power and faster pickup."

Ford Starts Production.

W. J. Wesley, who has been connected with automobile sales in St. Louis for a number of years, has joined the sales force of the Johnson Automobile Co., Ford dealers, and will devote his time especially to the sale of sedans, deliveries of which will begin next week, since the Ford Factory has again started production and shipments are now on the way.

MEAT SALES ARE $3,000,000 AN HOUR, $120,000,000 WEEKLY

Experts Figure Out What Livestock Men Were Paid for Product in November.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—Three million dollars an hour, $21,000,000 a day, $120,000,000 a week is the record-breaking sum paid farmers of the country in the month of November, 1918, for livestock used for meat purposes, according to an estimate made by experts at the International Livestock Exposition, which closed here today.

Livestock experts declare that the farmers are now receiving more than twice as much for their hogs as before the war and their shipments are from 10 to 15 per cent above normal. The price of cattle and sheep also have enormously increased with pre-war figures.

The estimates are based on a seven-hour livestock buying day and a six-day week.

DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE SPENT $54,149 ON LAST ELECTION

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 7.—According to the report of James E. Cox, treasurer of the Democratic State Central Committee, filed in the County Recorder's office here, the committee spent $54,149.18 on the November election. St. Louis headed the list of contributions with $24,230. Kansas City's subscription was $1575, the report shows. Gov. F. D. Gardner gave $1535 and Supreme Court members $1888.85. The largest individual subscription, $2268.80, came from Adolph Musser, address not given.

Anti-Freeze Solutions.

Are you one of the motorists who last winter used an anti-freeze compound in a manner which the maker of the preparation never specified and then condemned the stuff as being no good? If you did such a thing, you had better make sure that you followed directions to the letter.

Obviously if the motorist does not do his part and merely dumps the stuff in his radiator, without following directions, one morning he will go to his unheated garage only to find the tubes of his radiator burst or the waterjacket cracked. The next thing he does is blame the anti-freeze substance, whereas, had he been careful to follow instructions he could have gone all winter without worrying about the cooling system.

The radiator should be washed out carefully with a solution of hot soda, which reveals any leaks that exist. These then should be soldered. Many anti-freeze substances attack dirt and sediment, and if your radiator started to leak last winter after you added the anti-freeze, it was because you failed to clean the radiator and repair the leaks. The anti-freeze told you that leaks existed. You probably thought the anti-freeze was eating away the metal. Follow the maker's directions this winter and you will play safe.

Beat Gasolineless Order.

The Gasoline-less Sunday order didn't worry Glenn L. Martin, the aviator and head of the Glenn L. Martin Co. of Cleveland. Mr. Martin, remembering some of the devices used in Europe to save gasoline in the running of motor cars, had the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. make up for him a huge gas bag, which he installed on the top of his brougham. This he filled with regular fuel gas and then ran his machine about the streets of Cleveland and elsewhere quite unconcernedly, serene in the knowledge that he was not violating the Government's gasoline order.

In a letter to Goodyear Mr. Martin says: "The gas bag did its work well. It was installed on a Saturday afternoon and Sunday I drove down through the streets of Cleveland, going about my work in general and filling the bag three times during the day."

BOOKS FOR SOLDIERS OVERSEAS

Military Library Service Director Says Fiction Works Are Preferred.

Librarian Arthur E. Bostwick of the St. Louis Public Library has received a telegram from Dr. Herbert Putnam, Librarian of Congress and Director of the Military Library Service, stating that there is a serious shortage of books for wounded men in the army hospitals. The public is requested to make immediate contributions of books. A million volumes could be used to advantage, and the greatest need is for good recent fiction, he says.

"Please ask the people of your community to make their Christmas gifts to our wounded soldiers now by sending at once to the library the best books they have or can buy," Dr Putnam writes. He points out that books being purchased are chiefly technical, to meet the overseas demand for educational literature. "It is therefore necessary to call on the public for gift books to meet present emergency," he adds.

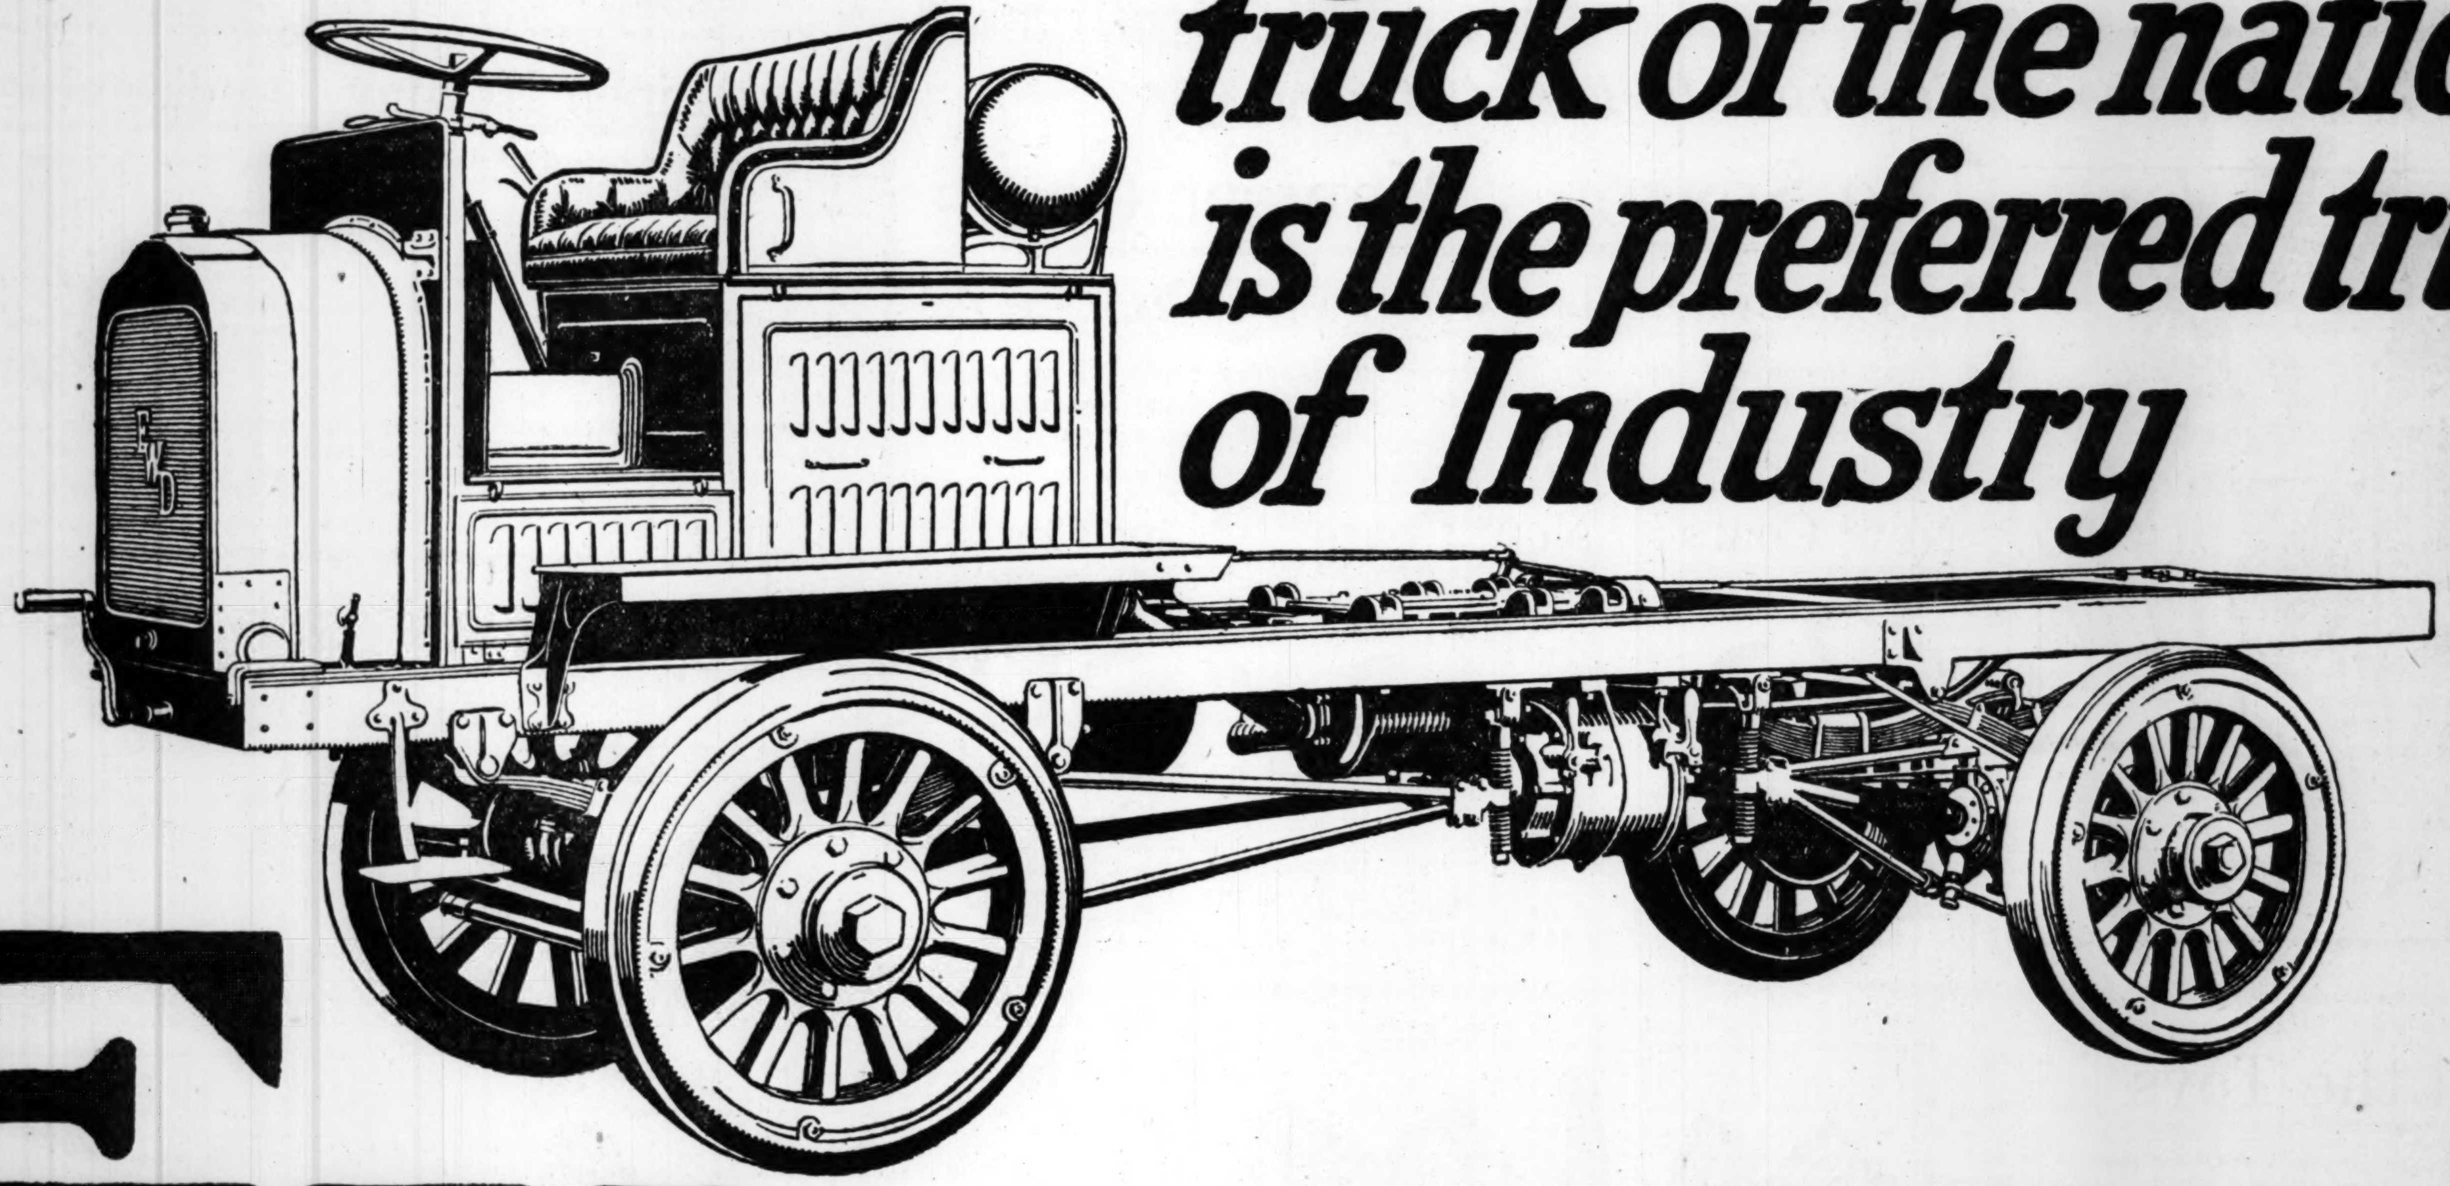
Reasons Why the preferred truck of the nations is the preferred truck of Industry



FWD MOTOR TRUCK OF CLINTONVILLE

The reasons that in 1914 impelled the nations of Europe to send all the way to Clintonville, Wisconsin, for F-W-D Trucks are the same reasons that make the F-W-D the preferred truck of commerce and industry:

POWER—four-wheel power, every wheel a driving wheel.

STRENGTH to withstand the strain of every-day service in every-day conditions.

ECONOMY of gasoline, oil and tires—particularly of repair and maintenance.

Smooth streets or rough roads
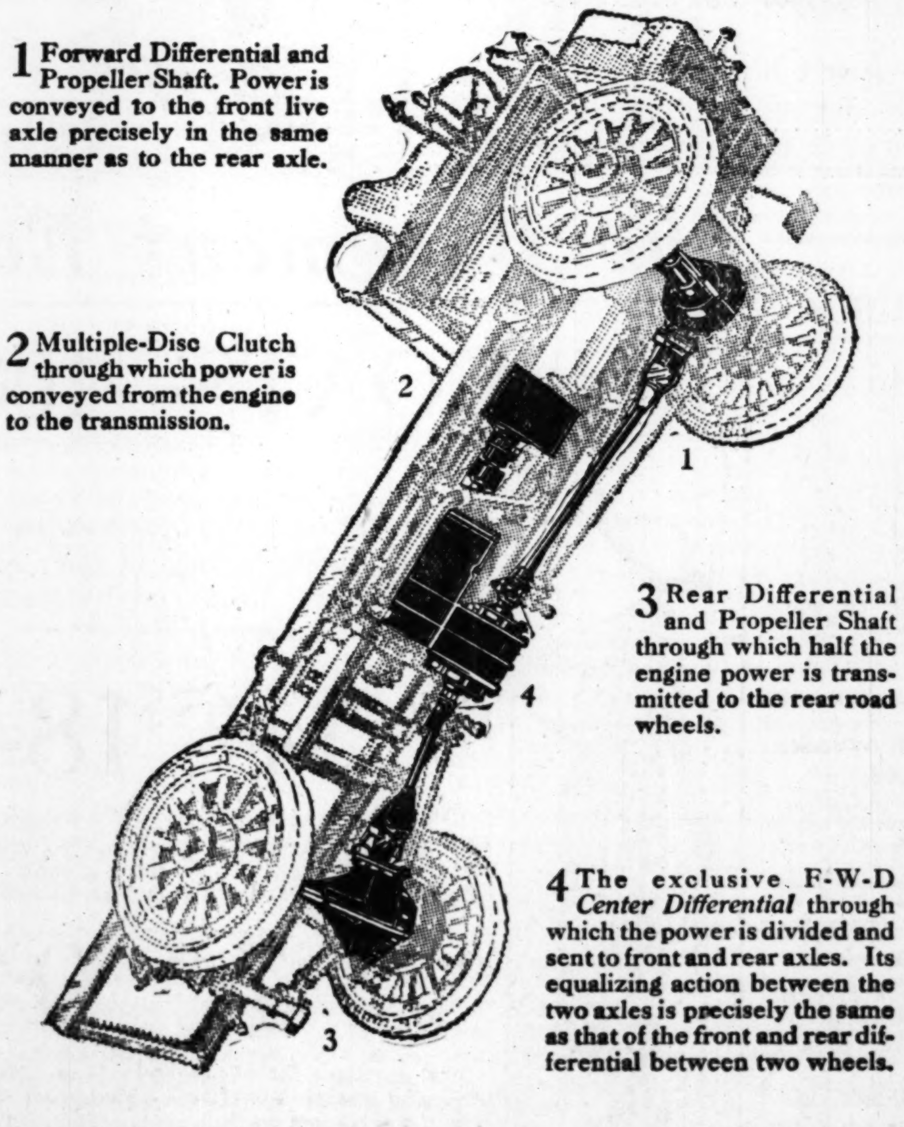
F-W-D

The advantage of four-wheel-driving power, which enables the F-W-D to pull through roads impossible to other trucks under full load, applies equally over smooth pavements. Operates with ease, with less expenditure of power, strain and wear—yet always with an ample surplus in reserve for emergencies.



1 Forward Differential and Propeller Shaft. Power is conveyed to the front live axle precisely in the same manner as to the rear axle.

2 Multiple-Disc Clutch through which power is conveyed from the engine to the transmission.

3 Rear Differential and Propeller Shaft through which half the engine power is transmitted to the rear road wheels.

4 The exclusive F-W-D Center Differential through which the power is divided and sent to front and rear axles. Its equalizing action between the two axles is precisely the same as that of the front and rear differential between two wheels.

The exclusive F-W-D center differential
transmits power
front and rear

THIS GREAT FEATURE, devised and developed at the F-W-D factory at Clintonville, not only established beyond question the superiority of the four-wheel-drive principle, but our correct application of it.

Load distribution
45% front
55% rear
means reduced strain

In the F-W-D 55% of the load is carried on the rear axle—not 85% to 90%. This means no abnormal strain on any one part of the mechanism.

Every business man with a transportation problem on his hands should investigate the F-W-D Truck—and be sure the four-wheel-drive you buy is made at Clintonville.

We will require one strong representative for the F-W-D Truck in this territory. Some far-seeing business man will see an unusual opportunity in securing this agency.

We suggest that you wire—or come to Clintonville.

Factors in England's After the War Labor Problem

Early Appointing of Joint Committees of Employers and Employed Is Helpful Step, but Good Will on Both Sides Is Necessary to Carry the Present Plans to Success—Soldiers' Opinion Anxiously Awited.

By P. W. WILSON,

Mr. Wilson is the United States Representative of the London Daily News. He was that paper's parliamentary reporter for 18 years. He is an ex-member of Parliament.

TO discuss the future of labor in Great Britain on its industrial side is, from one point of view, essential; from another, futile. It is essential because society cannot be left unprepared to face new conditions that are certain to differ materially from the old. It is futile because no man knows today what shape these new conditions will take. The only practical course, therefore, is to consider the few certain factors of the situation and attempt to forecast their probable effects on the undetermined future of labor.

The process of demobilization itself need not be examined in detail, for vitally important though it will be in its relation to the great labor problems, its effect will be temporary rather than enduring. Moreover, it is practically certain that the period of demobilization will be a period of trade prosperity, and consequently of work for everyone in Great Britain. It is true that there will be unexampled industrial dislocation. Great factories will be converting their plants from war purposes to peace purposes, a process that will inevitably involve temporary restriction of output. Hundreds of thousands of workers of both sexes will be called off munitions and left to find some fresh field of employment. Altogether, not fewer than 8,000,000 manual workers are likely to be demanding new places in industry.

No Unemployment Fear

That is a prodigious transference of labor, but it justifies no immediate fears of unemployment. It will take all the efforts of all the workers to make up the leeway of the past four years. In the first place, there will be the wastage of war to replace. The reconstitution of Belgium and Northern France, the manufacture of machinery and tools and rolling stock for Serbia and Rumania and Russia will fall largely to the workers of Great Britain.

But apart from all that the home needs will be enormous. The railways have deteriorated seriously, and it will take years of repair and new construction to restore the old level of efficiency. A housing program that will provide for the building of at least 600,000 dwellings is a universally recognized necessity. The production of furniture has fallen hopelessly behind the demand, and here again it will be years before the lost ground is made up, particularly when the needs of France and Belgium are borne in mind. The catelogue might be lengthened almost indefinitely.

Shipyards, mines, textile factories, all will be bidding against one another for their tale of workers. Provided, therefore, that the necessary materials are available—a matter on which, unfortunately, there is some room for misgiving—the evils of unemployment should not be added, to any appreciable degree, to the multitudinous problems of reconstruction.

To that extent the immediate problem might appear primarily to be one of displacement and absorption; a problem, it may be observed, which will be enormously complicated by the present occupation of the industrial field by any army of women, whose splendid record of service during the war precludes all thought of their mere relegation to the domestic life from which they emerged to take up the tasks the men laid down. But it is quite certain that many of the women who came into industry in the past four years will remain in it, and it ought not to be impossible to make room for them.

Forestalling Disputes

The vital need, not merely of Great Britain, but of the world for years to come, will be for increased production, and given wise and far-seeing management, industry will be capable of absorbing a larger body of workers than in the past. But if increased production is to be achieved there must be no interruption of work from industrial disputes. So far as such disputes can be forestalled by a wise co-operation between employers and employed, machinery is in process of reconstruction for forestalling them.

A strong Committee on Industrial Reconstruction, under the chairmanship of the Deputy Speaker of the House of Commons, was appointed by Mr. Asquith's Cabinet in 1916. That committee last year brought in a report recommending the establishment in every important industry of joint industrial councils, composed of equal numbers of employers and employed, to meet at frequent intervals and have under constant consideration the processes, the prospects and the possibilities of the industry.

Such a proposal may appear to anybody no startling innovation, but the idea that masters and men should be brought together around a table, not merely when the settlement of an impending dispute is imperative, but as a standing council to regulate the conditions and promote the prosperity of the industry, made a deep impression on the public mind. National councils, with their subsidiary equipment of district councils and works committees, are already in being in some 16 industries and in process of formation in many others. They have not yet been subjected to any very exacting test, but there is no doubt that so far they are fully justifying themselves as agents for the elimination of friction and the promotion of improved conditions within the industry.

But the Whittley councils, and other more unofficial organizations directed to the same end, postulate the continued existence of the present structure of industry. By the very act of improving the conditions of the industrial system as it is, they are making for the perpetuation of the industrial system as it is, whereas, the real crux of the industrial problem at the present time is not how the existing system should be imposed, but whether the existing system is going to continue at all. And that, unfortunately, is not so much a question of whether, on a sober review of the factors by the most experienced and far-sighted authorities, a change of system is agreed to be desirable, as whether the mass of the workers, in whose hands, if they choose to act in unison, enormous power will lie, will determine that there shall be a change.

They may or may not so determine. There is no sound basis for prediction, for half the men involved are in the army, and they have never faced the problem in earnest, or if they have, they have kept their conclusions so far to themselves. But the position must at least be stated. Industry in Great Britain, as in America, is based in the main on the principle of private ownership of capital, unlimited profits and wages fixed by a bargain between employer and employed.

That principle failed to stand the strain of the war. It favored profiteering and it left the workers dissatisfied and suspicious. Emergency legislation, embodied in a series of correlated measures which changed the whole basis of the industrial structure, was hurried through. The railways were taken over by the State and their dividends to shareholders guaranteed at the figure they averaged for the three years before the war—no more and no less. Munition firms were brought under one form of excess profits tax and firms in general industry under another, the two being ultimately assimilated in an 80 per cent tax on all profits above a fixed datum figure, based on pre-war trading.

The Two Sides

At the same time, in the case of food products and other necessaries, a limited margin of profit was fixed for every person handling the commodity, from the importer or producer of the raw material to the retailer of the finished article. That on the employers' side.

On the employes' side wages have risen throughout the whole field of industry. In some cases, as in agriculture, through the legal enactment of a minimum wage; in others as the result of strikes or less drastic forms of agitation; in others, again, through the natural willingness of masters, whose excess profits are laid up to 80 per cent to pay away a proportion of those profits in the form of wage increases to their hands.

There is no qeustion that the excess profits tax has been a powerful antidote to industrial unsettlement. Devised to protect the consumer, it has had hardly less important effects in allaying the workmen's discontent. The average trades unionist, before the war, was growing more or less intolerant of a system which condemned him, as he expressed it, to spend his life in putting profits into other people's pockets. The war suspended the normal working of that system. The peace will, in the ordinary course, restore it. But that does not mean that things will be as they were before.

One vital factor in the situation will have changed. That one is the workman's mind. Predisposed in any case to Socialism, he has had the experience of working for four years under a system that is virtually State Socialism and under conditions that have given him the double satisfaction of drawing high wages himself and of knowing that the profits his labors have secured have accrued not to the benefit of passive shareholders, whose very names he never has heard, but to the benefit of the community in the form of subventions to the national exchequer. Is he going to revert without a murmur to the old system of private ownership and private profit as soon as peace conditions are restored?

Labor Favors Nationalization

It is, of course, possible that he may. All things are possible. But there are many indications apart from the deductions to be drawn from common knowledge of human nature, that he will not. On its political side, labor is already pledged to a crusade against private ownership. In its manifesto on "Labor and the New Social Order," it calls specifically for nationalization of land, of mines, of railways and canals, together with the municipalization of subsidiary

How War Bill Against Germany Will Be Drafted

The Ordering of an Inventory of Empire's Resources Is Not Indication of Holding People to Last Resources—What Must Be Paid and What May Now.

By STERLING E. EDMUNDS,

Lecturer on International Law, St. Louis University Law School.

THE recent announcement of A. Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, that the British Government has appointed a committee to inquire scientifically into the question of how much the enemy can pay, may strengthen the popular fallacy that the victors in the great war, like those of old, are planning coldly to despoil the vanquished to the limit.

But the fact is, Germany and her erstwhile allies are not to be made the victims of a lot of rapacious enemies bent on self-enrichment; they shall pay and make restitution only according to law, which, as we shall see, may well require a thorough study of their present wealth to determine how far the judgments of the law can be satisfied.

One of the outstanding objects of the great war, so far as the Entente Allies were concerned, was to vindicate the law of nations as a system instituted for the protection of all states, which none, singly or in combination, may callously brush aside. The preservation of that law, therefore, equally requires that the Entente Allies shall adhere to its principles and scrupulously conform to them in their dealings with the beaten enemy.

What Must Be Paid

The former practice of victorious belligerents of bleedings their victims white is no longer recognized as a right either in international law or morals, although Germany herself resorted to it in a disguised form in the treaty of Bucharest imposed on Rumania.

The principal matters today which may be made the legal bases for indemnity, with respect to war on land, may be said to include the following:

1. Unlawful destruction.
2. Unlawful requisitions levied upon the people of occupied territory.
3. Unlawful contributions levied in such territory, and,
4. Unlawful fines imposed.

With respect to maritime or naval warfare, there are likewise rules which determine the lawfulness or unlawfulness of destruction and appropriation of property, though they are less definite and uniform and more difficult of application.

A legal condition of war gives rise to so-called belligerent rights which permit states going to war to seize and destroy enemy property, to levy requisitions and contributions and to impose fines within occupied enemy territory. But these rights are clearly limited and qualified. Wherefore, as a general proposition, only the acts of a belligerent outside these limits may legally be made the subjects of reclamation.

In attempting to determine the measure of liability of the Central Allies under these rules of law, we are confronted at the outset by the question whether or not, with respect to Germany and Belgium, a legal state of war actually existed, so as to entitle Germany to the protection and benefits accruing to a lawful belligerent state.

By the treaty of 1831, Belgium was perpetually neutralized under the guarantees of Great Britain, Austria, France, Prussia and Russia. Belgium obligated herself never to embark upon war and to exert her full strength to repel violations of her territory. The guaranteeing Powers, on their part, bound themselves never to make war upon the state thus neutralized. As to the continuing validity of this treaty, it had never been denounced by Prussia, and it is sufficient to cite the Declaration of London of 1871, made on the occasion of Russia's attempt unilaterally to withdraw from the treaty of Paris of 1856, neutralizing the Black Sea:

Germany's Obligation

"The plenipotentiaries of North Germany, of Great Britain, of Russia and of Turkey, assembled today in conference, recognize that it is an essential principle of the law of nations that no Power can liberate itself from the engagements of a treaty, nor modify the stipulations thereof, unless with the consent of the contracting Powers, by means of an amicable arrangement."

If, therefore, the German empire, as the successor to Prussia, was bound to observe the inviolability of Belgian territory through the obligations of a treaty from which she could not liberate herself without the consent of the other guarantors, there is strong ground upon which to hold that Germany was not legally at war with Belgium, but was a mere trespasser; that, therefore, none of the rights of a belligerent accrued to Germany, and that Germany's declaration of war on Aug. 4, 1914, was a nullity so far as it was intended to proclaim a legal state of war.

With respect to German military operations in Northern France, in Servia, Rumania and elsewhere, in the absence of such obligations as existed concerning Belgium, war did legally exist and Germany would, therefore, be entitled to the protection of the laws of war to the extent that they are applicable.

Reverting to the four categories of matters which may be made the legal bases for settlement of claims against Germany and her allies, these may be applied with respect to all territory ravaged with the exception of Belgium.

Taking up first the subject of destruction, the laws of war permit practically all seizures and destruction having a military object; all destruction tending to weaken the military forces of the enemy, as distinguished from acts calculated only to exert psychological pressure or wanton destruction as an end in itself. Public buildings, monuments, museums and edifices devoted to religion and charity must be respected, where they are not being used for hostile purposes.

Thus the destruction of French and Belgian towns by the Germans to cover their last retreat and to obstruct the pursuit of the Entente armies, appears to have been lawful in principles, despite the universal protest that was lodged against these acts.

To determine, therefore, the actual damages for which a belligerent is liable on account of destruction resolves itself largely into ascertaining the amount wrought through wantonness.

Taking up next the question of requisitions which a belligerent may levy, whether in supplies, foodstuffs, clothing, means of transport or service, the law very clearly authorizes this, with the limitations that they shall be for the support of the army and in proportion to the resources of the country. They cannot be levied for self-enrichment or to be sent back into the state of the occupant as plunder. They may be levied only on the authority of the commander and receipts must be given. As to these receipts, responsibility is nowhere fixed with respect to their redemption, although in practice a military occupant who is subsequently defeated is generally made to redeem them.

Right to Impose Taxes

Coming next to contributions an occupying belligerent is recognized as a provisional administrator of the enemy territory under his control, and as such, he functions not only as a military authority looking out for the safety and maintenance of his army, but also as the responsible head of civil order and administration. He imposes taxes—generally in accordance with the rules of assessment and incidence in force—and to meet any deficiencies in revenue, whether of the civil administration or for the support of his army, he may demand additional sums in the form of contributions. These shall be collected only under a written order of the commander; they shall be used strictly for the purposes referred to, and for them, as in the case of requisitions, receipts shall be given, implying no responsibility for redemption.

The rights of requisition and contribution will be seen to be a recognition, under some regulation, however, of the old right of an army to support itself on the country.

Taking up last the subject of fines, this is the least severe of all of the permissible measures which a military occupant may employ to put down disobedience or persistence on the part of the population. But no fine may lawfully be imposed upon a community on account of acts of individuals for which the population cannot be regarded as jointly and severally responsible. It cannot be imposed as the result of isolated acts of resistance or disobedience, although these may be punished through action against the offender or even against innocent persons.

Where a community may be reasonably regarded as collectively responsible for such acts, punishment may allowably take the severe form of complete destruction of the town.

By applying these rules in the respective categories to the facts as developed by inquiry, it is possible to compute with a considerable degree of accuracy the liability of a belligerent on account of its excesses in occupied territory.

Subdivide Inquiry

It is highly probable that the peace Congress of Versailles will subdivide the general inquiry into the enemies' liability in law along some such line as indicated, instituting commissions to make investigations in Northern France, in Servia, in Rumania and elsewhere.

But with respect to Belgium, the congress is very likely to hold that the vindication of the faith of treaties requires that the whole of the destruction and the total of all requisitions, contributions and fines form the legal measure of Germany's liability.

War Shows School Methods Are Obsolete, Educator Says

All Courses of Study and Teaching Methods, From Elementary Schools, Will Have to Meet Awakened Ideas From Experiences of Our Men Who Have Served Abroad.

By DR. NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER,

President of Columbia University, New York City.

(An address before the Association of Colleges and Preparatory Schools of the Middle States and Maryland.)

THE war has distinctly helped us. It has killed other things than human beings, and it has burnt up other things than towns, libraries and churches. It has laid to rest some rather widespread illusions, and it has burnt up many sources and causes of intellectual, moral and social waste. It has shortened by many years, perhaps by a generation, the path of progress to clearer, sounder and more constructive thinking as to education, its processes and its aims, than that which has occupied the center of the stage for some dozen years past.

We have been living in an era of reaction that has masqueraded as progress, and we have been witnessing energetic acts of destruction whose agents sang the songs and spoke the language of those who build. Part of what we have been living through and putting up with as best we could has been due to a false psychology and part to a crude economics. The moral and spiritual values have been ground between the upper and nether millstones of a psychology without a soul and an economics with no vision beyond material gain.

Thrift an Example

According to this newest philosophy, no such admirable virtue as thrift, for example, could be taught, but only the saving of 10-cent pieces or of dollar bills, or possibly of Liberty Bonds, as separate arts or vocations. Industry, honesty, loyalty, charity and truthfulness have been ingenuously referred to as vague notions or catch words that are very apt to delude the unwary—the unwary being probably the unselfish. A sense of humor or a flash of common sense, had either been present, might have saved us from being obliged to listen to all this and to contemplate the ideal world as made up of highly competent apple polishers and pencil sharpeners early trained to their engrossing tasks, and vocationally guided to be loyal and charitable to themselves alone.

What a sense of humor or a flash of common sense did not intervene to accomplish the war has done. At a critical moment for the history of education in the United States the German people found occasion to reveal themselves to an astonished world as the apostles and representatives of just this type of philosophy of education and of life. Psychology without a soul has been a favorite German industry for a long time, and organization for material gain has been the ruling thought of the German people for quite 30 years. On this form of psychology and on this form of economics as a foundation, the Germans erected their superstructure of military autocracy, of insolent aggression, and of lust for world domination. With these they instantly challenged the rest of the world to combat for its mastery.

For months, even for years, the issue hung uncertainly in the balance; but at last the nations that had not surrendered their souls, the nations that had not cast aside their moral and spiritual ideals to bow down before the idol of material gain, the nations that had not put efficiency above freedom, brought down this proud and boasting Teutonic structure in the dust. Nothing in history that aimed so high has ever fallen so low, and the effect upon the world's education ought to be, must be, instant and overwhelming. We ought now to be spared, at least for a time, the vexing spectacle of men in places of authority in education and in letters who spend their time standing in front of the convex mirror of egotism thinking that what they see reflected in it is a real world and their own exact relation to it.

Standards of Efficiency

The war has taught the lesson that the proper place of efficiency is as the servant of a moral ideal, and that efficiency apart from a moral ideal is an evil and wicked instrument, which in the end can accomplish only disaster. Belgium and Serbia, measured by Teutonic standards, were inefficient; France was not only inefficient, but decadent; Great Britain was not only inefficient, but on the point of disruption, and America was not only inefficient, but hopelessly given over to pleasure and to gain. True it is, not one of these nations had kept its ideals as clear and as sharply defined as it should have done; but the ideals were there none the less. Therefore it was that when the attack was made these ideals sprang from the hiding places and took command of the apparently unorganized and inefficient nations. Meanwhile, organized efficiency, immoral and brutal, was hammering at their doors. The free nations held the enemy until their ideals could call their own efficiency and power of organization into play as servants, and when that had been accomplished the end was in sight. That end has now come with a suddenness and a completeness that no one would have dared foretell.

Regarding man in his capacity as a self-directing individual, there are three fundamental aspects of civilization that have continuing and permanent significance. These fundamental aspects are ethics, the doctrine of conduct and service; economics, the doctrine of gainful occupation, and politics, the doctrine of reconciliation between the two and of living together in harmony and helpfulness.

These are the three subjects which must lie at the heart of an effective education which has learned the lessons of the war. Literature, history and philosophy will continue to preside over them all, and to offer the largest and most inviting opportunity for the rarest and best-furnished spirits unforgettably to serve their kind. One Shakspeare, one Gibbon, one Aristotle, are worth a thousand years of human waiting and human travail.

The doctrine of conduct and service will include the study of both personal and social ideals, as well as the discipline and the precepts that will promote their accomplishment. The doctrine of conduct cannot be one of selfishness, of greed or of exploitation if it be constantly combined with the doctrine of service. Those very qualities and characteristics which we have lately been told cannot be inculcated, such as loyalty, charity, truthfulness, are to be unceasingly enjoined, taught and exemplified.

The doctrine of gainful occupation will include both the means and the end of activity for self-support and self-dependence. It will, when a stage of adequate maturity is reached, add to the general knowledge and general discipline of the individual that special knowledge and special discipline which will enable him to relate himself to the productive activity of the world at some specific and useful point in some definite and useful way.

The doctrine of reconciliation between ethics and economics will include the study of how men have attempted to find ways and means of living together in harmony and helpfulness, how far they have succeeded, in what respects and to what extent they have failed and how they may carry forward the great experiment in their own time to still more fortunate results by making ethics, economics and politics not three distinct and mutually exclusive or contradictory disciplines, but rather three aspects of one and the same discipline, which is that of human life, its highest achievement and its ripest fruit.

Health as New Topic

The care and protection of the public health will hereafter assume new importance. Preventive medicine, which has made great strides in recent years, is only at the beginning of its history. The physician and the nurse will shortly be looked upon as educational factors quite as important as the teacher himself. Care for the public health will not content itself with the mere inspection of children and youth in school and college or with the care and cure of definite disease. It will establish a relationship between home conditions, school conditions and work conditions. It will have helpful advice to give, both general and specific, as to diet and exercise, and it will insist that neither at home, in school nor at work shall children and adolescent youth be subjected to conditions that impair their bodies as well as starve their souls.

There will be much more attention paid to the determination of individual differences of taste and capacity, and to making provision for them. The object of this determination is to prevent waste of effort, the loss of opportunity and the blunting of talent by trying to sharpen it upon the wrong whetstone.

We have succeeded in training some eminent chemists, physicists and biologists, but we have not made chemistry, physics and biology part of the mental furniture of persons who are called educated, largely because we have insisted upon going the wrong way about it. The popular American textbooks in chemistry and in physics are almost without exception examples of how those subjects should not be taught, while the popular textbooks in biological subjects are only a little better. The best textbooks in geology and astronomy are more wisely made. The teachers of all these sciences have almost uniformly proceeded as if every student who came under their influence was to become a specialist in their particular science.

Reviving Languages

Substantially the same thing may be said about instruction in foreign language. Greek and Latin have been in large degree asphyxiated by wholly wrong-headed methods of teaching, and French and German are a sad spectable to look upon. Intelligent youths who have spent three, four and five years in the study of one or both of these languages can neither speak them easily nor understand them readily nor write them correctly. Here, too, as in the case of the natural sciences, the reason is to be found in wrong methods of teaching. It is a sorry commentary as to what is going on in our secondary schools and colleges in this respect to learn on the best authority that there are now in France at least 200,000 American young men who, after six months of military activity in France and three or four hours of in-

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and luster to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—ADV.

FACTORS IN BRITISH AFTER THE WAR LABOR PROBLEMS

services, such as water, gas, electricity and tramways, and that as a part of a comprehensive demand for "the progressive limitation from the control of industry of the private capitalist, individual or joint stocks."

In the face of that demand, what does the attitude of the worker promise to be on the reiteration of conditions that would re-establish private profits as the basis of the industrial system, and do that just at a moment when the employes' nominal wage and probably his real wage, too, will be steadily falling? The question, it must be observed, is not what the workman's attitude ought to be, but what it is likely to be. And the answer to that question beyond a doubt is that it is going to be acutely antagonistic to the old order.

That does not mean that there is any serious prospect of Bolshevist manifestation in Great Britain. The most experienced observers see little indication of such disaster, unless, inded, it should be precipitated by unwise or unskilled handling of the industrial situation by the Government. Except in one or two particular areas—notably the Clyde, with its shipyards, and South Wales, with its coal fields, where industrial ferment is always latent and frequently active—there are no outward signs of threatening trouble. But the known facts of the situation and the known tempers of the men cannot be ignored.

New Labor Plan.

In recent years prophets and evangelists of new forms of social order have been carrying on untiring crusades. Syndicalism, guild Socialism, national Socialism, have all been diligently preached, and if the doctrine has been only imperfectly assimilated, it has served none the less to discredit the existing order as something that must be made away with before the worker can come into his own.

To sum up, while no specific industrial trouble is visible or threatened, the next two or three years will inevitably lay a heavy strain on such good will as at present exists between workers and men. Reconstruction may be carried through without serious trouble, but that there are very real causes for anxiety is undeniable.

There is one further disruptive factor to consider. Quite apart from the possibilities of friction between capital and labor, labor has its own internal problems to face. The essence of labor organization, or any other organization, is that the rank and file shall abide by the decisions of the leaders they have chosen to represent them. The removal of that elementary loyalty means anarchy within the union, and if it involves, as it constantly has in recent years, the repudiation by the workers of agreements struck by their leaders with employers, the last guarantee of industrial peace is gone.

Object to Secretary Rule.

That anarchic tendency has been disquietly prevalent of late, manifesting itself chiefly in an opposition of the circumference of the center, in the refusal, for example, of the men in the engineering shops of Bartow, Coventry or Sheffield toto abide by the ruling of the union secretaries in an office in London. That is a result which flows naturally from the growth and centralization of the unions. Take the case of the railways. There the lives of more than 400,000 workers are affected by agreements made by men at the London headquarters who have been so long immersed in the work of administration as to have lost touch in some measure with the daily round of a porter's or a guard's or an engine driver's duty.

That, at least, is the charge brought against them. In reality there is very little in it, but it leaves plenty of room for the men on the footpath or in the goods yard to convince himself that his leaders are ignorant of the regulations under which he is smarting and can manifest no due sympathy with his grievance.

The Shop Steward.

Out of thta feeling has grown the "shop steward" movement, a striking assertion of democracy in trade union government against the suspected bureaucracy of the headquarters official. For the shop steward, as such, there is much to be said. He is in daily touch with his fellow-members of the union at their work and speaks with a unique knowledge of actual workshop conditions. But in the disputes in which the shop stewards have so far been most prominent it has happened that they have been men of an advanced and aggressive type, whose intervention has materially increased the difficulties of settlement. The shop steward movement and the demand for local autonomy underlying it, is the most formidable problem confronting the trades unions today.

That difficulty, like all difficulties, can be solved if the different parties concerned are determined it shall be solved in a spirit of good will. That is equally true of the difficulties between the men and the masters and between the men and the State. But good will, it must be repeated, will be heavily strained.

The pledge of the Government to restore trade union rights and privileges will probably provide the first battleground, if battleground there is to be, for while some of these custom s[illegible] ht to be permanetly abrogated [illegible] he interests of all parties, on the men as much as on the masters, any attempt to abrogate them compulsorily will be fiercely resented as the breach of a binding pledge. The hope is that in such cases the men will resign them voluntarily. That again is a question of the spirit of good will. That alone can carry British industry through the rapids. But no wise and no honest man would predict with confidence that the passage will be either easy or safe.

TWO CONCERTS BY THE CHORAL SOCIETY

Americanization Through Music Is Keynote to Be Given Jan. 14 and March 11.

Americanization through the music is the dominant note in the concerts announced by the St. Louis Pageant Choral Society for the Odeon, Jan. 14 and March 11.

On the first day, will be given four works, by American composers and authors, in which American ideals are upheld and set forth in a most attractive manner, particularly in the leading feature of the evening's program, "The Witch's Daughter,"—produced for the first time anywhere.

The author of the poem, John Greenleaf Whittier, was the poetseer of the long emancipation struggle. He was the national bard of justice, humanity and reform. No other poet has sounded more native notes, or covered so much of the American legendary. The opening lines of the poem:

"It was the pleasant harvest time,
When cellar bins are closely stowed,

gives the first of a series of pictures of early American life which the music of Charles Sanford Skilton, the Kansas composer, skillfully interprets.

Cantata Soloists.

The soloists for this cantata, are Cora Libberton, favorably endorsed by all the choral organizations of Chicago, and Corp. Finlay Campbell, Canadian baritone, whom composer Skilton commends as an excellent choice for soloist, apart from his interest as a hero of the war.

"O, Thou, whose glorious orbs on high
Engird the earth with splendor round
From out Thy secret place draw nigh
Thy courts and temples of this ground."

This introduces the "Hymn of The West" written by Edmund Clarence Stedman, the "Banker-poet" with music by John Knowles Paine who occupied the chair of Music at Harvard. In this work, the Pageant Chorus will be heard to advantage.

"The Americans Come!" by Elizabeth A. Wilbur relates on episode in France in 1918. A blinded Frenchman speaks to his son and the son replies:

"There are men, my father, brown and strong
And they carry a banner of wondrous hue;
With a mighty tread they swing along,
Now I see white stars on a field of blue!"

The music is by Fay Foster, composer of many songs, and the soloist is Cora Libberton.

Early Poets Work.

Joseph Rodman Drake, an early American poet distinguished by delicacy of fancy, wrote "The American Flag" which Carl Busch of Kansas City has recently set to music full of brilliancy and fire affording fine opportunity for the strong personality of Corp. Campbell in the lines beginning:

"When Freedom from her mountin height
Unfurled her standard to the air,
She tore the azure robe of Night
And set the Stars of glory there:"

Verdi's "The Manzoni Requiem" to be given on March 11 will be in the nature of a gloriously beautiful and fitting tribute to our hero dead. The soloists on this occasion will be the well known operatic favorites; Myrna Sharlow, soprano; Frederica Downing, contralto; Forrest Lamont, tenor; and Henri Scott, basso.

SCHOOL METHODS MUST GO TO DISCARD, SAYS EDUCATOR

struction a week in the French language, can carry on a comfortable conversation under ordinary conditions and circumstances with the mastery of a vocabulary of at least a thousand words. On the other hand, many an American college graduate who has studied French for years is as awkward and as nonplussed in a Paris drawing room as he would be in the driver's seat of an airplane.

For nearly a generation past American education has laid the greatest emphasis upon the study of the English language and literature, and this is as it should be. In one important respect, however, damage has been and is being done, and again the cause is to be found in a wrong method of teaching. The idea is prevalent that the way to improve the written English of students is to compel them to write constantly and on all sorts of topics. This is fallacy. The way in which to teach students to write good English is to teach them to read good English.

The responsibilities of citizenship increase day by day, and have been multiplied by the effects and results of the war. There is double need, therefore, of training the youth of today who are to be the men and women of tomorrow, in the fundamental principles of good citizenship and in a knowledge of those rights, duties and opportunities, national and international, which constitute the elements of the world's organized life. How many members of Congress there may be, what their terms and what their compensation, are facts of slight importance compared with an understanding of the reasons for the existence of a Congress, of its powers and duties, and of the ways in which and the purposes for which its functions have been fulfilled for 140 years.

The elementary school must be brought back to its proper business, neglect of which has been general and much remarked for years past. The elementary school, being well organized and universal, has been seized upon by faddists and enthusiasts of every type as an instrumentality not for better education but for accomplishing their own particular ends. It may be necessary one of these days to organize a society for the protection of the elementary school.

Vigorous steps must be taken promptly to make the teaching profession more attractive to men of high competence and ambition. Not only must the wages of teachers be very greatly increased, but the prizes of the profession, those conspicuous, influential, and well-paid posts that are freely open to talent, must be multiplied, both in number and in importance. The ambitious and high-spirited man will be drawn to education as a career and held in it so soon as he finds that it offers him an opportunity for reputation and for usefulness that is commensurate with his ambition and his capacity.

One's imagination hesitates to attempt to measure the capacity of one hundred millions of thoroughly well-educated, well-trained, and well-disciplined American men and women. Yet nothing short of this should be the aim of American educational policy.

DR. CANNADAY
Eczema Specialist for 15 Years.

For fifteen years I have been treating one disease alone. ECZEMA. I have handled over one million cases. I do not pretend to know it all, but I am convinced the disease is due to an excess of acid in the blood, and closely related to rheumatism and cancer. This acid must be removed.

Eczema is called by some people Itch, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Weeping Skin, etc. I am fully convinced Eczema is a curable disease, and when I say it can be cured, I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D, and not merely patched up for a while to return worse than before. It makes no difference what other doctors have told you, or what all you have tried, all I ask is just a chance to prove to you that this vast experience has taught me a great deal that would be of help to you. If you will write me today I will send you a free trial of my mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will do more to convince you than I or anyone else could in a month's preaching. WIDOWS GET HERO MEDALS

TOLEDO, O.—Carnegie hero medals were awarded to the widows of two Toledoans, Fred Bauman and Fred Murphy, at a meeting of the Carnegie Fund Commission in Pittsburg.

Bauman and Murphy lost their lives in attempting to rescue Alexander Knaggs, who had been overcome by paint fumes while at work in a tank at the Toledo Cider and Vinegar Co. on Jan. 29, 1918.

URGES EVERYONE TO QUICKLY GET ON THE WATER WAGON

Drink glass of hot water before breakfast to wash out poisons.

To see the tinge of healthy bloom in your face, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, to wake up without a headache, backache, coated tongue or a nasty breath, in fact to feel your best, day in and day out, just try inside-bathing every morning for one week.

Before breakfast each day, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it as a harmless means of washing from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store, but is sufcient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, sweetens and freshens the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the blood and internal organs. Those who are subject to constipation, bilious attacks, acid stomach, rheumatic twinges, also those whose skin is sallow and complexion pallid, are assured that one week of inside-bathing will have them both looking and feeling better in every way.—ADV.

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. INA CLAIRE IN FIRST STELLAR ROLE IN WEST

Former Mimic With "Follies" in Belasco's "Polly With a Past."

"Polly With a Past," the sprightly Belasco comedy, which arrives at the American Theater tomorrow night, will provide the vehicle for the first appearance here in a stellar role of the clever Ina Claire, remembered for her feats of mimicry in the Ziegfeld Follies" a few years ago. It is said to have been her impersonation of Frances Starr in "Marie-Odile" that led Belasco to give her a chance in drama.

The play, which is the work of George Middleton and Guy Bolton, ran more than 300 performances at the Belasco Theater in New York last season. The management promises that the New York cast will be brought here intact.

The story, told in three acts, is that of a minister's daughter in an Ohio village, who affects the mien of a practiced charmer and flirts outrageously with a youth—for the purpose of winning back for him his own sweetheart, who has grown cool, and whose interest may be reawakened by rivalry. The part of Polly is said to afford remarkable opportunities for Miss Claire's gifts as a comedienne.

The Shubert-Jefferson opens tonight with a musical comedy, "Rock-a-Bye Baby," based on Margaret Mayo's successful farce, "Baby Mine." Herbert Reynolds supplies lyrics and the fertile Jerome Kern the tunes. At the head of the cast are Jefferson d'Angelis and Edna Hibbard.

"Fair and Warmer" continues this week at the Shubert-Garrick. The American next week will present the musical comedy, "Flo-Flo."

Marguerite Sylva, Belgian prima donna, leads the program at the Orpheum this week. As is remembered, she has sung with unusual success in both grand and comic opera, with the Opera Comique in Paris, the Chicago Grand Opera Company, and the American Singers' Society in New York. She is the wife of Maj. Bernhard L. Smith of the U. S. Marine Corps.

Another vocalist on the bill is Chief Caupolican, described as a Chilean Indian, whose voice was trained in Paris. He is also an orator and has lectured on international subjects.

PROHIBITION BIG ISSUE IN 11 CENTRAL STATE LEGISLATURES

Federal Amendment Expected to Overshadow All Other Questions at Sessions Next Month.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—Prohibition will overshadow all other issues in the Legislatures of the Central States, which will swing under way early next month.

The Ohio Legislature, overwhelmingly "dry," will have up for adoption a State-wide prohibition amendment.

In Michigan bills will be introduced to strengthen the State prohibition law.

One of the principal contests at the Illinois session is expected to develop over the Federal prohibition amendment. The Senate is "dry," and both sides claim the House.

Both sides are already claiming victory in the coming fight over adoption of the Federal prohibition amendment by the Wisconsin Legislature.

Statutory prohibition will be a vital issue before the Minnesota Legislature.

Besides suffrage and the prohibition issue, the North Dakota Legislature, firmly controlled by the National Nonpartisan League, is expected to take up the measure fathered by the league, which in effect provides a new State Constitution. If the league's bonding and State ownership amendments pass, legislation might be expected bonding the State for the erection of terminal elevators, grain warehouses, flour mills, packing plants and other industries. Matters of local interest will hold sway in South Dakota.

In Nebraska, prohibitionists claim sufficient members to ratify the Federal prohibition amendment, and the "drys" in the Iowa Legislature likewise claim a majority in both houses for the amendment.

Besides action on the Federal prohibition amendment, the Missouri Legislature will take up revision of the statutes.

Maintaining the State Council of Defense as a peace time organization, ratification of the prohibition amendment and construction of a State highway will hold interest in Kansas.

Submission of an amendment for State-wide prohibition will be an important issue in Texas.

Many complaints by persons who paid the subscription price and failed to receive the magazine have reached the university. Its authorities announce that the university offers no scholarship or other advantages to students based on the getting of subscriptions to magazines.

Raisins Under Drink Ban.

WALKERSBURG, Colo.—Officials charged with enforcing the ban against liquor in Huerfano and Las Animas Counties are considering an embargo on raisins. Investigation shows that most of the drunkenness in the coal districts is due to raisin wine manufactured at home.

Manufacture of raisin wine is said to be so simple that it is being practiced by the children of miners, and the "kick back" of the drink is as powerful as raw alcohol.

The Story of the House of Finkelstein

Being a Brief History of the Growth of the Garment Industry in St. Louis

The Vision of One Man and What It Accomplished

THIS is the story of the growth of the dress and skirt business in St. Louis. It is also the story of how one man—Meyer Finkelstein—through his example and influence, has been responsible for the development of a great women's wear market here from a start of almost nothing.

Fourteen years ago there were only two or three manufacturers of women's skirts in the city. Their establishments were small, and their limited output was of low grade and commonplace design. St. Louis had no place whatever as a garment market. Nearly all of the women's wear sold locally was brought in from the outside.

That was the situation when Meyer Finkelstein embarked in skirt making here in 1904. Mr. Finkelstein already had had considerable experience in the garment business and it had been apparent to him for some time that St. Louis was a garment field of unlimited possibilities that was being neglected. Here was a city with an immense commercial life of its own, and surrounded by one of the richest trade territories existing anywhere in the United States, sending elsewhere for goods that there was every facility to manufacture at home. The only reason for this was the very simple one that the kind of goods the trade required was not being made here. Mr. Finkelstein believed that if the merchants could obtain in St. Louis garments equal in all ways to those they were buying in New York and other Eastern markets, they would quickly transfer their purchases to St. Louis. The transportation saving would be a strong inducement in itself.

Facts About the House of Finkelstein

ESTABLISHED in 1904, at 819 Lucas avenue, with 2500 square feet of floor space.

New Home in Lindell Building, adjoining Hotel Statler, on Washington Avenue, has 21,000 square feet of floor space—three times the size of quarters just given up, and nearly eight and a half times the size of the original establishment.

FINKELSTEIN
& SKIRTS

New Home of the House of Finkelstein, Washington Avenue and Eighth Street, St. Louis

That his analysis of the situation was accurate was soon proved. Working in accordance with the ideas he had formulated, Mr. Finkelstein began to manufacture high-grade skirts only, specializing on design as well as materials. His business "went" almost from the start, and has had a continuous, healthy enlargement ever since.

The Finkelstein goods, by unsual features and merits, first gained St. Louis popularity. From that the demand for them gradually spread beyond the confines of the city and over the Middle West. Once they had secured a firm hold in the Mississippi Valley, it was not long until inquiries for them were received from farther away.

Today buyers come here from all parts of the country for Finkelstein garments, and their maker's representatives visit virtually every state in the Union. His products are equally well known in New York and San Fransisco, in the Twin Cities and El Paso, and in all of the large cities of the country they are displayed in the most important showrooms and purchased by the most exclusive shops.

Began Making Dresses

Five years ago Mr. Finkelstein took up the manufacture of high-grade dresses. At that time the situation as to dress production here was much the same as it had been with regard to skirt production nine years earlier, except that there was but one dress manufacturing concern in the city. With a reputation already established and a splendid working force and sales organization at his command, Mr. Finkelstein achieved an instantaneous and remarkable success in his new field. Finkelstein Dresses came quickly into the high favor in which Finkelstein Skirts had long been held. Although he had made previous increases in facilities, Mr. Finkelstein's business now expanded so rapidly that to keep pace with it, and also to meet insistent demands that he renew the manufacture of skirts on an extensive scale, he was obliged to obtain the new quarters into which he has just moved.

Rise Was Rapid

This, briefly, is the history of the Finkelstein house's rise. However, it is but half of the story. A large part of the other half relates to the growth of the garment business here outside of the Finkelstein establishment, and how it has been aided and fostered by Mr. Finkelstein himself.

If Mr. Finkelstein were the only maker of skirts and dresses in St. Louis, or even if he were the only important manufacturer of them, his own business never would have reached its present proportions. His prosperity, as he saw early, depended upon St. Louis becoming a recognized market for his line of goods, and the one vital thing required to make the city a market was the production of goods in sufficient volume and variety to attract buyers on a large scale. He realized that it was no more possible for him, alone, to make St. Louis a real garment market than it would have been for one shoe manufacturing concern, for instance, to make it a great shoe market.

Fostered Competition

MR. FINKELSTEIN set deliberately about building up competition with his own business. One of his chief aids to this end was his own establishment. He watched the young men associated with him. Whenever he found in one of them the combination of ability, balanced judgment and ambition, Mr. Finkelstein encouraged him to engage in manufacturing on his own account, with the result that a long list of the garment making concerns now operating successfully here are headed by former employes of his. Anyone else who, encouraged by his advancement and the advancement of others already following the way he had shown, undertook to enter the field, received a friendly welcome from Mr. Finkelstein and such help as he could give.

The outcome of his policy in this regard is that in St. Louis today there are nearly 50 manufacturers of skirts, against the two or three 14 years ago, and a dozen makers of dresses, compared with one only five years ago, while in both lines the city has become one of the foremost markets in the country. Thus, Mr. Finkelstein achieved his purpose and benefitted himself by assisting others.

Leadership Recognized

But both as a maker of skirts and as a manufacturer of dresses, the Finkelstein house has held an absolute leadership. It is without a serious rival in either field. The Finkelstein garments always have had a distinctiveness and a reliability unequaled by any other concern's goods.

Many elements have entered into the maintenance of this superiority, but one of the chiefest of them has been a genius for his design on the part of the head of the house equalled by few men in the entire country. What this means, this talent for patterning garments which instantaneously please and later hold the fancy, will be readily understood by any dealer in women's wear. Coupled with exceeding care for quality it has enabled Finkelstein productions to penetrate into famous Fifth avenue shops in New York, among others of the highest rank, and to compete successfully, in a big way, with the output of the most fashionable manufacturers of the East. It has been no uncommon experience for a St. Louis woman to bring home from New York a dress which she believed to be too elegant to even be handled by any St. Louis dealer, only to discover later that it was a Finkelstein garment, made in her home city, that she could have purchased in duplicate here at a large saving of money.

While Mr. Finkelstein always has given special attention to designing, and has retained for himself the position of chief of his designing staff, he personally supervises all departments of his business. One of the points he has insisted upon from the beginning, and one that has much to do with the rating of his goods, is that every stitch of work on every Finkelstein garment shall be done under the Finkelstein roof. This rule extends even to the hand embroidering, for which Mr. Finkelstein employs his own specialists, whereas many manufacturers let out this class of work to others. Also, much work ordinarily turned out with machines, such as pleating, is entirely hand work in Finkelstein goods. Another important fact is that in Finkelstein garments nothing but the highest grades of materials are used, down to the smallest items of trimming and finishing.

It will be interesting to dealers also to know that Mr. Finkelstein controls for Missouri the silk fabric known as "Floriswah," which, because of the remarkable success attending its adaptation to all dress and skirt purposes, has become known to the trade generally as "The Flower of Silk." For the Spring season he is specializing on costumes made from this fabric, and also in "Sinbad" and "Sinbad Bayadere," the latest Elarco novelty silk fabric, made up in costumes and separate skirts.

Finkelstein Organization

IN his first year as a manufacturer, Mr. Finkelstein began to surround himself with a reliable, permanent organization and his success in that direction has greatly aided his house in retaining leadership. He recognized what more and more heads of industries are learning every year, namely that two of the costliest factors any business can have are incompetent help and constantly changing help. He first sought good workers, and then extended to them the treatment that good workers deserve, and because of his attitude many of his first employes are still in his service, together with a majority of those whom he has added to his forces as his business has grown. Under all circumstances he has been able to preserve his staff virtually intact, an evidence of the appreciation of his employes of his interest in their behalf. An illustration of his policy with regard to his workers is the fact that he has permitted them to share in his success, first in the matter of wages, and latterly by means of bonuses. This year each employe will receive 5 per cent of his or her wages for the year as a gift, and the outlook for 1919 is such that Mr. Finkelstein expects to be able to double the amount of the bonus a year hence.

The relations of the Finkelstein management and employes means much to the dealer in Finkelstein garments, for a practically unchanged organization, year in and year out, is an assurance that goods will be maintained up to standard, and it eliminates the delays and other difficulties so often encountered because of labor disputes.

The Finkelstein establishment's first home was at 819 Lucas Avenue, where it had 2500 square feet of floor space. It next went to larger quarters at 616 Washington Avenue, and then took 6500 square feet of space at 823 Washington Avenue. Its latest home is the entire fourth floor of the Lindell building, which adjoins the Hotel Statler on the East and covers more than half the block. The building fronts 140 feet on Washington Avenue and St. Charles Street, and 150 feet on Eighth Street.

The 21,000 square feet of floor space in the new quarters trebles the size of the Finkelstein establishment, and a comparison of figures will show that in 14 years it has increased its proportions nearly eight and one half times. To operate the new plant it has been necessary to double the number of employes, and the Finkelstein payroll now bears approximately 200 names.

The new quarters are the most modern and most sanitary of their kind in the city. The floor occupied was remodeled throughout, and everything possible was done in the way of installing up-to-date equipment, conveniences for workers and safety devices. All machinery is operated with electric power, and offices as well as workrooms are light, clean and supplied and arranged in the best manner to facilitate work. One of the important improvements to the building for which Mr. Finklestein arranged is an enclosed fireproof stairway extending from the fourth floor to the first, so that even in the event of a dangerous fire, destroying the commonly-used exits, the occupants of the fourth floor would be able to descend to the street through the stairway in safety.

Typical of many conveniences for employes in the new Finkelstein home is a sewing room in which girl employes are permitted to make clothes for themselves free of charge, on power machines placed there for their exclusive use. Not only are the rooms and the machines at their disposal, but garments are cut for them after any house design they may select and all "findings" are provided, so that the only expense to the employe is the cost of the goods. For $6 or $7 it is possible for a girl to make a dress for herself that would cost her anywhere from $25 to $30 in a store.

Another convenience worth at least passing notice is a large, well furnished dining-room where the workers may eat their lunches in comfortable, cheerful surroundings and where, following a long custom in the establishment, coffee is served free each noonday.

Business Principles

PASSING from details to a summing up, it may be said that Mr. Finkelstein always has borne in mind that the retail business depends for its stability upon giving satisfaction to the user, and his first aim throughout his career has been to produce garments that the merchant could offer to the customer with the fullest confidence, without reservation of any kind, and with the knowledge that they would help to establish his own reputation for handling dependable goods.

In a word, the House of Finkelstein has been built up around the idea of QUALITY in every meaning of the word—quality of materials, quality of workmanship, quality of style, quality of organization, and quality of service to customers—and the name of Finkelstein has come to be recognized by dealers everywhere as a quality GUARANTEE.

KILLS BEAR WITH A HOE

ALBANY, Ore., Dec. 7.—Even as the pen is mighteier than the sword, so is the grubbing hoe mightier than the gun. Citizens at Detroit, near here, have demonstrated this. A 700 pound bear dropped in on a war garden, driven from the woods by a forest fire.

A State Ranger emptied his revolver at the bear, but burin didn't seem to mind it at all. Then the war gardener walloped the bear with a grubbing hoe and the beastie keeled over, turned up his toes and "quit."

The Danger of Imitations.

AN OHIO druggist writes to "The Practical Druggist," a prominent New York Drug Journal, as follows: "Please furnish formula for Castoria. All the formulas I have worked with are either ineffective or disagreeable to administer."

To this "The Practical Druggist" replies: "We do not supply formulas for proprietary articles. We couldn't if we wanted to. Your experience with imitative formulas is not surprising, but just what is to be expected. When Castoria is wanted, why not supply the genuine. If you make a substitute, it is not fair or right to label it Castoria. We can give you all sorts of laxative preparations for children, but not Castoria, and we think a mother who asks for Castoria would not feel kindly toward you if you gave her your own product under such a name."

No mother with a spark of affection for her child will overlook the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher when buying Castoria.

VIOLE D'AMOUR, NEW INSTRUMENT TO CITY

Henri Casadesus to Play Romantic 14-Stringed Fiddle With Orchestra.

An instrument that in all probability was never heard in this city before, played by a distinguished French artist who is himself a newcomer here, will be presented at the Symphony Orchestra concerts of Friday and Saturday of this week. The instrument is the viole d'amour, the domantic name of which means viol of love, and the performer is Henri Casadesus, founder in 1901 of the celebrated Societe des Instruments Anciens, of which Camille Saint-Saens, the composer, is president.

The family of viols formed the intermediary step between the old troubadour fiddles and the modern violin dynasty, and the only surviving member in active use today is one species of double bass. They were characterized by long, sloping shoulders, deep ribs and a high arch. They were virtually obsolete until the recent vogue for ancient instruments revived them, along with such instruments as the harpischord and clavecin.

The Viole d'Amour

An interesting by-path taken by the viols was in the development of the viole d'amour, the unique feature of which is its system of sympathetic strings. To begin with, it has seven strings that are played on with a bow. Beneath these, out of reach of the bow, are stretched seven steel strings which are supposed to vibrate in sympathy with the bowed strings and enhance the power of the sound. Berlioz speaks of its "sweet, seraphic tone."

The strings of the viole d'amour are tuned strictly in the key of D Major, the lowest string being the D one tone above the lowest string on the viola, and the highest being the D one tone below the violin E string. Although larger than the orchestral viola, the viole d'amour is played in the same position. It is said to have remarkable powers for playing chords, arpeggios and harmonics.

Bach used the Viole d'Amour in his "St. John Passion," and Meyerbeer employed it to accompany an air in the first act of "Les Huguenots." Since then it had never been used in the modern orchestra until Charles Martin Loeffler, the American composer, wrote a part for it in his dramatic poem, "La Mort de Tintagiles," after one of Maeterlinck's little dramas for marionettes. This composition will be played at the week's concerts by Casadesus and the orchestra.

His other number will be a "Suite in Quatre Parties," by A. Lorenziti, which was one of the greatest virtuosos upon the Viole d'Amour of the eighteenth century, and who wrote numerous pieces for this and other instruments.

Fought for France.

Casadesus fought for France at the beginning of the war and was for a time reported killed. It was untrue, however, and three years ago the French Government sent him and several other musicians to America to introduce the ancient instruments and music of France. His little band toured the country giving concerts with a unique ensemble of the Quinton, a treble viol; the Viole d'Amour, the Viole de Gambe, the predecessor of the violoncello, and the Basse de Viole. In addition to this quartet, there was a clavecin player. The complete program for the concerts is as follows:

Overture—Pierrot of the Minute .....Bantock
Suite en Quatre Parties, for Viole d'Amour and orchestra ....Lorenziti
Dramatic Poem—La Mort de Tintagiles, for Viole d'Amour and orchestra...Loeffler
(First time.)
Symphonic Poem—Phaeton ....Saint-Saens

"Pop" Concert Program.

At the "pop" concert this afternoon the orchestra will introduce Miss Pauline Danforth of Boston, pianist and pupil of Heinrich Gebhart, some years ago a soloist with the orchestra. Miss Danforth has won usual praise from the press as a result of recitals in the East. She will play with the orchestra Rachmaninoff's Concerto in F-sharp Minor, No. 2. This is the program:

March—Pomp and Circumstance....Elgar
Suite, No. 2—Bal Costume.....Rubenstein
Piano Concerto in F-sharp Minor, No. 2 ....Rachmaninoff

TRIMESTER SYSTEM INSTITUTED AT WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY

Change Made to Offset Disturbance of Demobilization of Students' Training Corps.

For the current year at Washington University the trimester system will prevail instead of the semester. This has been decided upon as a means of offsetting the disturbance due to demobilization of the Students' Army Training Corps and to enable students to do a full year's work. High School graduates, who have not begun uiversity studies, but who have had military training or experience which can be accepted as credits, may enter the university at the beginning of the second trimester, Dec. 30, and finish the year's course.

Through extension of the year to June 21, or 10 days, and curtailment of holidays, the period of studies has been made 30 weeks, or only two less than under the original schedule, and work will be continued till the last day except for the seniors, who will be graduated on some day prior to June 21 yet to be determined.

The first trimester will close Dec. 21, and the second begin Dec. 30, ending March 22. The third will start March 24. The only holidays to be observed after Christmas will be Jan. 1 and Washington's Birthday.

Every Good Physician Ought to Prescribe Nuxated Iron

OR SOME FORM OF ORGANIC IRON, SAYS DR. FERDINAND KING, NEW YORK PHYSICIAN AND MEDICAL AUTHOR, IN CERTAIN CASES

To Create Red Blood, Strength and Endurance

Says Sworn Statement of Composition of Formula of Nuxated Iron Printed Below, Should Convince Every Physician and Pharmacist, No Matter How Skeptical, That It Is a Product of Greatest Therapeutic Value.

NUXATED IRON

Both the medical profession and the public at large should give great credit to the manufacturers of Nuxated Iron, says Dr. Ferdinand King, New York physician and medical author, on account of their voluntary act in authorizing the widespread publication of the sworn statement of the composition of the Nuxated Iron formula in newspapers and magazines for the information of the public and for their generous offer to send a signed typewritten copy of the exact formula to all physicians and others interested.

Dr. King further says: "A careful examination of this valuable formula should not only convince the three million people, whom it is estimated are now using it annually in America alone, that they have made no mistake in selecting it, but it should also convince every physician and pharmacist that it is a product of greatest therapeutic value which the general practitioner can prescribe almost daily in his practice with remarkable benefit to his patients, and one which, in my opinion, every good physician should at times prescribe if he wants to do the greatest possible good to those who consult him. There is, I believe, no form of iron which is so valuable as that particular special specific standard which is used in Nuxated Iron, and if a physician has a patient whose condition is one that requires iron, I would most earnestly suggest that no matter what other forms of iron he may prescribe without success, that he should try that particular form used in Nuxated Iron.

"There can be no strong, sturdy iron men, nor beautiful, healthy, rosy-cheeked women, without iron. Pallor means anaemia. Anaemia means iron deficiency. The skin of anaemic men and women is pale; the flesh flabby, the muscles lack tone, the brain fags and the memory fails and they often become weak, nervous, irritable, despondent and melancholy.

"Therefore, if you wish to preserve your health and strength to a ripe old age, you must supply the iron deficiency in your blood by using some form of organic iron, just as you would use salt when your food has not enough salt."

Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, said: "I have taken Nuxated Iron myself and prescribed it for my patients, and I can truthfully say that it excels any preparation I have ever used for building up delicate, nervous, run-down folks and increasing the red-blood corpuscles, thereby enriching and fortifying the blood against the ravages of disease. Contrary to general opinion, lack of iron in the blood does not necessarily mean you do not have enough blood, but it means your blood is not of the right kind.

"If you feel tired in the mornings, restless at night; if you suffer from weakness or lack of health, go to your family doctor and have him take a specimen of your blood and examine it, and if it shows iron deficiency, get him to give you a prescription for organic iron—Nuxated Iron. Do this so as to be sure that you do not get hold of some of the numerous forms of metallic iron preparations on the market, which may do you more harm than good. Of if you do not want to go to this trouble, purchase an original package of Nuxated Iron and see for yourself that the words Nuxated Iron appear on the package. Not Nux and Iron, nor any other form of iron other than Nuxated Iron."

WHAT NUXATED IRON IS MADE FROM

SWORN STATEMENT OF COMPOSITION OF ITS FORMULA

Ask your doctor or druggist or any Pharmaceutical Chemist or Professor of Therapeutics in any Medical College in regard to this formula.

A copy of the actual sworn statement will be sent to anyone who desires it. It is as follows: Iron Peptonate (Special Specific Standard). Quantity given below. Sodium Glycerophosphates U. S. P. (Monsanto), Calcium Glycerophosphates U. S. P. (Monsanto), P. E. Nux Vomica U. S. P., Cascarine Bitter, Magnesium Carbonate, Po. Ginger U. S. P., Oil Cassia Cinnamon U. S. P., Calcium Carbonate Precip. U. S. P. Each dose of two tablets of Nuxated Iron contains one and one-half grains of organic iron in the form of iron peptonate of a special specific standard, which in our opinion possesses superior qualities to any other known form of Iron. By using other makes of Iron Peptonate we would put the same quantity of actual iron in the tablets at less than one-fourth the cost to us, and by using metallic iron we could have accomplished the same thing at less than one-twelfth the cost, but by so doing we must have most certainly impaired the therapeutic efficacy. Glycerophosphates used in Nuxated Iron is one of the most expensive tonic ingredients known. It is especially recommended to build up the nerve force and thereby increase brain power, as glycerophosphates are said to contain phosphorus in the particular state so similar to that in which it is found in the nerve and brain cells of man.

As will be seen from the above, two important ingredients of Nuxated Iron (Iron Peptonate and Glycerophosphates) are very expensive products as compared with most other tonics. Under such circumstances the temptation to adulteration and substitution by unscrupulous persons, is very great and the public is hereby warned to be careful and see every bottle is plainly labeled "Nuxated Iron," by the Dae Health Laboratories, Paris, London and Detroit, U. S. A., as this is the only genuine article. If you have taken other forms of iron without success, this does not prove Nuxated Iron will not help you.

MANUFACTURER'S NOTE:—Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed and recommended by physicians and which is now being used by over three million people annually, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Enderle Drug Co., Keiffer Drug Co., Johnson Bros.' Drug Co., Pauley's Drug Stores Co., and all other druggists.

Dr. George F. Baker, formerly Physician and Surgeon in Monmouth Memorial Hospital of New Jersey, says: "During convalescence from SPANISH INFLUENZA (La Grippe) I find Nuxated Iron to be of great benefit."

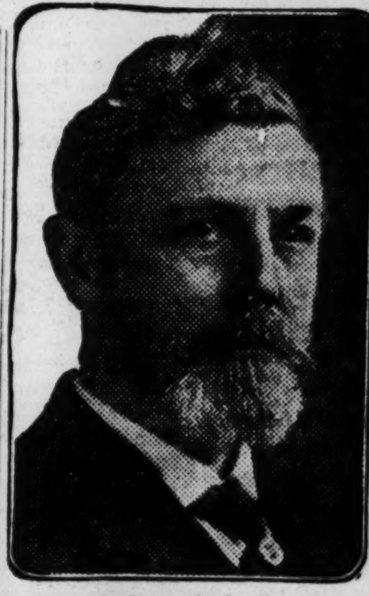
The Doctor's Advice
by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply in any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Elwood streets, Dayton, Ohio, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious names will be used in my answers. The prescriutions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.



Robert asks: "I am constipated, tongue coated, have headache, dizzy spells and indigestion sometimes. Please advise?"

Answer: I advise that you begin using Three-Grain Sulpherb Tablets (not sulhhur). These tablets are laxative, act on the liver, kidneys and bowels and tend to keep the blood pure by arousing the eliminative functions. Relief should follow quickly.

Clerk writes: "I have pains in my spine and frightful headache in back of head, fainting spells, twitching and trembling, nervousness, sleeplessness, loss of appetite and strength, and in fact am a 'has-been' when it comes to performing accustomed work and duties."

Answer: In all such cases the assimilative functions have not kept pace with waste functions, and a powerful, harmless tonic treatment is needed. I find Three-Grain Cadomene Tablets unexcelled and astonishingly beneficial in such cases and advise them for you.

"Lucy" says: "Some time ago I contracted a very severe cold and cough. I have tried many remedies, but they do not seem to help me at all. I wish you would advise me what to do."

Answer: What you need is a laxative cough syrup, one that will drive the cold from your system. The following prescription will check your cold and cough: Get a 2½-oz. package of Concentrated Essence Mentho-Laxene and make according to directions on the bottle. Take a teaspoonful every hour or two until your cold is better. This will relieve you in a very few days.

Pride asks: "My hair is too oily and my scalp itches with dandruff, and of late it is combing out too much. What is a good treatment?"

Answer: Obtain Plain Yellow Minyol from your druggist in 4-oz. jars and apply as per directions. This cleans, purifies, cools and invigorates the hair and scalp, thus stopping the death of the hair. Dandruff and itching are at once relieved. Men and women all over the country now use it regularly.

"George" writes: "Have been doctoring for kidney trouble, and now want your advice. Backache also affects me dreadfully. Can hardly move when I awake in the morning."

Answer: I think if you will take Balmwort Tablets regularly for a few weeks your kidneys and bladder will become normal and such symptoms vanish. This is unequaled for such complaints in my estimation.

NOTE: For many years Dr. Baker has been giving free advice and prescriptions to millions of people through the press columns, and doubtless has helped in relieving illness and distress more than any single individual in the world's history. Thousands have written him expressions of gratitude and confidence similar to the following:

Dr. Lewis Baker, Dear Sir:—We have used three of the medicines you advise—the double four, the Essence Mentho-Laxene and the rheumatism prescriptions—and I want to say they all worked like a charm. They are the best I have ever used, and I feel I could not keep house without them. I am very grateful and pleased to recommend any of these medicines prescribed. Very truly yours, and only genuine corn-peeler, "Gets-It." Then, and then only, will you be sure that your corn will loosen from your toe so that you can peel it right off gloriously easy with your fingers. Take no chances of continued pain and soreness—why use greasy, irritating salves, plasters that shift and press into the "quick," razors and "diggers" that make corns bleed and also grow faster? Use painless, easy, always sure "Gets-It." There's only one like it in the world—that's "Gets-It." Millions have tried and O. K.'d it for years. It never fails.

"My Corns Peel Clean Off. With 'Gets-It'"!

"Gets-It," the guaranteed, money-back corn-remover, the only sure way, costs but a trifle at any drug store. Manufactured by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill. Sold in St. Louis and recommended as the world's best corn remedy by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Enderle Drug Co., Pauley Drug Co., Keiffer Drug Co. and Lowell Drug Store.—ADV.

Do You Perspire?

Axillo Powder is guaranteed to absolutely and completely prevent the annoying smell caused by perspiration in the axilla or armpit. It does not act by sealing or clogging the pores or small openings of the sweat glands, as this is always harmful. A trial will convince that Axillo is a necessary toilet requisite. Sold in two-ounce metallic boxes with open and close pepper box top. Price 50c. At druggists or sent prepaid by PULVO CHEMICAL CO., 6700 Vernon, St. Louis.

THE QUICK WAY TO STOP A COUGH

This home-made syrup does the work in a hurry. Easily prepared, and saves about $2.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant, too—children like it—and it is pure and good.

Pour 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make a full pint—a family supply bottle of readymade cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous for its healing effect on the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

HEROISM AND HUMOR FROM BOYS OVERSEAS

St. Louisans Relate Many Incidents of the Fighting in the Argonne During Late September.

VIVID PICTURE OF TANK CHARGE GIVEN

Letters From Many Units of Different Services Give Unending Proof of Sterling Courage of Missourians

Since the signing of the armistice, relatives here continue to receive letters from members of the 138th (St. Louis) Infantry, written before the fighting ceased, describing the advance in the Argonne Sept. 26 to Oct. 30, inclusive. New instances of great heroism in the face of danger, and examples of the humorous philosophy with which the doughboys faced it, are given. Excerpts follow:

From Private Herbert Abramson, I Company, to his mother, Mrs. J. Abramson, of 1386 Arlington avenue, in which he relates a funny incident that befell his brother Sidney, 19 years old, of the same company:

"You should have seen Sid chasing a six-foot Prussian officer with his bayonet. Sid ran him so fast he didn't give him a chance to turn around and yell "kamerad.' Finally he did, though, and Sid motioned for him to take off his pistol and other arms. He must have thought Sid meant for him to take off everything, because he not only took off his arms, but started to undress. Sid stopped him at the critical time, and we all laughed, although the place was hot as hell.

"The Huns would get down on their knees and beg us not to kill them. We, of course, used our own judgment. I only killed what was necessary. What got me sore was that they had got as many Americans as possible, and were surrounded and couldn't kill any more, they would go down on their knees and cry and yell 'Kamerad.' We fixed that kind. We just tossed bombs among them."

Wound Made Corporal Mad.

From Corp. Don F. Castles, A Company, to his mother, at 5563 Etzel avenue:

"I came through the drive with only a slight wound in the right shoulder, which I received early the first day, and which was just enough to make me good and mad. I continued in the fight with the boys until ordered back.

"Gee, those boches are hard to catch! We advanced three or four kilometers before we found any, and then they came near getting us, but it was not long before we had them. A mere handful of men led by the Colonel (Col. Howland) took the town of Cheppy, and most of us were wounded before we started after them. In this place we captured 300 prisoners, some with their packs made and waiting to be captured. Lots of them were just school kids.

"I am at Chatel du Guyon, one of France's famous watering places; just a whole town of hotels, of which the United States Government has the largest for hospitals. The doctors are fine and the nurses perfection.

"I am only sorry the Huns got me so early in the day, and that I only got one of them. I figure that when I get at them again, I'll have to get about 20, after the way they shot us up.

"Our artillery preparation was so savage and intense that one could almost pity the boche, as there were thousands of them willing and eager to give up, although some stuck to their guns to the death. Our boys were as steady as rocks, lying under intense machine-gun fire, and picking off their men as carefully as at target practice."

Tanks Lead Assault.

From Clarence E. Jones, K Company:

"Our barrage was simply wonderful; I cannot describe it. Picture 4000 guns all pouring shells into a given sector just as fast as they could be loaded and fired. The roar was continuous; the sky lighted with flashes and the earth trembled as from an earthquake.

"No Man's Land and the German trenches and dugouts were simply obliterated from any semblance of things natural. Dugouts in what had been the famed Hindenburg line were demolished, nothing but gaping holes remaining. It was not until we approached the first town, some four miles distant, that we encountered any opposition.

"At this place machine gunners were lively until the tanks came up and squelched them. With the tanks leading we stormed the town with bayonets; swept through and on to the next, and then the next, and so it went—and still is going, for that matter."

Charged With Knives.

From Sergt. Louis Braun, Headquarters Company, to Miss Lucille Trayser, 4201 Lafayette avenue:

"A very heavy fog was on the ground, making it difficult to see more than 25 yards. This proved to be a very bad feature, for it brought us into contact with enemy machine gun nests that had been unmolested by the barrage. We encountered several such places, where it was

ADVISES TONIC

Medicine and Nourishing Food for Grippe Convalescents. Pure Milk Best Nourishment While It Is Believed That Three Grain Cadomene Tablets Is Tonic Required—Gives Reasons.

The victims of colds and la grippe should abstain from excesses of all kinds while convalescent. Even excessive eating of injudicious foods is not without its danger. Pure milk drunk slowly is the most nourishing food known. Take it freely.

Weakness, languor, aches and pains, tremors and nervousness assail the convalescent. Appetite is fickle, the digestion faulty, bowels costive and the victim wonders if real health will ever return.

A good, reliable tonic medicine, composed of iron-peptonate, gentian, damiana, calisaya, palmetto root, nux vomica and phosphide, will be found at drug stores under the name of three grain Cadomene Tablets, to be taken as per directions to improve the vital functions, and hasten the complete recovery to health and strength. Elderly people are particularly requested to adopt this fine tonic treatment, before another attack of disease assails them. Every package is guaranteed to please the purchaser or money refunded.—ADV.

necessary to charge with pistol and trench knife.

"Noon found us on the outskirts of Cheppy. It was more than well fortified. The German officers had ordered it held at all costs. We fought here for five hours, losing heavily, but finally captured the place, after all the enemy were either dead or prisoners. Many of my best chums are peacefully sleeping on the outskirts of Cheppy.

"Finally what remained of those wonderful, heroic men were relieved and sent to the rear. We were a shaken, nervous body of men. But believe me, war does nothing but soften men's hearts. It would change the disposition of the cruelest."

From Jack Lehr, G Company, to H. E. LeRoy, 4336 Vista avenue:

"If you saw me now, you'd say, 'Out of my sight, you dirty bum'—I haven't shaved for three weeks and I have the mud of battle on my clothes and hide.

"We were in a living hell for six days and nights, without rest or sleep, but always with enough pep to go forward after the Huns. We were always in the front line of the attack, and, believe me, I looked in the face of Old Man Reaper, the guy with the scythe and whiskers, many a time.

"I got my first Hun, and I have his cap and tassel, but we didn't have time to gather helmets. We went so damned fast the artillery couldn't keep up. G Company captured one Colonel. He was sitting down to dinner, when the Yanks stepped in, uninvited. He sure was riled, and believe me the boys ate, but we gave him a loaf of bread to keep him on his feet until he hit the rear.

"Some of the prisoners said, 'How in hell did you Americans get over, when we had captured New York?'

"We got some St. Louis papers and saw where the Home Guard had been on a hike and five days' training. You should have heard the boys 'Hurrah for the Home Guard; marched two miles in two hours with cantens attached, and took Clayton without firing a shot!' they said."

Capt. Skinker Took Rifle.

From Sergt. Verlin M. Sims, I Company, to his parents, 5816A Garfield avenue:

"Not long after the barrage lifted we met the first resistance—a machine gun nest so perfectly concealed that we were into it before we realized the danger. It was in a foggy ravine, backed by a low cliff.

"Here the saddest loss to I Company occurred. Capt. Skinker, thinking only of getting his men out of the trap, exposed himself fearlessly. An automatic rifle, dropped by a fallen comrade, was soon in his hands. Just as he was getting in position to open on the boche, a bullet struck him, and he fell with only a groan.

"The tanks came to avenge him, and we charged behind our iron plunger, and wiped out the machine gunners. We were soon ranging across a shell-swept field, enfiladed by boche 117s. As we were advancing down the lower slope of a deep gulch, the boche shelled us with the intensity of a barrage.

"I can't tell you all—a fragment of shell got me in the shoulder. I was given first aid, when a second shell hit near, and I was hit by another shell splinter. Managed to get stretcher bearers for the men, and then went under for the night."

Glad to Get Newspapers.

From O. L. Young, I Company, to Mrs. J. E. Sterling of 5348 Helen avenue, St. Louis County:

"We sure are glad to get newspaper clippings. We pass them around and the boys read them over and over. We have been pretty busy knocking Huns off and chasing them back. I didn't get a scratch in the big drive.'"

Trenches With Bathtubs.

From John O'Donoghue of the regimental band, to Mrs. J. V. Smith of 923 Catalpa street:

"Jim Meehan is gone; he was my closest friend. We lost others, too, but the boche surely paid the penalty. I hope our high command will keep us at it without a stop, so the beggars won't get a chance to dig in for the winter. It took four years to get them out of the trencehs, and now they will be kept moving. The position our division took was considered impregnable by the French.

"The infantry advanced too fast for teh artillery. A gamer bunch of officers than those of our regiment could not be found.

"Some of the trenches we captured were 40 feet under ground, with porcelain bathtubs and electric lights for the German officers.

"Robinson is gone, but, as the French say when any of them meet misfortune, 'It is war.'"

Praise for Wounded.

Richard J. Barrett Jr., a member of the Ambulance Company, to his father, Richard J. Barrett Sr., 7317 Elm avenue:

"We had to run over a road up to the dressing station that was on top of a hill, and for almost two miles we were in plain sight of the German's big guns. Maybe they didn't turn loose on us!

"We would haul from the dressing station, just in back of the advancing troops, back to another one about five miles, and every time we made a trip over the road on our return we would see men, horses and wagons lying in the road that had been hit after we passed. I had shells go over the ambulance, and drop short on the sides and hit in front and back. It doesn't make one feel bad to see the dead huns along the road, but to see the American boys lying there makes a person feel sick.

"It is the wounded men we carry that makes it hard for us, because every little jolt hurts them. But talk about game fellows! I have seen them with both hands almost shot off, and ask someone to roll them a cigarette, just as if nothing was wrong with them."

From Sergt. Owen Glen Tudor, Battery F.

"We had fired one two-and-a-half-hour barrage at the Germans. The noise was literally deafening. Big guns, little guns, every kind of a gun began to fire at once. The smoke was so dense we could not see our aiming points. After it was over, we got relieved for breakfast. We tried to talk to each other, but it was just as if we were deaf and dumb, for, in spite of cotton in our ears, the noise had deafened us. All that I could hear when a fellow would shout six inches from my ears was a buzzing like the busy signal on the telephone.

"You asked me what I do in firing a gun. You may have noticed that I am now a Sergeant. It takes

HOME-MADE COUGH SYRUP

Helps Whole Family, Quickly. Woman's Interesting Letter.

Mrs. M. H. Van Wart, Lents, Ore., writes:

"I feel it a duty to write you. Four years ago my husband had a bad cough and found no relief from any cough medicines he tried. Finally tried your Mentho-Laxene and made it up as a cough syrup and it quickly cured him. Now, this last winter, my two boys had fearful coughs and it has cured them. It also gives me great relief from asthma, from which I suffer in winter time, as you know here we have it so rainy instead of snow, as back east, etc."

This concentrated essence, called Mentho-Laxene, is sold by druggists in 2½-ounce bottles. You mix it at home with syrup, making a whole pint very cheaply, as per directions with each bottle.—ADV.

SAYS COLD WEATHER BRINGS RETURN OF INFLUENZA

Public Must Be Careful to Avoid a Second Epidemic. Easier to Prevent Than Cure. What to Do.

"Encouraging reports of the fewer cases of influenza in this vicinity should not allow us to relax our vigilance or to become careless in the belief that the danger is all over," says a well-known authority. With the coming of cold weather there is apt to be a return of this frightful epidemic, and its seriousness will depend on the extent of the precautions, taken by the public, to prevent infection.

When the air is full of influenza germs, you may be constantly breathing them into your nose and throat. But their danger may be avoided and you may make yourself practically immune to infection if you destroy the germ before it actually begins work in your blood.

During the recent serious epidemic, which hit St. Louis so hard, most successful results were obtained by many through the simple breathing into the nose, throat and lungs of the medicated air of oil of Hyomei. Probably no better, safer or more sensible precaution against Influenza, Grippe, Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis or Catarrh of the nose and throat could be employed than to go now to the nearest drug store and get a complete Hyomei outfit, consisting of a bottle of the pure Oil of Hyomei and a little vestpocket hard rubber inhaling device into which a few drops of the oil are poured.

Carry this Inhaler with you during the day and each half hour or so put it in your mouth and draw deep breaths of its pure healing germicidal air into the passages of your nose, throat and lungs to destroy any germs that may have found lodgement there. This simple precaution may save you a serious illness and the loss of several weeks' work. It is pleasant to use and not at all expensive, as the inhaler will last a lifetime, and further supplies of the Oil of Hyomei can be had at any drug store for a few cents.

Hundreds of people in this vicinity used Hyomei in this way during the recent crisis and avoided danger. They should not neglect it now, for the danger is by no means over.

HUNTER A PRISONER ALL NIGHT IN A WELL

He Manages to Climb Out Just as His Companions Find Scene of Accident.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Dec. 7—Plunging into a well 30 feet in depth and held a prisoner for many hours before his rescue by companions was the experience of W. A. Schaller while hunting rabbits near Payson.

Accompanied by Albert Hyman and Henry Koski, Schaller started hunting. Reaching a favorable location, the three hunters separated, with the understanding that they would meet at an agreed spot. When Schaller failed to appear, his companions started in search. They obtained lights and the aid of neighboring farmers. Daylight finally revealed the long-abandoned and forgotten well and Schaller a prisoner, almost despairing of rescue.

Fortunately the well was dry, but the bottom was covered with stones. Schaller was badly bruised. He had spent the night in the vain attempt to climb the sides of his prison. His calls had failed to reach his companions. The damp air was stifling and he feared at times that he would suffocate. As morning dawned, Schaller determined to make a last effort to escape. His head was throbbing painfully and his senses were partially blurred, but he felt that he must effect his escape alone or die there. Catching with both hands on the sides of the well, he was able to hitch his body up a few inches at a time and find foothold in the stone walls. Hitching and hunching his body upwards, Schaller made slow progress. His strength was rapidly being sapped by the severe exertion, and the margin between escape and death grew narrower as he neared the top. With a last effort Schaller reached the surface and fell fainting on the edge, when his companions found him. Schaller was revived. It developed that the well had been covered at one time, but the boards had rotted and the existence of the excavation forgotten. The owner of the land has filled the well with rocks.

SHE TURNED LONG ABSENT SON AWAY AS AGENT

But When Stranger at Door Smiled Woman Recognized Him.

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Dec. 7.—Mrs. James Johnson of Gurnee, motioned to a man on the front porch and called, "We want no agents here." The man smiled. Mrs. Johnson turned pale, then threw her arms abuot his neck.

"George, my son, George!"

George Johnson came back to the old home after 33 years in search of his fortune. His father, the late James Johnson, had not approved of George's plans to become a carpenter or work in a Waukegan store. He wanted George to be a farmer, so the boy went away.

He was then just 21. He went to the North Michigan woods, and then drifted west. At Ponderay, Mont., he owns a large sheep, cattle and horse ranch, is married and has seven children. But he never came home until recently. Then he stopped off on the way to Chicago with a carload of cattle.

A schoolmate, George Dalzell, drove him to his old home in a buggy. He has been renewing old friendships since.

Why Fox Drive Was Delayed.

OZARK, Ark.—The three-day fox drive here was delayed half a day in starting because some of the hunters brought fox hounds and others wolf hounds. To keep the dogs from fighting, the line had to be rearranged.

seven men to fire each gun—one Sergeant, one Corporal and five privates. All the Sergeant has to do is to see that the Lieutenant's orders are carried out. The Lieutenant gets it from the Captain, who is up ahead somewhere looking things over with a field glass. It is something like football when the quarterback shouts a set of numbers at the men and away they go. They shout a set of numbers at us, and the first thing you know a lot of perfectly good ammunition is being converted into dead Germans."

From Sergt. H. W. Severance, Regimental Gas Sergeant, 128th Field Artillery, to his father, Frank L. Severance, treasurer of the Irving-Pitt Manufacturing Co., Kansas City, describing incidents of the battle in the Argonne Forest:

"One squad was fired upon (by machine guns) and no one could locate the source for a long time, and yet the bullets still came on. Finally the nest was discovered in a big tree. The operators had on complete green uniforms. In addition, their hands and faces were painted green and the guns were camouflaged with green and brown spots.

"In another instance some of our boys rushed a machine gun and when they were about 50 feet from it the operator threw up hands and when they came nearer, threw open the blouse to show that she was a woman.

"We're known over here as Pershing's pets and on the afternoon before the drive started Pershing came up to our position and told us what he expected of the troops—his troops—from Missouri. As we were pulling out of position after the drive, Pershing was again there and complimented us on our 'splendid performance.'"

GENERAL AND PRIVATE IN SECRECY PLEDGE

Father and Son Believe There Is One Thing They "Better Not Tell Mother."

There were German machine-gun nests ahead on the left and German anti-tank guns ahead on the right, and German high-explosive and gas shells were pouring into Montfaucon Wood, but every once in a while the Ohio Brigadier-General in his P. C., says the Stars and Stripes, among the trees found himself forgetting the battle ahead while he mused:

"I wonder how the boy is making out over there on the other side of the hill? The machine guns among those walls are hitting it pretty lively on the other side, too, and Carl is somewhere in that valley that leads up to them."

Meanwhile, above a little stream that curved away toward the Meuse at the right of the height of Montfaucon, a doughboy stumbled on through the bramble of barb wire and the wilderness of blasted trees and dead horses while the machine-gun bullets from the hill swept among the cratered slopes. And as he broke his way forward, with his comrades dropping behind him, he still had time to think:

"I wonder how dad is getting along on the other side of the hill. That artillery over there sounds as if his brigade must be right in it by this time."

No Message Over Wires.

That is the way father and son, General and doughboy, found their way past Montfaucon the second day of the Argonne-Meuse battle. But there were no messages over Signal Corps wires to tell the General that his son, a private in an Ohio infantry regiment under another brigade commander, was thinking about him. It wasn't like the old days when Carl might drop into a telegraph office anywhere, dash off a message on a blank form and sit down to wait until father wired the money.

Here, ahead of both father and son, was a stone city on a hill that had been considered one vast redoubt impregnable to assault by foot troops The tide of battle, while they were thinking of each other, was carrying the General by that hill fortress on the left, while his son was being swept by on the right, with miles between them—and those miles a stretch of death and fire-swept woods, valleys and hills.

Prior to all this there had been the farewell before they went into battle. That farewell was also their first meeting in France. The General did not know until a few hours before the attack that his son was near him. The boy—he is scarcely over 21—had walked into his father's headquarters and saluted. There were the usual greetings. Then the General had turned to his maps and his runners. And Carl hurried back to his company.

"We'll Tell Mother."

As they said good-bye, the General called to the boy:

"Remember, son, you're where I was, and I'm prouder of you than I can tell. We'll tell mother all about this when it's over."

When the boy had passed behind the blanket that curtained the arched doorway of the half-ruined house where the General's post was, the General told his staff the story of his son.

"I didn't know he had joined up until he walked into my office back home in June a year ago and said: 'Dad, I've hooked up with the Umpty-seventh.' He said he was going in on his own merits, and damned if he wanted any one to hand him anything because his old man was a General.

"I patted him on the back and told him: 'Son, I'm with you all the way.' I gave him some advice on things he ought to know—you see, I was a private myself before the Spanish-American War. This has been a busy year, but Carl's letters have told me much—soldier's letters, you know, very short, with nothing loose or sentimental in them. It wasn't until they shoved the brigades up for this push that we came near each other."

They Have a Secret.

Montfaucom was held by doughboys. The stone towers that had stood out boldly among the ruined walls were flattened in the wreckage that lay over the whole height. American artillery was firing over Montfaucon to the enemy lines in the woods beyond. German shells were bursting among the American positions over the dugouts full of dead German soldiers. The American lines lay up toward Cierges and all the way in front of Montfaucon to the right.

The Ohio Brigadier-General's P. C. now was miles ahead of where it had been. It was in a former German dugout under a clump of trees.

A private with bandaged head slipped over the muddy roadway to the P. C., and father met son again. There was the usual salute, then——

"Just had to find you before they sent me back, dad," said the private. "They got me, but nothing bad, I guess. So I slipped over from the dressing station after they fixed me up a little. And I caught my boche prisoner before they got me."

"You've got me beaten, son," said the General. "Wonder what your mother would think of us? I told you a few hours ago we'd tell her everything. Well, we won't. I fell off my horse a little while ago and got a strained shoulder—and that after two days of close-up work without a scratch. And your mother always said I couldn't ride. There's one thing we won't tell about the battle, will we, boy?"

You Can Plant Fruit Tree in France as Christmas Gift

Bird and Tree Club of New York Sends to Each Donor of a Tree a Special Christmas Card.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—One of the ost beautiful tributes to the mem- y of our soldier dead in France is e novel Christmas card idea now ing carried on by the Bird and Tree ub of New York. Part of the hein- us work of the Germans before acuating occupied territory in ance was to cut down the fruit es of the country. In the Aisne gion alone 60,000 of these were stroyed. Last spring the Bird and ee Club sent sufficient money to eplant 150 trees. Today they are planning to have many times this number sent over by a people rejoicing in the advent of peace.

For every card that is bought here tree is planted in France. The st of the card is 75 cents. That is hat the American Committee for evastated France (through which e money is sent) pays for the riplings bought in the tree nurseries Switzerland. The card is a gift the Bird and Tree Club. Every rson who buys a card sends it to a iend as a gift or Christmas greeting, telling him that a tree has been lanted for him in the region of devstated France in memory of the men who died there that the world might e free.

Not the least interesting part of this unique gift is the poem called "Trees," printed thereon. It is the work of Joyce Kilmer, the young American poet who lost his life last July on the battlefield of France. The card, which was painted by achel Robinson Elmer, shows a little child in French sabots standing under a pear tree, the branches of which fall over a tombstone which bears no message of sorrow but one depicting the glorious wonder of a tree.

Under this is the legend, "I am planting a Fruit Tree in Devastated France for" (here is a blank space for the name of the recipient of the card), "in memory of our heroes who there gave their lives that the world might be free."

The work of the Bird and Tree Club has attracted the notice of men like John Burroughs, who is its honorary president, Luther Burbank, and others whose names are prominent in the naturalistic world.

The cards can be obtained by sending 75 cents for each card, plus postage to cover the cost of mailing, to Mrs. Goodrich Smith, treasurer of the club, who can be reached at the American Museum of Natural History, Seventy-seventh street and Central Park, West, or to Miss Henrietta O. Jones, the executive secretary, at 230 West 105th street. It is the aim of the club to convey to the people of France the spirit of this coming American Christmas in a way that shall be of lasting remembrance to them.

LESS CONGESTION OF EXPRESS CHRISTMAS PARCELS EXPECTED

New Federal Company Officials Say Facilities Here Are Better Than Under Old Order.

The St. Louis office of the American Railway Express Co., which is the Federal amalgamation of express companies, this year is equipped to give St. Louis more prompt collection and delivery of Christmas parcels than it has had for many years, according to J. G. Marston, superintendent. He says that the equipment of the Federal companies now is greater than the combined equipment of the three companies formerly conducting the city's express business. Furthermore, duplication of territory in collection and delivery has been eliminated.

Rules concerning the proper packing and addressing of parcels will be more closely enforced than under private operation. In former days, express officials say, attempts to enforce those rules invariably met the response: "Well if you won't take it, some other will," and packages known to be packed insufficiently to carry were necessarily accepted. In one year the number of parcels sent to the "no Mark" bureaus of the express companies of the United States was 300,000. The companies now are in position to refuse shipments which are not securely packed and marked satisfactorily.

In mailing Christmas parcels, it is desired that labels be used instead of tags. Tags frequently are torn off. Shipments marked only with tags will be refused.

Acid Iron Mineral

because it promotes healthy blood circulation. Builds up weak, run-down people in a remarkable short time.

This wonderful iron tonic is the result of an accidental discovery in Mississippi of a natural medicinal iron deposit and so far as known this is the only deposit of its kind in the world. So powerful in iron is the liquid obtained from this mineral deposit that neither chemists nor scientists have been able to compound an iron tonic the equal of it.

If you feel tired, worn-out, listless and are pale or emaciated, take Acid Iron Mineral and let it tone up your system, purify your blood and store up a reserve supply of energy for you. If it fails to do all we claim for it your druggist will refund your money. Every bottle is backed by our absolute guarantee.

Why Should a Dentist Not Advertise?

Is there any real reason why, if a dentist has something he thinks is good to offer the public, that he should not publish the fact, so long as he pays for it the same as any other person does?

I have built up a practice by telling the people the exact truth about their teeth.

Not only in my office, but through the medium of the press. I am proud of the fact that thousands of people in St. Louis and surrounding territory are wearing plates, crowns or bridgework made by me.

I insist on telling the patient in advance what a prescribed operation will cost so that if the price is not satisfactory they may go elsewhere.

My prices for plates that fit, $4.00 up. Bridgework per tooth, $4.00 up.

Nervous people receive careful attention.

My success in making artificial teeth I think is wonderful.

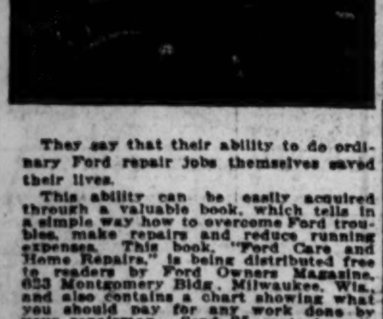
FORD CAR WRECK AVERTED

Ford Tourists Narrowly Avoid Tragedy on Mountain Grade

Tragedy, on a dangerous mountain road, nearly ended the trans-continental Ford tour of Mr. and Mrs. George Hunter, Philadelphia.

The Hunters found themselves gaining headway down a grade so steep that a smash-up seemed certain. At last, however, the loose brakes brought the Ford to a stop. The Hunters shakily got out, eased the car to safety and adjusted their brakes.



They say that their ability to do ordinary Ford repair jobs themselves saved their lives.

This ability can be easily acquired through a valuable book, which tells in a simple way how to overcome Ford troubles, make repairs and reduce running expenses. This book, "Ford Care and Home Repairs," is being distributed free to readers by Ford Owners Magazine, 623 Montgomery Bldg., Milwaukee, Wis., and also contains a chart showing what you should pay for any work done by your repairman. GOVERNORS WILL HOLD WAR POLICY MEETING

Narly All of Present Executives and Those Recently Elected Will Attend.

MADISON, Dec. 7.—The most important Governors' conference in the history of this nation will be held this month, according to Gov. William Spry of Utah, chairman of the conference, who has just directed Secretary Miles C. Riley to arrange for the meeting.

The reason for holding the conference at Annapolis this year is to be in close touch with the national authorities in Washington. Many of the national officials will appear on the program.

"Many important conferences and many important questions have been discussed and decisions reached by former Governors' conferences," said Miles C. Rily, secretary of the Governors' conference, today. "From the tone of the letters received from those who intend to attend this conference at Annapolis, I believe it will be historical and will be a most important conference of Governors ever held. Governmental affairs, necessitated by the close of the war, will be considered. This conference will be momentous in the policies it will shape."

Nearly All Will Attend.

Practically every state in the Union will be represented at the Governors' conference called at Annapolis, Md., Dec. 16-18. This conference will consider war reconstruction policies. Scarcely had the announcement been made of the plan of the program in which every state is so vitally interested that responses began to come to Miles C. Riley of this city. The complete list of those who will attend could not be made public today. However, some of those to be present are:

Govs. Charles Henderson, Montgomery, Ala.; George E. P. Hunt, Phoenix, Ariz.; Charles H. Brough, Little Rock, Ark.; Marcus H. Holcome, Hartford, Conn.; John G. Townsend, Dover, Del.; High W. Dorsey, Atlanta, Ga.; Moses Alexander, Boise, Idaho; James P. Goodrich, Indianapolis, Ind.; W. L. Harding, Des Moines, Io.; Arthur Capper, Topeka, Kan.; Ruffin G. Pleasant, Baton Rouge, La.; C. E. Milliken, Augusta, Me.; Emerson C. Harrington, Annapolis, Md.; Samuel W. McCall, Boston, Mass.; Frederick D. Gardner, Jefferson City, Mo.; Emmet D. Boyle, Carson City, Nev.; Henry W. Keyes, Concord, N. H.; Walter E. Edge, Trenton, N. J.; W. E. Lindsey, Santa Fe, N. M.; Thomas W. Bickett, Raleigh, N. C.; Lynn J. Frazier Bismarck, N. D.; James M. Cox, Columbus, O.; R. L. Rye, Nashville, Tenn.; Simon Bamberger, Salt Lake City, Utah; Horace F. Graham, Montpelier, Vt.; Westmore Land Davis, Richmond, Va.; Ernest Lister, Olympia, Wash.; John J. Cornwall, Charlestown, W. Va.; E. L. Philipp, Madison, Wis.; Frank L. Houx, Cheyenne, Wyo.

Fourteen Governors Elect.

Governors-elect—Thomas E. Killy, Anniston, Ala.; Thomas E. Campbell, Phoenix, Ariz.; Oliver H. Shoup, Colorado Springs, Colo.; D. W. Davis, American Falls, Idaho; Calvin Coolidge, Northampton, Mass.; Samuel R. McOlvie, Lincoln, Neb.; J. H. Bartlett, Pottsmouth, N. H.; O. O. Larrozolo, Santa Fe, N. M.; Alfred E. Smith, New York City; J. B. A. Robertson, Oklahoma City, Ok.; William C. Sproul, Chester, Pa.; R. A. Cooper, Laurens, S. C.; Percival W. Clement, Rutland City, Vt.; Robert D. Carey, Carehurst, Wyo.

It is interesting to note that of the 16 Governors-elect, 14 have already accepted; one Governor-elect, Henry J. Allen, Wichita, Kan., is enroute home from France, where he was at the time of election, and no response has been received from A. H. Roberts of Livingston, Tenn.

The first Governors' conference was called in 1908 by Theodore Roosevelt and since has been a conference of great distinction in this country. It is declared that had it not been for the conference of 10 years ago American would not be represented so highly in the recent war. Conferences have been held at Washington, D. C.; Richmond, Va.; Spring Lake, N. J.; Colorado Springs, Colo.; Madison, Wis.; Frankfort, Ky., and Boston, Mass.

SAW POST-DISPATCH CLIPPING ABOUT ELKS IN HUT IN FRANCE

Letter From Aero Sergeant Tells of Pride of Men in the Lodge.

A letter saying that he had seen a clipping from the Post-Dispatch pinned to the wall of a Salvation Army hut in France telling that the St. Louis lodge of Elks had undertaken to raise the city's quota in the last Salvation Army campaign for funds, has come from Sergt. Hillis Parker, 155th Aero Squadron, a member of the St. Louis lodge, to its secretary, Jules Bertero.

"I just had to tell the Salvation Army man that the St. Louis Lodge, No. 9, was my lodge," the letter said, "and he asked me to write the lodge and tell about the clipping and how several other No. 9 boys had read it proudly and remarked: 'That's my lodge.'"

LAW CLERK ON MEAGER SALARY GETS INHERITANCE OF $100,000

Tennesseean Struggled for 7 Years to Raise Family on Earnings—Sister Gets $1,500,000.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 7.— W. W. Scranton, for 30 years a resident of Knoxville, who struggled for the last seven years to feed and clothe his wife and two sons on his meager salary as a clerk in a law office in Fountain City, near here, has just inherited an estate valued at $100,000.

Scranton learned of his good fortune from attorneys for his great-aunt, who died at Galion, O., recently. Forthwith he abandoned his clerkship and prepared to enter the practice of law. From now on he is assured of an income of about $330 monthly from the estate and this together with what he earns from his new profession, he believes, will keep the wolf from the door.

Scranton's sister, who resides at Galion, inherited property worth $1,500,000 from the great aunt's estate. The Scrantons were born in Copenhagen, Denmark.

Candy vs Alcohol

A PROFESSOR at Cornell Medical College says bluntly:

"Candy is a food, while alcohol is a poison. Both accomplish the same results, but one does this without any bad effects."

Leaving that statement to the tender mercies of the "wets" and "drys," we will simply quote a few facts of interest to any mother who has a boy in the Army or Navy.

When the war broke out, the Government decided our boys must have the best of care—the best to eat and drink. Highest food authorities brought in this recommendation: "See that the men get energy-making food." Sugar gives real energy, alcohol only the deceptive feeling of energy.

The Army medical men agreed, "Give us plenty of good candy. If necessary, cut down the home supply to do it."

Pershing cabled, when ships were short, "Send candy if you have to omit oatmeal."

What have been the results?

In the Army Cantonments a liberal supply of Government selected candy has considerably lessened the craving for alcohol.

Naval squadrons have sailed forth minus liquor—its place taken by tons of energy-making candy. We have heard no complaints that the Navy lacked energy.

An Officer in the Marines says, referring to the energy value of chocolates, "I never go into a campaign without Chocolate. Men fight like the devil on Chocolate."

The above facts explain why Lowney's Chocolates have been scarce at home and so plentiful in the Service. A large part of our output has gone, under Government orders, to supply the candy-energy our fighting men have needed. And we may say in passing, that the Lowney somewhat fussy standards of purity and wholesomeness needed no change to meet the Government standards. Those who have always known Lowney's will appreciate what we mean.

Every pound of candy that you are doing without, then, has been of real service to some soldier—and helped him to "put it over" with what we think you will agree was "Energy."

The War is over —but the boys are still "over there"

—and require candy and sugar. You will willingly cut down on candy — won't you—as long as the boys continue to need it more than you do?

Americans Took Sedan Environs Then Stepped Aside for the French

Honor of Entering the War-Famous City Given Brothers in Arms at Banquet by Missouri University Man as Speaker.

THE issue of The Stars and Stripes, the soldier's paper in Paris, which tells of the signing of the armistice, also printed this interesting story of the capture of Sedan and how a University of Missouri man, speaking for his comrades, told the French they were first to enter the city. It will be noted in this story that the Eighty-ninth (Camp Funston) Division had an advanced point in the last fighting. The story follows:

Nach Sedan!

So read the big cross-road signs that the advancing troops of the First American army found along all the mined and muddy roads which led northward to the west of the Meuse.

Nach Sedan!

Every battalion commander, every cook, every doughboy, as he trudges along those highways had it in the bottom of his heart and the back of his mind that, come what may, he was going to Sedan.

Not all of them knew just how or why the old city on the Meuse had become a watchword, a promise and a battle cry. Few knew that it was dear to Lafayette and rich with memories of the great battle by which, in 1792, the troops of the Revolution drove off from Paris the Prussian host. More knew that it was at Sedan in Soixante-Dix that the Prussians surrounded MacMahon's army and forced there the surrender of Napoleon. At Sedan, then, began that humiliation of France which was the Prussian boast for half a century and, in the fullness of time, the Prussian undoing. It was more of a symbol in French eyes than Alsace-Lorraine itself.

Name on Every Lip.

That is why its name was on every lip as the troops swept on, their lines and the lines of Gen. Gouraud's army converging on the city as the sticks of a fan converge at the handle. American divisions jostled each other and trod on each other's toes, seeming fairly to race one another to the precious goal. But it was not on the cards that any American troops should take the city, even had hostilities not ceased, for the American divisions that had mastered the heights which commanded it from the south and southwest had already stepped aside and turned over to the French, as their dear and inalienable right, the honor of entering the city of Sedan proper.

It was a little as though troops fighting their way up through New Jersey toward New York City had captured Weehawken, captured the Palisades and rested there. When the Americans bowed and stepped aside, Wadelincourt was theirs, and Wadelincourt is really one of the parts of Sedan that is on the west bank of the river. It was to this suburb that the American communique published last Friday referred:

At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon advance troops of the First American Army took that part of the city of Sedan which lies on the west bank of the Meuse. * * * The enemy's principal lateral line of communication between the fortress of Metz and his troops in Northern France and Belgium is by the success of the American army no longer open to him.

Not only the Rainbow Division, but the First Division—two of the most veteran and battle-scarred in the A. E. F.—were on those heights the final day. When the smoke has cleared away and the serene chronicler of the war may set down the details of the Argonne drive, it will be shown, perhaps, that the "farthest north" in that battle was attained by a battalion of that still unmistakably Irish regiment which used to be the old fighting Sixty-ninth of New York. But the differences are hair's breadth differences, and very likely the historian really will not care much one way or the other.

Ohioans Close to City.

That historian must relate, too, how an even closer approach to Sedan was made last Friday night by Company D of the 166th Infantry—an Ohio regiment—which had been invited to act as guard of honor for the French troops who would—in the event of further hostilities at that point—move on the waiting city. That company, headed by Capt. Russell Baker of Delaware, O., reported to the French Colonel at noon on the 8th.

In the stately and still sumptuous chateau he occupied at Fernois, in the high-ceilinged, candle-lit dining hall that evening at 7, the French and American officers broke bread together. When they had finished it fell to Lieut. Allison Reppy to speak in behalf of America. The boys of his time at the University of Missouri will remember how well he always could speak.

On this, his great occasion, he took from his pocket a little silk flag his wife had sent him. After a few words of homage to France and her great army, he told the Colonel what that flag meant, the meaning of its brave colors, its stripes, its sparkling stars. Then he bowed and presented it to the Colonel, who, deeply moved, gathered its silken folds into his tight-clenched hand, lifted that hand high above his head.

"The blood of all the world," he said as every man there rose to his feet. "Vive l'Amerque!"

Forty-eight years before—400 yards from that spot—Napoleon III had signed his abject surrender.

Late that night, two platoons of Company D stole down to the outskirts of the settlement on the west bank of the Meuse opposite to Sedan itself—so close that they could throw pebbles on to the roofs of the silent houses, so close that they could—and did—draw machine gun fire on themselves.

The heights near Wadelincourt were not easy to reach. The last 24 hours of the American path to those

How to Avoid Dangers of Highly Contagious Influenza

Health Boards and Doctors Everywhere Say Greatest Caution Must Be Observed to Avoid Contagion.

HUNDREDS OF "WALKING" CASES

Advice For Those Now Suffering and Convalescing From Influenza.

Prominent physicians and thinking peope everywhere are greatly alarmed over the rapid increase in the number of Influenza cases. It is the duty of every man, woman and child to do everything in their power to keep well and prevent further spreading of such a dangerous disease.

Symptoms of Influenza.

Lack of energy, headache, backache, sore throat, severe cough with attending pains in chest and in the abdominal regions. Dizziness, dull feeling above the eyes or in the eye sockets.

Influenza Easily Contracted.

One reason influenza is so hard to control is because of the many walking and unreported cases. Hundreds of people risk their own lives and those with whom they come in contact by continuing in their work after becoming ill with influenza. Because of the fact that your nearest neighbors, your seat mate on the street car, or some of your associates may unknowingly be victims of Influenza, it is necessary that you take every precaution to prevent contracting this disease.

Best Preventative Measures.

Keep hands, face and teeth clean, avoid crowded places, sleep in well ventilated room, eat a light diet consisting more of vegetables than meat. And since it is agreed that Influenza is contracted through the nose and throat the application of a strong antiseptic such as Miller's Antiseptic Oil (known as Snake Oil) to the throat and chest, and by inhaling thru the nostrils, is advisable.

Hundreds of letters and testimonials from all over the country tend to prove that Miller's Antiseptic Oil (known as Snake Oil) has already prevented the spread of Influenza, and that it has no doubt saved many lives. A few drops of Miller's Antiseptic Oil taken on a little sugar is also a great soothing and healing agent for the cough.

Miller's Antiseptic Oil (known as Snake Oil) costs but a few cents and may be obtained at all good drug stores, therefore, do not take chances but get this tried and proven remedy at once, and apply it frequently to the throat, and chest well greased—then you may feel reasonably safe.

What to Do If Taken Ill

At the first symptoms of Influenza go to bed, being sure to keep warm. Use a hot water bottle if necessary. Call a physician, and in the meantime apply Miller's Antiseptic Oil (known as Snake Oil) to the back, limbs and chest (well greased). Miller's Antiseptic Oil is one of the greatest penetrators known, it drives out soreness, allays inflammation and tends to open the air passages. Also be sure to keep the bowels open with a mild but effective laxative—your physician or druggist will prescribe.

To Those Recovering

Don't become impatient and try to get back to work too soon. Influenza seems to lower the vitality and the average recovery is very slow. When your temperature regains a normal level, and your pain has left, you are not yet out of danger. In fact hundreds of people have lost their lives by going back to work a few days too soon. Remember that it is better to suffer the loss of a few days in convalescing that to have a relapse that will endanger your life. While recovering, and even after apparently well it will be wise to continue the applications of Miller's Antiseptic Oil (known as Snake Oil) as this wonderfu remedy tends to kill all germs and lend strength to the weakening system.

Almost Certain Protection For a Few Cents

Miller's Antiseptic Oil (known as Snake Oil) is not a "cure-all" and is recommended in the prevention and treatment of Influenza, pneumonia, colds, etc., simply because it is positively known to have helped many. Therefore, if you will get a bottle of Miller's Antiseptic Oil (known as Snake Oil) and apply it frequently and liberally, you may feel reasonably safe. Don't take chances in getting anything but the genuine—do not accept any substitute. Miller's Antiseptic Oil (known as Snake Oil) is guaranteed to satisfy or you get your money back—it comes in 30c, 60c and $1 bottles, packed in yellow cartons with black and red printing—this oil is golden orange or reddish in color—get it at any good drug store or at Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Enderle Drug Co., Johnson Bros.' Drug Co., St. Louis.—Adv.

20TH BIRTHDAY BRINGS TEXAN 99 YEARS FOR KILLING WIFE

Estranged Bride, 17, Shot Through Window of Uncle's Home After Finishing a Dance.

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 7.—Instead of love tokens from his wife and relatives the twentieth birthday of Jeff Hanson, son of a wealthy farmer residing south of this city, brought to him a 99-year prison sentence for the murder on the night of Sept 6 of his 17-year-old wife. Mrs. Hanson was shot through a window in the home of her uncle, just after she had finished a dance with the latter.

During the trial Hanson related how he was twice separated from his wife in the year following their marriage and how he planned to kill her and himself following their final parting last summer.

After the murder he attempted to kill himself. He asked the jury to give him a life sentence.

DRAFTED MAN BECOMES CHAPLAIN, THEN A D. S. C.

Indiana Preacher Is Called "Bravest Man I Ever Saw" by Commanding Officer.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Dec. 7.—The Rev.. Miles E. Hoon of Rockville was taken into the army by the draft and was made chaplain. Now comes the following letter from Dan Morgan Smith, Lieutenant-Colonel Infantry, U. S. A.:

"I had the pleasure of recommending Chaplain Hoon for the Distinguished Service Cross for bravery on the field of battle—extraordinary bravery—remarkable bravery, and the wonder of it is not only that the risks were not required of nim but were not expected. I believe I can honestly say that Chaplain Hoon is the bravest man under fire I ever saw, and this bravery is not because of daring, nor lack of appreciation of danger, but is, in my opinion, that Chaplain Hoon does his duty as he sees it regardless of possibilities for himself."

"Hello, Jack! I have tickets for that Russian ballet tomorrow night. Want to go?"

"Thanks, old scout. Better get some one else. I'm feeling rotten."

" 'Some one else, your grandmother! Why, a glass of Pluto Water will make you fit as a fiddle. I tell you that water is a wonder."

In countless thousands of just such scenes PLUTO has become a magic word.

U. S. SOLDIER'S CHECKS FOUND ON DEAD GERMAN

Illinois Youth Sends Papers to His Family, Asking That They Find Owner's Relatives.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Dec. 7.—Two checks for $39.36, one for $12.50, sent to Murphy Trappe, a Chicago boy, by his employers after he had enlisted a year ago and joined the First Provisional Regiment at Camp Logan, Texas, were found in the possession of a German killed in action on the western front shortly before the armistice was signed.

Trappe did not cash the checks, but carried them with him to France. His fate is not positively known, but it is presumed that he was either taken prisoner or killed, and a wallet, containing the two checks, found or appropriated by a German soldier.

The latter gave up his life on the battlefield, and the wallet once more became the possession of an American soldier, Ralph Menard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Menard of Kankakee. A letter received this week from Private Menard told the story, and contained a request that the checks be turned over to the boy's relatives in Chicago, if they can be located.

Menard related that he had made every effort to find some clew to Trappe in France, but without success. He wrote that he had found the wallet during one of the heaviest engagements of the war. His regiment made a successful sortie, inflicting heavy losses upon the enemy. Among the German dead was one who carried the wallet.

None of the German prisoners could throw any light upon the property and its travels will probably remain one of the unsolved mysteries of the war, unless Trappe is found. Menard stated that he was unable to tell the exact place where the battle took place or where the wallet was found, due to the orders of the censor.

Upon receipt of the letter and checks, Menard's sister opened communication with the Chicago firm which employed Trappe and will endeavor, through them, to locate the relatives of the soldier.

His Hearing Restored.

The invisible antiseptic ear drum invented by Mr. A. O. Leonard, which is in reality a miniature megaphone, fitting inside the ear and entirely out of sight, is restoring the hearing of literally hundreds of people in New York city. Mr. Leonard invented this remarkable drum to relieve himself of deafness and head noises, and it does this so successfully that no one could tell that he is a deaf man. A request for information addressed to A. O. Leonard, 70 Fifth avenue, Suite 101, New York City, will be given a prompt reply.—Advertisement.

AMERICANS ASKED FRENCH TO MAKE SEDAN ENTRANCE

heights were marked by some of the bitterest moments of the Argonne-Meuse drive. The valley that runs northward from Chevenges, commanded by many machine guns and swept by the fire of guns from across the river, will not soon be forgotten by the troops that trod it.

That deadly path was traveled that day by soldiers exhausted by many days of a breathless pursuit, soldiers who had outstripped their own guns and their own ration carts. They had even outstripped their own ammunition carts in some instances. Hill 346—higher by some few meters than either Montsec or Montfaucon—looked down on troops that, at the moment, had no ammunition to shoot. But the hill, crowned with 10 machine guns, had to be taken. It was taken. It was taken by those companies who fixed their bayonets and rushed it with a roar. The Germans always did speak scornfully of American bluff.

Indeed, though the last week was rather a pursuit than a hotly contested battle, its days were full of such chapters as these. Consider the episode of the marines arriving at sundown at a little forest made impassable by the bristling fringes of machine guns left to guard it. When dark came the Germans who manned those guns retired into the heart of the woods to sleep and wait for dawn according to their ancient and methodical custom. But the marines were in a hurry. They did not wait till dawn. They did not wait at all.

Protected by the hubbub of the artillery, guided by a luminous compass, taught by the memories of old days in the Philippine grass, they formed a hand-to-coat-tail chain and single file, tiptoed through the woods. When dawn came they were ready to attack from both sides.

Within Grenade Reach.

Then consider the troops that had to fight their way across the Meuse and the Canal de l'Est above Brieulles, the men of the Fifth Division who set up their bridges under shell fire and, actually pelted by hand grenades, walked, waded, swam, blustered their way to the heights on the other side, nor stopped there but pushed on by fighting a none too easy advance of 15 kilometers. If the line held by the First French Army at the hinge of the Western front is to be called the post of honor, what shall be said of the hinge of the hinge?

When the full story comes to be told, it will be shown that when the order to cease firing came on the 11th, the divisions in line in that region were, from left to right, the Seventy-seventh, the Second, the Eighty-ninth, the Ninetieth, the Fifth and the Thirty-second. When the drive started its third and last phase on Nov. 1, they were the Seventy-eighth, the Seventy-seventh, the Eightieth, the Second, the Eighty-ninth, the Fifth and the Ninetieth.

BEAUTIFUL HAIR IS NECESSARY TO SCREEN SUCCESS

It is an interesting fact that the leading stars of the screen have beautiful hair. Their success in many instances depends upon it. It is also an interesting fact that stars of the screen and legitimate stage use and depend upon

Newbro's Herpicide

They use it to keep their hair and scalp healthy, to make their hair soft, fluffy and shimmering. In short, they use it to make hair that is already beautiful, more beautiful.

If your hair is unsightly; if you are troubled with dandruff and your scalp itches even a little, HERPICIDE will correct these embarrassing conditions.

Lila Lee, The New Paramount Star writes:

"The Herpicide Company, Detroit, Mich.

Gentlemen:—After the use of a single bottle of your Herpicide it was plainly noticeable that my hair had improved in appearance to a marked degree. In every possible way the health and vigor, and beautiful lustre of my hair were improved to the extent that my friends commented on it. My observation of many artists on the stage and screen, particularly the stars in Paramount Pictures, has taught me the value of beautiful hair. This attribute no doubt aids in the securing of opportunities for many artists.

Cordially yours,
Lila Lee

The improvement in Miss Lee's hair is not unusual. HERPICIDE will do the same thing for your hair. Your friends will quickly note its added beauty. It is just a matter of using HERPICIDE, and using it now.

People who have their own recipes for hair tonics find that the war has increased the cost of alcohol to such an extent, that this valuable stimulant, antiseptic, and germicide is sometimes omitted. The result is a watery fluid that acts as a pronounced scalp depressant. You have but one scalp to care for, don't cheat it. Use genuine NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE.

"GERMANS AT SECOND TABLE" OUSLEY SAYS

Houston Aid Holds eNutral Sufferers Come First—Lessons From War.

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 7.—Emphasizing the need for food production which must continue in peace as much as it did during the war time, Clarence Ousley, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, addressed the State Teachers' Association. Ousley said that he expected to be back in Texas permanently before long.

The teachers were urged to preserve American ideals, which, he said, although not perfect, were the best the world has ever seen. A study of the social problems of the world were also urged.

"I am willing to feed the Hun when the victim of the Hun has been fed," Ousley declared. "But the German must be willing to sit at the second table. I heard no wail from the German mother nor cry from the starving German child while the husband and father was on a bloody race through Belgium and Northern France.

"The world will still be a world of struggle," he said. "Neither congresses nor leagues of peace can create prosperity, for that is the product of labor, manual and mental; nor decree righteousness, for that is of the spirit, personal and subjective. Industry and morality are still the means of comfort and culture in earthly existence, and no form of government or society that the wit of man can invent will take their place. As well expect the soil to yield its product without breaking and cultivating or children to be born without travail and old age to come without weakness.

"It took us two and a half years to discover that our fate was bound up in the fate of other free peoples. Let us not make the mistake of assuming that, having slain one monster, all monsters are exterminated. Above all, let us not assume that the United States alone is the great and only Jack the Giant Killer. For my part, I feel most humble in the presence of other nations that suffered the agonies of near-crucifixion before we realized our peril and our duty.

"The lesson for us as a people is that our form of government and our mass virtues have been vindicated. We have not attained perfection, but we are on the right way of progress and happiness. Our next forward step, it seems to me, is to make our Government more useful to ourselves without abandoning our opportunities for individual achievement and to make ourselves more helpful to one another. Co-operative group action will serve better than paternalism, for it will give the strength of the mass without surrendering individual rights or local powers."

BEING "MOTHER" TO U. S. SOLDIERS HAS REWARDS

Two Unusual Experiences of Woman Who Held Men at Rest Grounds.

THESE stories, retold from The Stars and Stripes, concern a woman who "mothers" the soldiers at Aix, one of the places in France provided for army men to spend their holidays:

Her German.

There is a motherly yet boyish person on the working staff at Aix who goes by various names. Most of the Yanks call her "Mother" or "Ma." Others jocularly term her "The Anxious Old Lady of Aix," or "The Lady With the Pills," for the ample pockets of her blue coat are always filled with quinine and aspirin tablets with which to ward off the "shakes" or incipient colds.

"The Floorwalker" is another of her titles, for she is always around directing, suggesting, piloting.

Every time a Yank's leave is up, and he comes—as they all do—to say good-by to her, she says:

"Kill one German, at least, for me—for me particularly. That's all I ask. Good-by and good luck!"

She gave that cheery farewell some months ago to a certain old Sergeant of the regulars, a Croix de Guerre and D. S. C. man, one of the first to be thus honored in the history of the A. E. F. Laughingly, he promised to do so, and went his way.

The other day "Mother" got a bulky package, indorsed as coming from Sergt. ——, A. E. F., from somewhere up front. On opening it a veritable cascade of German buttons poured forth. In it was a note which ran about as follows:

"Dear Madame: You asked me to get a German for you. I did. Here are his buttons to prove it. He was a Captain. Yours truly, etc., William N——."

Game a Success.

This is another yarn about "Mother," or "The Lady Floorwalker." It is one that she tells herself, so it is fair game to print it.

Two ancient and weather-beaten regulars were sitting about one day rather down in the mouth. With a woman's instinct, she sized up their trouble in one word: "Money." Tactfully she proffered a loan; gratefully, after much hesitation, they accepted.

"Now I don't care what you do with it or where you spend it," she told them, laughingly, "for that's none of my business. Only be sure to make it last, for I haven't any more."

That was in the morning. They thanked her and departed. That evening they sought her out, their faces fairly slit by wide grins of gleaming joy.

"Here's your money, Mother," they told her, hauling out huge wads of five and ten franc notes. "Here's all of it. Thank you ever so much."

Mother gasped. "Where on earth—" she began.

"That's all right," the two beamed at her. "The game was a great success."

The next morning a huge bunch of flowers, from two unknown donors, graced Mother's breakfast table. Similar huge bunches, from the same two donors, graced it every morning for the rest of the week.

The game must have been quite a success.

KEEP WOMEN ON RAILROADS

WASHINGTON.—Women railroad employes, about 100,000 in number, who were added to the payrolls on account of the war, probably will be retained permanently, it was said at headquarters of the Railroad Administration.

Specific action in this regard will be left to individual railroads, but administration officials who have made a survey of the employment period, believe the demands for labor during the readjustment period will be so great that it will be not only desirable but neecssary to retain the women employes.

Until 11 A. M. on November 11, America Was Fighting and Raising Money to Continue Fighting

We hope all that is over now, with the signing of the armistice.

The Government is planning now for peace and must continue to raise more money to insure peace.

We do not want to lose what we have fought for and won.

It will take more money to insure the fruits of victory.

That is why St. Louisans are being urged to redeem War Savings Stamps pledges—to buy more Stamps and to urge those who have not bought to buy now before December 31.

The fighting men must be brought home and the ships now being built must be finished.

The army of occupation under General Pershing must stand guard over Germany to make sure that militarism does not rise again, that the Kaiser does not come back and that peace may be made permanent.

If we want peace we must insure it. To insure it takes money.

If you have made a pledge to buy War Savings Stamps during the year 1918 your duty will not be fulfilled until you redeem your promise.

16 ARE REPORTED KILLED IN CLASH IN STREETS OF GERMAN CAPITAL

Others Wounded When Soldiers Parading as Demonstration Refuse to Disperse, According to Dispatches From Berlin, Says Amsterdam.

SHOTS EXCHANGED OUTSIDE REICHSTAG

Correspondent Tells of Riots; Radicals Said to Have Gained Control by Winning Two Seats in Election

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 7.—There was a lively exchange of shots resuting in the killing of 16 persons and the wounding of 15 others when soldiers parading in Berlin as a demonstration against not being represented on the Executive Council of the Soldiers and Workmen refused to disperse, according to reports from Berlin today.

Reports said that soldiers on leave and deserters were holding a meeting, a protest at not being represented on the Soldiers' Council, when they heard the announcement that the Executive Committee of the Berlin Soldiers' and Workmen's Council had been arrested. The meeting organized a demonstration, which was broken up by soldiers with machine guns.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—Great excitement was caused among the Spartacus or radical group in Berlin today when the Executive Committee of the Soldiers and Workmen's Council was arrested, says an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen. The Government declared it did not order the arrest and promises that the committee shall be released.

Last night there were serious riots in Berlin, the Berlin correspondent of the Politiken reports. Shots were exchanged outside the Reichstag. When darkness fell Government troops occupied the university building.

Radicals Now Have Control of Government in Berlin.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Friday, Dec. 6.—In the elections held yesterday to fill two vacancies in the Soldiers' and Workers' Executive Council, the left wing of the Social Democrats, or the Independent Socialists, gained both seats.

The council, which has 28 members, is ostensibly the highest revolutionary tribunal.

By winning the two vacant seats the Independents secured a working majority in the council. The soldier element attributes its defeat to the inability of its Brutus, Herr Melkenbuhr, a majority Socialist and one of the two chairmen of the Executive Counctil, to cope with the other chairman, Richard Mueller, a representative of the working men. Mueller apparently has succeeded in converting the committee to radicalism, although its members are divided equally between the soldiers and the workmen.

Incidentally, the radical domination of the Executive Council is proving a stumbling block for the Cabinet of Ebert and Haase.

German Troops in Berlin Are Not to Be Disarmed.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—The Berlin Government has revoked its decision to disarm troops returning to Berlin, according to a Central News dispatch from Amsterdam.

THE REDS SAID TO BE LOSING POWER IN BERLIN

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

BERLIN, via London, Dec. 7.—The red flag has almost diisappeared in Berlin. One flies now where a hundred fluttered when I arrived in Berlin a fortnight or so ago. In its place the city flutters with the red, black and gold of the flag of 1848.

The red flag came to represent Bolshevism in the minds of the soldiery, who are largely responsible for the change. The main organ of the Spartacus group, Die Rote Fahne (The Red Banner), has been pursuing an editorial policy like the Bolshevik Petrograd Pravda in the days of Kerensky, but with contrary results.

I have been studyng the Bolshevik

EBERT HAILED AS "FIRST PRESIDENT" BY GERMAN SOLDIERS

Leader of New Rule Says He Wouldn't Accept "Without Conferring With the Government."

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 7.—The "German republic and her first President, Comrade Ebert," have been hailed by an organized demonstration of soldiers and sailors at Berlin. The Wolff Bureau, the semi-official news agency, thus describes the incident:

"On Friday evening soldiers and sailors, armed with rifles, demonstrated before the Chancellor's palace. Their leaders spoke as follows:

" 'Germany stands on the brink of a catastrophe. We demand that a national assembly be summoned on Dec. 20. The executive council must no longer be able to put pressure on the government. Long live the German republic and her first President, Comrade Ebert."

Chancellor Ebert replied that the administration must remain in the hands of the government. He counselled patience until the congress of the Workmen's and Soldiers' Councils had decided regarding the convoction of a national assembly.

A sailor from Kiel spoke up: "I will put a straight question, whether Comrade Ebert will agree to our selection of him as President of the German republic?"

Ebert replied: "Not without conferring with the government."

The sailors and soldiers then marched away.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Secretary McAdoo, who quit the Cabinet because his salary was insufficient, now faces the predicament of working two weeks for the Government for nothing. He will retire as Secretary of the Treasury Dec. 16, and his pay at the rate of $12,000 a year will stop. Until Jan. 1, however, he will continue as Director-General of railroads, and for this job he receives not a cent, although his regional directors receive $40,000 a year. Consequently, from Dec. 16 to Jan. 1, he will be off the payroll.

YOUTHS BUY BROMO-SELTZER AND TAKE $100 FROM DRUGGIST

They walked leisurely out of the store and past the police station. Rheinfeld gave the alarm and the office force at the police station ran outside but could not see any robbers.

MOST OF ARMY OF OCCUPATION MAY BE HOME BY JULY

March Says 8 of 13 Divisions, Drafted Men and Militia, Likely Will Be Home by Midsummer.

130,840 PICKED NOW FOR RETURNING TRIP

Camps to Which Divisions Will Be Sent Will Be Announced So Soon as Pershing Designates Units.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Eight of the 13 divisions comprising the American third army now approaching the Rhine, either are National Guard or National Army troops, and there is every reason to believe that they will be on American soil again by mid-summer.

Gen. March, chief of staff, announced today that he anticipated no difficulty in getting these units home within four months after peace has been established formally by proclamation.

President Wilson, in his recent address to Congress, said the sessions of the conference probably would be concluded by Spring, and, based on this estimate of the time, Gen. March's statement is accepted to mean that these forces would return during the summer.

Two National Guard divisions, the 32d and 42d (Rainbow) and two of the National Army, the 89th (Kansas, Missouri, South Dakota and Nebraska) and 90th (Colorado, Michigan, Wisconsin, New Mexico and Arizona) now are in the front line of Major-General Dickman's army of occupation, which was within 20 miles of the Rhine last night, according to Gen. Pershing's report.

The 28th (Pennsylvania) and 33d (Illinois) National Guard and the 79th (northeast Pennsylvania, Maryland and District of Columbia) National Army are in the second line, constituting the reserve which is occupying Luxemburg and various rail centers in France, including Montmedy, Longuyon, Etain and St. Mihiel. The 1st, 3d, 4th and 5th regulars comprise the remainder of the advancing army, while the 2d and 7th divisions are with the reserve.

The estimate as to the possibility that all except regular divisions will have been withdrawn from France by mid-summer is based on Gen. March's reply to a question as to steps necessary to obtain an extension of the enlistment period for men in the army of occupation.

Law About Discharges.

"The law about the men who were raised in the National Army is that they must be discharged four months after the declaration of peace," he said. "That, I think, also was extended to include men who made voluntary enlistments in the regular army. I won't have any difficulty in bringing back from France, the so-called National Army divisions in four months after the declaration of peace. It is entirely possible that we will have to ask Congress for some modification of the law to provide a longer period for the units which will remain in Europe."

A total of 5325 officers and 125,515 men, Gen. March said, have been specifically assigned for early return by Gen. Pershing. Included in the additional units reported today are 1426 officers and 29,381 men, the largest organizations mentioned being the field artillery brigades of the Eighth (regular) and Ninety-second (National Army-negro) divisions and the 345th and 346th infantry regiments from the Eighty-seventh (National Army) division (trained at Camp Pike, Ark.). The remainder of the list consists largely of motor repair units and auxiliary divisional troops.

The 346th Infantry is numerically the largest unit yet ordered home, showing 77 officers and 3182 men, while the 345th, with 14 officers and 734 men, has apparently been stripped by replacement drafts. The full strength of an infantry regiment is approximately 3600 men.

Demobilization at Home.

Discussing demobilization of the forces at home, Gen. March said college men other than those in officers' schools which were being abandoned would receive no preference as to the time of their discharge. The order of demobilization providing that combat divisions be disbanded last, he said, has not been altered.

"The system is working at a very much greater speed," March said, referring to demobilization, "and I have initiated a system by which I get a daily record as to officers and a weekly record as to enlisted men. The actual number of officers discharged at the time of the last announcement was 113; the number discharged last week, up to yesterday, was 7658. The number of men

THREE KINGS AND POINCAIRE TO VISIT US, SAYS LAUZANNE

Editor of Paris Matin, Before Sailing From U. S. to France, Declares It Is Custom to Repay Visit.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—The United States Government will have as its guests in the near future President Poincare of France, King George of England, King Albert of Belgium, King Victor Emmanuel of Italy and the heads of any other nations President Wilson may visit during his visit to Europe, Stephane Lauzanne, editor of the Paris Matin declared today just before he sailed for France. M. Lauzanne has been in the United States several months on an official mission.

"It has been a diplomatic custom from time immemorial," M. Lauzanne said, "that the head of one Government who entertains the head of another invariably repays the visit."

While no official announcement of plans has been made, M. Lauzanne declared it was certain President Poincare would come to the United States within the next year, as his term of office expires in 1920. No official announcement of plans will be made, he added, until President Wilson has arrived in France and visited the capitals of the various nations.

United States statesmen probably will have to brush up on precedents and formalities for state occasions, Lauzanne added, as the United States never has received the heads of a foreign Government with the exception of King Kalakua of the Sandwich Islands.

ADEQUATE PUNISHMENT FOR WAR GUILT DEMANDED BY ASQUITH

Former British Prime Minister Also Urges Formation of a League of Nations.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—Herbert H. Asquith, former Prime Minister, speaking at Rochdale,, Lancashire, today, ranged himself alongside those who have declared that the men responsible for the war and the atrocities shall receive adequate punishment.

The Allied Powers, he said, had announced their joint intention of summoning the late heads of the German Government and state before some kind of international tribunal.

Referring to the significance of the visit of President Wilson to Europe, Asquith said that for permanent purposes the world was a new one. These purposes, he contended, would not only not have been achieved, but there would have been no advance toward their achievement unless, before the President returned, a league of nations had begun to be translated from formula into fact.

LIVING COST TOO HIGH? GO TO THE PENITENTIARY

Alton Man on Parole Gives Up Fight for Existence and Goes Back to Prison.

Here is the latest solution of the high cost of living problem: Go to prison. It is offered and practiced by James Francis Murphy of Alton.

Murphy, who once ran for Sheriff of Madison County on the Socialist ticket, was recently released on parole from the Chester penitentiary. He tried it outside for a while, but gave up. He said the most he could earn was $2.95 a day, and that wouldn't ga around for him, his wife and three children.

He left Alton Thursday for Chester, with the announcement that he would ask the Warden to revoke his parole. He pointed out that the request could hardly be refused, as he could commit an offense that would make the revocation mandatory, and thus swing open the hospitable gates of the prison to him.

SAYS CROWN PRINCE REALIZED LUDENDORFF UNDERVALUED U. S.

Berlin Papers Declare It Was no Secret There Was Conflict Between Emperor and Son.

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 7.—With reference to the interview with Frederick William, the former Crown Prince, obtained by the Associated Press, the Berlin papers say that, in a letter to a friend last March, he declared that he had witnessed with great anxiety how Ludendorff undervalued the power of the United States. The then Crown Prince, however, the papers continue, was without influence. He several times attempted to get a conference on important matters, but was prevented by Ludendorff.

It was no secret in higher Berlin circles, the papers add, that there was a conflict between the Emperor and the Crown Prince.

CROWN PRINCE ANGERS MUNICH NEWSPAPERS

Interview Distasteful to Germans — Netherlands May Have to Compensate Allies for Violation of Neutrality.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—If the allies insist upon the delivery of the former German Emperor and Crown Prince to an international court of justice, Holland will yield, but will first urge that the allies content themselves with an undertaking by Holland to intern them for life in one of the Dutch colonies, according to an Amsterdam dispatch to the Express.

Holland, it is said, will suggest that Herr Hohenzollern and his son be placed on an island in either the East or West Indies, where he will be guarded by a Dutch fleet.

It is also anticipated that Holland will be asked for compensation for permitting a violation of her neutrality by allowing German troops to pass through the provinces of Limburg on their retreat from Belgium, and receiving German ships from Antwerp. This compensation may possibly be the cession of certain territory along the Belgian frontier owned by Holland since 1839.

Perhaps the southern part of Dutch Limburg will be demanded. The population of this region is principally Belgian.

Ex-Crown Prince's Interview Angers the Munich Press.

By the Associated Press.

MUNICH, Friday, Dec. 6.—The interview with Frederick William, the former German Crown Prince, obtained by the Associated Press, was published here today in part, and has drawn out displays of anger from the local press.

"If the former Crown Prince really made such statements, he has done his reputation a bad service," says the Neueste Nachrichten. "His belated excuses and attempts to clear himself make such a disgusting impression that no one will need to grieve over his flight to Holland."

The Augsberg Evening Gazette, in commenting on the conviction expressed by the ex-Crown Prince that President Wilson would be able to bring about a peace of justice for Geramny, remarks that it fears Frederick William is badly misled.

Dutch Expect Allies Demand for Hohenzollern.

Copyright, 1918, by the Press Publishing Co. (New York World.)

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 7.—Dutch public opinion concerning the disposition of the former Kaiser has been roused at last by the interallied conference in London. The Dutch are now fully expecting an allied demand for his extradition.

Dr. Louis Israele, a distinguished authority in legal matters, in an article on the subject in the Amsterdam Telegraaf, points out that the ex-Kaiser did not come to Holland as a private person, arguing that the text of the abdication, particularly his appeal to the German people, to which he affixed the imperial signature and seals, "constitute an imperial action on Dutch soil, irreconcilable with the acts of a private person."

Dr. Israele's conclusion is that since the Kaiser came to Holland under false pretenses and since Holland thus received him under false premises, "the Dutch Government is freed from the slightest obligation to protect him."

RESOLUTION ASKS ENDING OF "TAG DAY" STREET SALES

Chamber of Commerce Approves Effort to Stop Miscellaneous Solicitations After Feb. 1, Next.

A resolution submitted to the Chamber of Commerce by the Charities Bureau, urging that tag days, button days and the like in St. Louis be discontinued, was unanimously adopted yesterday. The resolution also recommended that campaigns to raise funds for foreign relief after Feb. 1, be made jointly and not more than once in every three months.

The sale of tags on streets by girls and young women was prohibted by the Board of Police Commissioners over a year and a half ago, and this rule was strictly adhered to until after the United States entered the war. Now that the war is over, the Charities Bureau suggests this method of collecting funds should again be prohibited.

The resolution does not apply to campaigns conducted by the Government through the sale of Liberty Bonds, Thrift Stamps and the like.

PRESIDENT'S SHIP PLOWING THROUGH HEAVY SQUALLS

Azores Will Not Be Reached Before Tuesday Instead of Today as Was Expected Because of Storm.

PRESIDENT'S HEALTH IS MUCH IMPROVED

Wilson Again Takes Part in Boat Drill; Probably Will Reach Paris Next Saturday; His Day on Board.

ON BOARD THE U.S.S. GEORGE WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.— (By Wireless to The Associated Press). At the present rate of speed President Wilson will not land at Brest before Friday, and the probably will reach Paris Saturday. His conferences with the French statesmen are expected to begin promptly Tuesday after an exchange of official visits.

It was expected the Azores would be passed tomorrow but the George Washington and her convoy of warships are plowing through one squall after another, which are heavy for the southern course. As a consequence the Azores will not be reached before Tuesday.

The superdreadnaught Pennsylvania is steaming more than a mile ahead of the President's ship. The destroyers which make up the remainder of the convoy often are hidden from sight in the valley between the great rollers which are washing them so frequently that the crews scarcely can cling to the decks.

The George Washington, however, is keeping a comparatively steady course in the heavy seas and none of the official party has been sea sick thus far. The President took a constitutional on deck after his morning's work after which he again took part in a boat drill and then retired to his suite for a nap.

Earlier Reports of Today From President's Ship.

By the Associated Press.

ON BOARD U. S. S. GEORGE WASHINGTON, Dec. 7, by wireless to the Associated Press.—President Wilson's ship today is running through a severe wind and rain storm. It is maintaining its fixed speed, however, and is due to pass around the Azores on Sunday.

After reaching the Azores, the presidential liner will pick up more units of the naval escort.

The President slept until a late hour this morning and there were no conferences with his advisers.

The President's third day at sea, Friday, found him much improved in health. His cold is yielding to treatment and his voice is much stronger.

Having cleared the work which had accumulated at his desk, the President enjoyed a day of recreation and exercise. His ship ran into somewhat better conditions this morning after a night of heavy weather. This afternoon he promenaded along the decks and joined a party at the rail watching the Pennsylvania, the flagship of Admiral Mayo's squadron, rise and fall with the heavy swells. The sea was bright with warm sunlight.

The President engaged in the conversation on timely topics, swapping stories and experiences with those on board.

The party included officers in the lower grades whose stories of experiences in the submarine zone are tremendously interesting. When it was learned that a film starring a famous comedian was to be shown during the evening on board the ship, the President announced that he intended to be present, evidently anticipating the entertainment with pleasure.

While the President was on deck he earnestly conferred with Jules J. Jusserand, the French Ambassador to the United States and Count di Cellere, the Italian Ambassador at Washington and had a short conversation with Secretary of State Robert Lansing and Henry White, colleagues on the peace commission. No formal conferences have been held so far and it seems apparent that plans for the peace negotiations have been well laid out.

The President has been solicitous of the comfort of those accompanying him and is personally seeing that all orders are carried out. He reads every wireless message received and peruses the ship newspaper with much interest. Before leaving the George Washington he intends to inspect the ship from stem to stern and meet the officers and crew.

SCHWAB RESIGNS WAR POST, PRESIDENT WIRELESSES THANKS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The fact that Charles M. Schwab, director-general of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, feeling his part in putting the nation's shipping on a war basis is completed, has resigned, was revealed today when the White House made public President Wilson's acceptance wirelessed from sea.

"Send Ships, We'll Send the Men"—Wilson

President's Reply to Lloyd George's Appeal for 120,000 Soldiers.

By the Associated Press.

LEEDS, England, Dec. 7.

"I SHALL never forget that morning when I sent a cable to President Wilson telling him what the facts were and how essential it was that we should get American help at the speediest possible rate, and inviting him to send 120,000 infantry and machine gunners to Europe," said Premier Lloyd George in the course of a speech to 3000 persons here today.

"The following day," continued the Premier, "there came a cablegram from President Wilson: 'Send your ships across and we will send the 120,000 men.'

Send All You Can.

"Then I invited Sir Joseph McKlay, the Shipping Controller, to Downing street, and said:

" 'Send every ship you can.'

"They were all engaged in essential trade because we were cut down right down to the bones. There was nothing that was not essential.

"We said, 'This is the time for taking risks.'

"We ran risks with our food and we ran risks with our raw materials. We said:

" 'The thing to do is to get these men across at all hazards.'

"America sent 1,900,000 men across, and out of that number 1,100,000 were carried by the British mercantile marine. The good old ships of Britain have saved the liberty of the world many times. They saved it in the days of Queen Elizabeth, saved it in the days of Louis XIV, saved it in the days of Napoleon, and have saved it in the days of Kaiser Wilhelm II.

Change From 1916.

"It is a change from December, 1916; a change from the days when, at the end of the year, we made our balance sheet and found Germany had acquired more allied territory than she had before; that a new ally had fallen and that another ally was tottering to the fall and that Germany was advancing ruthlessly along from conquest to conquest.

"That was the story up to the end of December, 1916. What is the story today? Every German submarine is in a British port today. The best battleships and cruisers and torpedo boats of Germany are now, with lowered flags, under the surveillance of British seamen in British harbors.

"And the British army, which has fought so gallantly—which has fought with a heroism which the world has never matched—that army, after months of fighting and suffering, is today, at this hour, marching across the Rhine into Germany and into one of the most famous cities of Germany."

11 PER CENT OF ENLISTED MEN MENTALLY FIT FOR OFFICERS

Result of Psychological Tests Applied to 1,500,000 Shown in War Department Statement.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Eleven per cent of the 1,500,000 enlisted men of the army subjected to psychological tests were found to be qualified mentally to become officers, while more than 26 per cent of the men examined were rated as above average intelligence.

Eighty-three per cent of the officers to whom the tests were applied met the required standard of intelligence, said a statement issued tonight by the War Department, giving for the first time the data compiled by the division of psychology of the medical department.

The tests were applied to men in all camps, and are said to give a fair average for the entire military establishment. Less than one-half of 1 per cent of the men were recommended for discharge as mentally deficient.

WILSON OFFERS TO MEDIATE CHILI-PERU CONTROVERSY

By the Associated Press.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Dec. 7.—Joseph H. Shea, American Ambassador, today handed to President Sanfuentes a message from President Wilson offering mediation in the question of the provinces of Tacna and Arica and expressing the wish of the American Government for a friendly settlement of the controversy.

President Sanfuentes thanked Ambassador Shea for the offer. He declared that the matter should be settled in strict conformity with the treaty of Ancon and in a manner dictated by justice. At the same time, he said, neither the Government nor the people of Chile wished for war, and in his opinion, the controversy could be satisfactorily settled.

PLAN BARED TO BUY AIRPLANE FACTORY

Bernstorff Blamed Propaganda Failure on Worthlessness of a Subsidized Press and on Revulsion From Lusitania Sinking.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Further chapters in the story of the efforts of Count von Bernstorff, the former German Ambassador, and other German agents to influence sentiment in America toward Germany and to prevent the shipment of war supplies to the allies, were revealed in documents laid before the Senate Investigating Committee today by A. Bruce Bielaski of the Department of Justice.

Wreck of the propaganda system, built up by Bernard Dernburg, the Kaiser's personal agent in the United States, by the sinking of the Lusitania, and the rebuilding of it by Bernstorff, in a manner which "cannot hurt us if it becomes known," also were dealt with in communications from the former Ambassador to the Berlin Foreign Office.

There also was evidence relating to the organization in 1915 and subsequent activities of the American Embargo Association, with the hope of stopping shipments of war supplies to the allies by so arousing feeling among the voters as to compel legislative action.

German Counsel's Letters.

One of the communications offered by Bielaski, and purporting to have been written by Kurt von Reiswitz, former German Consul at Chicago, dealt with a mass meeting of the association soon to be held, and said that among those who had "agreed to co-operate" were Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee; former Representative Buchanan of Illinois, who was connected with Labor's National Peace Council; William Bayard Hale and Dr. Aked, a minister of San Francisco.

Another communication relating to a meeting of the embargo association, and said to have been written by J. M. Jacobs of Chicago, acting chairman, said that former Senator Works of California and Senator Smith of Georgia, as well as Senator Hitchcock, supported the principles of the conference.

Hitchcock Letter.

Bielaski read a document signed by Senator Hitchcock, stating that the Senator would do all in his power, both as a Senator and as editor of the Omaha World-Herald, to bring about an embargo on arms. Reiswitz's letter regarding the embargo association made this reference to Senator Hitchcock:

"Hitchcock seemed to be very strong for the plan. He told our representative at a conference in Omaha: 'If this matter is organized in the right way you will sweep the United States.' "

Consul Reiswitz, in a letter believed by the Department of Justice to have been written to Heinrich F. Albert, a former German agent, outlined a plan for the acquisition of the Wright airplane factory at Dayton, O., as a means of preventing the exportation of flying machines from the United States.

Bielaski also testified that to make provisions for the dissemination of pro-German news to smaller newspapers the German agents contemplated the purchase of the American Press Association, which furnished matter in type to papers, but he said, there was no evidence that the deal was carried through. In this connection the witness read an option drawn up, presumably by the agents of Albert, whereby the association was "to place its whole organization at the disposal of Albert, in order to spread pro-German news and suppress anti-German news."

The option was to be valid between July 15 and Oct. 15, 1915, and during that time Albert was to decide whether he would purchase control of the property for $900,000.

Bernstorff Documents.

Late today the State Department made public the full text of the Bernstorff documents read into the committee records by Bielaski. They were taken from the mass of evidence in the department's files disclosing German intrigue before and after the United States entered the war.

NEW NAMES IN PROPAGANDA INQUIRY

The document relating to the shipwreck of the Dernburg propaganda was dated Nov. 1, 1915, and said:

As you will have learnt from my previous report, we have since the Lusitania case endeavored to wind up all the so-called German propaganda and especially to get rid of all dubious individuals. I can now say with a good conscience that we are no longer compromised. Some of the old affairs still hang on, but we are more or less settled, although they will cause some future expenditures.

At the beginning of the war many things were undertaken by the Dernburg propaganda which would never have been undertaken if we could have seen that the war would be so long, because nothing can for long be kept secret in America.

Since the Lusitania case we have strictly confined oursevies to such propaganda as cannot hurt us if it becomes known. The sole exception is perhaps the peace propaganda, which has cost us the largest amount, but which also has been the most successful.

Latterly, I have been using the embargo association, and some entirely reliable private intermediaries.

German University League.

I have also made use of the German University League, founded since the war. This has done its best to take the place of the German Association (word not decipherable), which has been of no use during the war on account of its management. The league has published under my collaboration an excellent collection of reports on the war which will be of great service to our cause.

The support which I have already given the league, is entered in the first quarter's account from 1916, item No. 208. On the occasion of later installments to them I will refer to this report.

I ask that this may be sanctioned.

The communication was read by Bielaski, who told the committee the name of the association whose name could not be decoded, might have been the German-American National Alliance.

Wolff Bureau's Faults.

Another document referred to the use of the New York representative of the Wolff Bureau, the German semi-official news organization, in sending telegraph reports to Berlin. Under date of Sept. 16, 1916, Berlin warned von Bernstorff that the Wolff Bureau agents' reports were criticised as too one-sided and said more unbiased reports "seem to be urgently desirable."

Von Bernstorff's message, dated Aug. 24, 1915, said:

"As your excellency is aware, I have used the intermediary of the New York representative of the Wolff Agency, Herr Klaessig, in order to send telegraphic reports to you. These telegrams intended for you are indicated by the fact that they do not begin by naming the day of the week.

"In order that the reports shall not excite attention it has been necessary in many cases to disguise them in the form of press extracts, or put into the mouth of members of Congress when in reality they are not intended to be merely the expression of some individual opinion, but as being views, which, in my opinion, are important for the direction of our foreign policy, and for a proper comprehension of the local situation."

Berlin sent this message via Stockholm and Buenos Aires, dated Sept. 16, 1916:

"The reports of the Wolff Bureau agent are rightly criticized by a part of the German press as one-sided, as he has reported for some time nothing but indignation against English encroachment which nobody here takes seriously.

"As the matter will probably be taken up in the Reichstag more unbiased reports seem to be urgently desirable.

"Please advise Klaessig in this sense."

Leaders of Arms Embargo.

Reiswitz's letter regarding the embargo conference said that the leadership in the movement to stop shipments of arms to the allies was in the hands of two men, one in Chicago and the other in Detroit. There was no indication as to the identity of the men. This part of the letter follows:

For your confidential information I would further inform you that the leadership of the movement, thus far, lies in the hands of two gentlemen (one in Detroit and one in Chicago), who are firmly resolved to work towards the end that the German community, which, of course, will be with us without further urging, shall above all things remain in the background and that the movement, to all outward apearances, shall have a purely American character. I have known both the gentlemen very well for a long time and know that personal interest does not count with them; the results will bring their own reward.

Bielaski introduced letters written by G. Thomas at Rotterdam to George Barthelme, representative here of the Cologne Gazette, further outlining a scheme for outwitting the British censors and getting German news to the United States and Central and South America. According to the letters the plan was to establish a cable news service system between Hollanad and America which ostensibly would be an exchange service between a Dutch paper and a newspaper or news association in America. The United States broke off diplomatic relations with Germany before the plan was put in operation.

German "Milk" Fund.

Organization of the Citizens' Committee for food shipments, ostensibly formed to send food to German civilians, was alleged by Bielaski, who said the apparent expenditures for postal shipment of condensed milk amounted to more than the value of the goods shipped. Thirty thousand dollars collected by the organization under the guise of intending to send food to Germany, apparently was spent for other causes, he said. The committee was formed, Bielaski said, at the home of Samuel Untermyer, in New York.

The German publication society to distribute German classics also was formed, Bielaski said, Dr. Albert giving $25,000 for the purpose.

"As usual," said the witness, "George Sylvester Viereck had something to do with this organization, even after the United States entered the war, but he ceased his activities after the passage of the espionage act."

$3000 to Woman Lecturer.

Bielaski submitted to the committee copies of letters showing that several lecturers who toured the country speaking in favor of Germany, were paid by Von Bernstorff. One of these, Mrs. Ray Beveridge, received $3000 for her services, he said. Mrs. Beveridge frequently communicated with Von Bernstorff, the witness declared, and at one time brought a parcel of pro-German moving picture films to him from Germany.

Louis Garthe, Washington correspondent of the Baltimore American, mentioned by Bielaski as a contributor to the National Courier, said tonight he had written Chairman Overman for permission to appear before the committee and file copies of the articles, all of which, he stated, advocated unswerving loyalty by German Americans to America.

Bielaski will continue his testimony Monday.

Shipwreck of German propaganda initiated in America by Bernard Dernburg was attributed by Count Bernstorff in his explanation to the Berlin Foreign Office to the impossibility of keeping secret the fact that an American newspaper is subsidized, and to the sinking of the Lusitania.

In a letter to the Foreign Office in 1915, Bernstorff said the subsidizing of papers always ended with him being held responsible for all the articles of such papers. For that reason, he said, he had succeeded in getting free of all relations with the Fair Play of Marcus Braun, and that he als would like to be free from The Fatherland, which, he added, "has shown itself of little value."

The letter spoke of an unfortunate experience with the "Times-Mail," and said only the future would show "whther we will have better luck with Mr. Huntington Wright and Mr. T. E. Low."

Among other documents presented by Bielaski on the second day of his appearance before the committee were several relating to J. F. J. Archibald, the American newspaper man from whom German communications were taken by the British authorities while he was on his way to Germany. One paper was a German embassy receipt for $5000 signed by Archibald, dated April 21, 1915.

Telegrams began to reach the committee today from the men whose names appeared on the "important list of names," among the German papers produced yesterday. Next Tuesday was set for hearing Prof Alfred Bushnell Hart of Harvard, who asked to be heard.

A communication from Bernstorff to Berlin, dated Nov. 1, 1916, announced that reorganization of German propaganda had been started to avoid complications since the public sentiment was aroused against the sinking of the Lusitania.

Concerning National Courier.

Submitting evidence concerning the National Courier, published for a time in Washington, Bielaski said its editor, Theodore E. Lowe, received $8000 from the Germans during the paper's short life.

Bielaski also testified that Louis Garthe, Washington correspondent of the Baltimore American, was a regular contributor to the Courier, without the knowledge of the management of the American.

The Bernstorff letter reporting on difficulties in dealing with the American press, was read as follows:

"As to the value of weekly papers in general, there are here very different views. Mr. Bayard Hale wishes me to propose to you the founding of a first-class weekly, whereas I, in my report No. 412, recommended the starting of a monthly.

"Personally, I think it entirely dependent upon whether we make a happy choice in respect to the editor. In this respect we have had a very unfavorable experience with the 'Times-Mail.' Only the future can show whether we shall have better luck with Mr. Huntington Wright and Mr. T. E. Lowe.

No Reticence Over Here.

"The fact of an American newspaper being subsidized can never be kept secret because there is no reticence in this country.

"It always ends with my being held responsible for all the articles of any such newspaper. This is particularly undesirable when, as now, we are in an election campaign of bitterest character which is turning largely upon foreign policy.

"I have, therefore, with much satisfaction to myself at least, succeeded in getting out of all relations with Fair Play of Mr. Marcus Braun. I should also be glad to free from the fatherland which has shown itself to be of little value.

"It is particularly difficult in a hostile country to find suitable persons for help of this sort and to this as well as the Lusitania case we may attribute the shipwreck of the German propaganda initiated by Herr Dernburg."

Fair Play's Record Told.

Marcus Braun, a former immigration inspector, was editor of the Fair Plaiy. This paper, Bielaski told the committee, received numerous subsidies from the German embassy, the amounts ranging from $1000 to $5000. Early in 1916, publication of the paper was stopped, as its circulation had dropped to such a low figure that it had become of little value to the Germans.

To prevent the ownership of the paper from going into bankruptcy, with "undesirable publicity" being given to it, Bielaski said the German embassy paid $3074 for the payment of debts. This amount was given, it was declared, only after Braun had threatened that he would make no effort to prevent the publication of the connection between the German Government and the paper, should it become bankrupt.

A letter to Bernstorff from Dr. Albert, read into the record, termed this "despicable extortion," but recommended that the amount should be paid to avoid further trouble.

Tells About Archibald.

Referring to J. F. J. Archibald, Bielaski said he started to Germany and Austria as a representative of the Wheeler Syndicate, bearing letters from Count von Bernstorff and Capt. von Papen, saying he was an "unscrupulous independent journalist" and that he was going to Germany and Austria to "gather fresh impressions."

Archibald's connection with the Wheeler Syndicate ceased, however, according to the witness, when his articles became so pro-German that the papers associated with the syndicate refused to print them.

A message from John Wheeler, head of the syndicate to Archibald, telling him his services were dispensed with, dated Oct. 27, 1914, was read. This message said the contract with Archibald provided that he should write unbiased news from the battlefront, whereas he remained in Austria and wrote news biased in favor of the Central Powers.

Another writer alleged to have been on the payroll of the German embassy was William Warren, associate editor of Freedom, a foreign language publication at Cleveland, who, Bielaski said, wrote a motion picture scenario called "Blood Is Thicker Than Water," containing a scene showing Austrian workers in the United States refusing to make munitions for the alllies and the subsequent burning of the plant.

Of the National Courier, the committee was told that plans had been made so to enlarge the field in which the Courier was circulated that it would become a national publication. Before these plans could be carried out, however, his country severed diplomatic relations with Germany. Lowe was quoted as saying he deeply regretted this break, as he had sincerely wanted to "serve the interests of his adopted land as well as those of his beloved Germany."

Roger Sullivan Mentioned.

A letter was read, signed by P. Reiswitz, German Consul at Chicago, referring to the embargo league. It said:

"For the purpose of inner organization, to which we attribute particular importance, we have assured ourselves of the co-operation of the local Democratic boss, Roger C. Sullivan. Sullivan was formerly leader of the Wilson campaign, and is a deadly enemy of Wilson, as the latter did not keep his word to make him Senator."

The State Department late today made public the complete texts of all the Bernstorff documents read into record by Bielaski. These, with a mass of other evidence disclosing German intrigue before and after the United States went to war, are in the department's files.

A copy purporting to be the contract under regulation between Dr. Albert and the American Press Association was among the papers submitted.

Bielaski said the object of this proposed deal was to make provision for the dissemination of pro-German news to small newspapers without wire service. The option, as read into the record, follows:

Terms of Agreement.

"1. The American Press Association places its whole organization at the disposal of Mr. H. F. Albert in order to spread pro-German news or to suppress anti-German news, or to make pro-German propaganda in any other way compatible with its organization. It is understood that this arrangement will keep within the limits of sound business principles, that is, the pro-German propaganda shall not be more accentuated than compatible with not diminishing proficiency of organization. It must also be avoided that the American Press Association becomes a recognized pro-German organization.

"2. This arrangement to be dated from July 15 until Oct. 15, 1915. Within this time Mr. Albert has to declare whether he will make use of the option to buy the association by the payment of the amount of $900,000.

"3. As recompensation for extending the option to Oct. 15, 1915, and placing the good will of the association at the disposal of Mr. Albert, the aforesaid association will receive the sum of ——, payable the first of each month. And Mr. Albert will designate his delegates, who will confer, if necessary, in daily conference with Mr. Smith in regard to the general policy to be pursued and the practical steps to be taken."

Roger Sullivan Denies That He Is President's Publical Enemy.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—Roger C. Sullivan said tonight:

"I never heard the names of either Reiswitz or the Embargo League before. The statement that I am an enemy of President Wilson is not true. In fact, the entire reference to my attitude is absolutely failse."

Bartholdt Says He Never Heard of Dr. Fuehr or the "Important List."

Former Congressman Bartholdt of 4066 Flora boulevard, when asked today about his name being on an "important list of names" found in the diary of Dr. Karl A. Fuehr, a German agent, said:

"Before this, I never heard of Fuehr or the list. It was known that I was pro-German prior to the entrance of this country into the war, just as other Americans were pro-English or pro-French."

PASSIVE HOSTILITY OF GERMANS TO OUR MEN WEAKENS

Commanders of Occupation Armies Lay Down Few Rules for Inhabitants, Relying Upon Pershing's Proclamation.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Gen. Pershing's report for Friday on the advance of the American army of occupation into Germany follows:

"The Third American army, advancing along the entire army front, today reached the general line Udelhoven-Dooweller-Laubach - Driesch-Todanroth-Worresbach."

By the Associated Press.

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 7.—British troops entered Cologne at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon.

BASLE, Friday, Dec. 6.—The British forces which entered Cologne today were English Lancers and armored motor cars.

Three bridgeheads along the Rhine will be occupied by allied forces. That at Cologne will be held by the British and Mainz will be occupied by the French. American troops will garrison the bridgehead at Coblenz, between Cologne and Mainz.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—An official statement issued today by the British War Office, reporting the progress of the British army of occupation in Germany, says: "On Friday our troops continued their advance. By evening they had reached the general line of Rheinbach, Weiler, west of Bergheim and Welinghoven."

By the Associated Press.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY OF OCCUPATION, Thursday, Dec. 5.—While the marching forces are bringing more villages under American control, Gen. Brown, the military Governor at Treves, and Gen. Smith, in charge of civil affairs, are completing plans for their temporary Government.

Philosophically the inhabitants both here and in the smaller towns continue to accept the situation and the local officials are co-operating with the Americans as well as they can.

Few rules have been laid down, as it is expected that the broad admonition contained in Gen. Pershing's proclamation that regulations promulgated by the military must be obeyed without question and unhesitatingly, will be respected.

Firearms of all descriptions and ammunition have been ordered turned in, with the warning that if this is not done a search of the houses will be made. Late today hundreds of the inhabitants appeared with guns ranging from the German army rifle to an ancient fowling piece.

Have Enough to Eat.

As the army advances the necessity of food relief appears less urgent. Food is not abundant; there is enough. The absence of pepper in the restaurants, it is learned, is due to the fact that the Germans used all the available stocks of this condiment in the manufacture of mustard gas.

Reports received from Coblenz indicate that the reception there will be essentially the same as at Treves and the score of smaller towns already occupied.

The inhabitants of the zone taken over today received the American troops with the same courteous indifference that has characterized the manner of the Germans everywhere, but in Treves and other communities occupied the first day a change in the attitude of the Germans is becoming apparent.

Children Follow Troops.

Children gather around the enlisted men and follow the marching troops and eagerly practice the use of the English language whenever the men will listen to or talk to them.

Even men and women are weakening from what was an obvious determination to ignore the Americans. The Mayor of one town explained that the people had expected the same militaristic attitude as they would receive from their own soldiers and perhaps retaliatory methods but when an unassertive manner was adopted by the Americans it was difficult for the people to maintain their air of passive hostility.

The Germans have not yet seen Gen. Pershing, the American Commander in Chief, but they probably soon will have the opportunity since he expects to enter the occupied territory and come to Treves. Gen. Pershing, however, will not enter the city with any pomp or display.

House Where President Will Live While in Paris

Murat Mansion Is in a Fashionable Neighborhood and Is Adjacent to a Butcher Shop and an Familiar Little Cafe.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 7.—The town house of Prince and Princess Joachim Murat, placed at the disposal of President and Mrs. Wilson during their stay in Paris, at the request of the Government, will soon be completely renovated and ready to receive the American chief executive and his wife.

The Rue de Monceau, in which the house is located, while one of the most fashionable neighborhoods of Paris, contains all sorts of houses. Adjoining the Murat house on the right is the Ste. Marie Institution, a large school for children, consisting of many buildings and a playground.

Across the street lives a woman artist and a doctor and there are a group of offices and a butcher store. On the other corner there is the familiar little French cafe with a few iron tables and chairs on the sidewalk in front, where signs announce that wine and beer are for sale.

Although the Murat mansion is rapidly becoming known as "La Maison Blanche de Paris," it is not white, but a dull brown tint. The house itself is hidden from the street by a stone wall 10 feet high in which there are two narrow wooden gates and in the center a big double door for vehicles.

Inside the gates is a large graveled space. Here the guest of honor will be stationed. A low ornamental iron fence on the side way from the school separates the court from the spacious grounds and gardens stretching away for half a block and enclosed by a stone wall giving complete privacy.

Broad graveled walks wind through green lawns under trees of great size. A stroll around the gardens gives a view of elaborate conservatories at the rear of the house. At the rear, also, are the servants' quarters, the garage and other outbuildings which are reached by a passageway under the house at the side nearest the school.

On the lower floor of the mansion in addition to salon, ball room, dining and breakfast rooms, there are a private study, which the President will use, and offices for his personal staff. The upper floors contain great high-ceiled sleeping chambers and are wonderfully decorated with priceless collections of antiques.

In the sleeping chambers are enormous four-poster beds; some of which require little steps to enable the occupant to climb in. Stern old gentlemen, some in the uniform of the days that are past, and many beautiful women in the costumes of the times in which they lived look down from nearly every wall. Golden cherubs peep from above the handsome tapestries in one chamber.

There is a profusion of ivory miniatures and all manner of vases and ornaments gathered from the world's four corners. Every room contains at least three long French windows, delicately curtained.

In the house itself an army of workmen and servants were busy today cleaning and replacing furniture, paintings, portraits and beautiful marble statuary. The carpets and rugs were rolled up in the great hall, which is considered one of the most elaborate in Paris. There was a smell of fresh paint and soap everywhere.

American soldiers were doing all sorts of things in the mansion. Great lorries rolled up and unloaded switchboards, telephone instruments and big reels of lead-covered cables. The President and his suite will have ehis own private telephone exchange, as well as private telephone wires.

Princess Murat expects that her home will be in readiness to receive the nation's guests by Dec. 10.

GERMAN BREAKUP, THEN UNION, SAID TO BE EXPECTED

movement here, and I find it daily to be losing strength, as it continues its attacks upon the Government. The vast majority of the Socialists are satisfied with what is now phrased as the "Ebert-Haase" Government, and the extremely hostile efforts from the left wing have been upset. There are constant rumors even of an imminent armed conflict by returning soldiers against the Government's enemies.

Bolshevik attempts to overthrow the present Social Democratic Government with the hope of a Bolshevik coup d'etat have also caused considerable counter revolutionary sentiment, but the combination of all the Bourgeoisie and Liberals with the Social Democrats behind the Government gives the counter revolution from either the Right or Left little chance to succeed.

Growing Steadiness.

I have been mixing with every class of people and I find a growing steadiness of the sentiment to get behind the Government, since it has announced an election for a constituent assembly for February. This sentiment is particularly strong among the business and professional men, whose support of the Government is dwarfing in importance the support of the Workmen's and Soldiers' Council.

Although the Workmen's and Soldiers' Council has a national congress planned for Dec. 16, it is occupying a diminishing space in the day's news.

While it is a huge difficulty to predict to what lengths an armed conflict might go, it can hardly result in anything but the increasing of the power of the present Government. Former guard regiments have announced themselves formally as supporters of the Government against "a counter revolution from the Right or Left," and as they feel themselves bound to support the Social Democratic Government, they are aroused over the attacks of the Spartacus group, which, in the Rote Fahne, calls them Scheidemann's White Guard.

Parallel with this immediate attention is the effort of the Bavarians, with the South Germans, to pull apart from the north of the Government continues to direct affairs from Berlin. Premier Kurt Fisner at Munich wants a united conference at Jena, which the Government refuses. At the bottom of this struggle is the old feeling against Prussia, which some Prussians reciprocate.

Catholics in the South are wielding political influence which is surprising in the North. The Socialists precipitated this. In reality, there are two struggles between the North and South, one between the Socialists in the South and those in Berlin, and the other religious and directed against the Socialist group which attacked the power of the church.

From these struggles it is expected there will be a practical breaking up of Germany between now and February, but with a new union thereafter. Forecasts indicate a majority of the constituent assembly will be won by the Moderate Social Democrats.

Leader of Soldiers' Revolutionaries Arrested at Council Session.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Friday, Dec. 6.—A former noncommissioned officer named Gerhard, who is one of the members of the executive council of Berlin and leader of the soldier revolutionaries, was arrested yesterday. He is under a mild form of detention charged, among other things, with advocating physical opposition to Dr. Karl Liebknecht, leader of the Spartacus group of Socialists. The fact that he was arrested at a plenary session of the Soldiers' Council, at which it was planned to organize a revolt against Herman Molkenbuhr and other members of the Soldiers' Council, is interpreted here as a successful endeavor to remove him from the scene.

Returning Troops Demand Early National Assembly.

By the Associated Press.

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 7.—At Munich, says a Berlin dispatch, returning troops led by officers and bearing the old and new imperial anod State flags, demanded a speedy summoning of the National Assembly.

The Bavarian Premier, Kurt Eisner, was compelled to come out and respond to the demonstrators. He promised the early calling of the assembly. Herr Eisner was surrounded by a body guard and had armored cars brought up. The soldiers protested so vigorously against the presence of the cars that they were withdrawn.

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Federal aid in ending employment of child labor and in providing education and physical training for the country's youth, was urged at the fourteenth national conference on child labor here today.

GEN. MARCH TELLS MORE ABOUT THE DEMOBILIZATION PLANS

discharged in the United States last week was over 200,000."

Announcement was made of the sailing from France of the transports Susquehanna, Santa Anna and De Kalb, with sick, wounded and casuals. The Santa Anna and De Kalb sailed Dec. 2 and may be expected to arrive in New York about Dec. 17. The De Kalb has on board 11 naval officers and 574 naval enlisted men. The Susquehanna sailed from France in Nov. 29, and is due to arrive in New York Dec. 10.

Men on Transport.

The Susquehanna is bringing casual Company No. 101, consisting of two officers and 130 men, and casuals consisting of two officers and 755 men in addition. The Santa Anna has on board 48 officers, 21 enlisted men and 79 civilians.

Answering a question regarding reports that the Eleventh Division, now at Camp Meade, is being kept intact for some special work, Gen. March said:

"It is not true. The Eleventh is a combatant division and its demobilization will come after the other eight classes of enlisted men, which I have already announced. The Eleventh, like many of the divisions which were organizing when the armistice was signed, contains regular regiments, and those regiments will be used for guard duty in the various camps after the troops from the National Army have been withdrawn."

Embarked for Home.

The total of returning troops already actually embarked for home was announced at 854 officers, 17,363 men, 185 civilians, 2 nurses and 2 prisoners.

To set at rest numerous rumors regarding enormous casualties in the Twenty-seventh (New York) Division, Gen. March announced that after a careful examination of casualty lists it had been found that the total casualties reported from all causes in this division was 44 officers and 1109 men.

Since the stay of the army of occupation abroad is indefinite, Gen. March said it would be necessary to ask Congress for new enlistment legislation. Under the present law no provision is made for such a force as will be needed after the four months from the signing of peace when the war army must be discharged.

So far as transportation is concerned, the chief of staff said it would be easy to bring home all national guard and national army divisions within the four months. The camps to which each large unit will be sent for demobiliaztion will be announced as soon as Gen. Pershing cables that the unit has started for home.

In the additional units which Gen. Pershing has designated for early return are 1426 officers and 29,381 enlisted men.

STAR SHELL INCREASES NAVY'S FIGHTING EFFICIENCY AT NIGHT

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7. — The fighting efficiency of the American Navy at night will be increased about 25 per cent by the perfection of a star shell operating at long range under all conditions at sea. The new shell, which is said to excel any produced by other nations, and the history of its development, is described in a statement tonight by the Navy Department.

The shell is said to be suitable for firing from guns of from three to five inch caliber and is fitted with a parachute attachment. It is filled with illuminating material guaranteed to burn in spite of the terrific rush of air it meets when freed. The value of the shell lies, said the Navy Department's statement, in illuminating the naval units of the enemy without disclosing the position of the craft using the shell.

Experimental work to develop such a shell was started by the Bureau of Ordnance of the Navy Department in 1900. The war experience of the allies, both on land and sea, and of the American Navy was utilized in perfecting it.

Mrs. Wilson Took Simple Wardrobe on Trip Abroad

Nothing New for Journey, but She Had Already Acquired Three New Gowns; What First Lady Likes to Wear.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The wardrobe which Mrs. Woodrow Wilson took with her to Europe is very simple and contains practically nothing that is new. She did not wear herself out with last-moment shopping, but sailed away feeling well and unwearied. Mrs. Wilson has only acquired three new gowns this winter and had worn all three before she left for overseas. She always wears costumes simple to the point of severity in design and finish, but always of the richest materials, exquisite in taste and equal to any social demand that could be made upon her.

Therefore she did not need to concern herself with any detail of proper costuming, for she could feel assured of always being well dressed, whether wearing a sport suit or gowned to meet the dignitaries of the allied nations. Then, too, she is going to a republic, and one devastated by war.

Can Get More in Paris.

It has been hinted that, if Mrs. Wilson finds the need for new or elaborate costumes, will she not be in Paris, where she can quickly purchase the loveliest frocks to be had anywhere? As the presidential party expects to go to England and Italy, it is taken for granted these nations will entertain our chief executive and the first lady of the land, in which case Mrs. Wilson will probably have to make a few additions to her wardrobe suitable for court functions.

Since the war, drawing rooms at Buckingham Palace have been eliminated and in Italy royalty has done practically nothing in the way of entertaining. Both in London and Rome social life will soon resume their course followed before the world plunged into strife and bloodshed, and special efforts will be made to make the visit of our President, his wife and other high Government officials a memorable occasion.

By the time they arrive in Paris they will all be so overwhelmed with invitations that any consideration of dress will be next to impossible. They will all find it difficult to relax long enough to select a costume most becoming and suitable for the next occasion even.

One of Her Latest Gowns.

Mrs. Wilson wore one of the three latest acquisitions to her wardrobe at the reception given at the Italian embassy in Washington by the Ambassador and Countess Macchi di Cellere on the night that word came of the signing of the armistice.

It is of black satin, heavy and elaborately braided, with a large silver flower, so shiny as to be almost white, scattered all over it. The bodice is cut rather high in the back, with a suggestion of a ruff, and cut a low square in front, a favorite style with Mrs. Wilson. The skirt was just short enough to reveal her silver slippers and was made with a pointed train.

Mrs. Wilson has never adopted the short length evening gown, but always affects a train neither very short nor very long and generally pointed as on this frock. Mrs. Wilson rarely wears much jewelry but on this occasion she wore a diamond tiara. Many handsome jewels were seen that night for the first time since 1914, for few had the desire to so adorn themselves while so many were dying on the battlefields.

With many of her black evening frocks—Mrs. Wilson wears black most of the time for both afternoon and evening—she adorns her hair with a becoming black jet tiara. Sometimes two diamond studded pins are the only hair ornament, often her hair is simply arranged without decoration of any sort. She wears few jewels, principally diamonds, and never wears pearls of any sort. She is very fond of a handsome old set of cameos, necklace, bracelets and pins, which have long been in the Bolling family.

With the black and silver gown Mrs. Wilson carried a great fan of smoke colored ostrich tips. Mrs. Wilson has a huge and varied collection of ostrich feather fans, and always carries one when wearing evening apparel. Also, except with the few gowns that will not blend with the lavender shade of the orchids, Mrs. Wilson is never seen without a corsage of these flowers, her favorite. She wears them on all occasions: with street clothes, afternoon frocks, as well as with the more formal evening gowns.

Gray Chiffon and Velvet.

When she accompanied the President to the reception which the French Ambassador and Mme. Jusserand gave recently to celebrate the entrance of the French and American troops into Alsace-Lorraine, she wore the second of the new gowns, a lovely one of gray chiffon and velvet.

With this costume she wore the corsage bouquet of orchids clasped with a diamond ornament and carried a gray ostrich fan. The third frock bought this season was worn by her at the wedding of Miss Lucy Burleson, daughter of the Postmaster-General and Mrs. A. S. Burleson, and Ensign Charles Greene Grimes.

It is a particularly smart demi-toilet of heavy soft gray chiffon over gray satin, with a panel back and front, elaborately embroidered with floss of the same shade and made with three-quarter length sleeves. A narrow band of moleskin formed the becoming collar. Her hat was a picturesque affair of black velvet, with ostrich plumes of black and gray.

Mrs. Wilson traveled in a dark blue suit of heavy soft cloth, made with a long coat with a fitted back and a loose front and trimmed with a sealskin collar and cuffs. With it she wore a small and simple black velvet toque.

She has several close-fitting tailored hats to wear with the same suit, a particularly fetching one being trimmed with airplane wings off to the back and one side.

She has another hat which she calls her "conservation hat," because it can be worn with so many costumes. It is large around and rather plain, has a transparent brim and a black velvet crown, encircled by a band of gray chiffon, closely shirred and caught together with a small cluster of gray ostrich plumes.

In Mrs. Wilson's wardrobe there is also a smart gown of black satin with a tunic of black Georgette crepe, heavily beaded and trimmed with bands of broad tail. The sleeves are flowing and edged with the broad tail, the whole thing cut something on the lines of a Chinaman's coat. It is worn with the "conservation" hat and a scarf and muff of chinchilla. Then there is always the corsage bouquet to give it the splash of color.

Mrs. Wilson's Furs.

She has a handsome set of white fox furs which she wears with many of her afternoon frocks and one equally as good looking, but black fox, which she wears with tailored suits. She has, too, for driving and on especially cold days, a long sealskin coat, which was remodeled to wear on shipboard and in the colder climates of France and England. It is cut on simple, straight lines, with skunk collar and cuffs.

One of her most becoming gowns is of black velvet, cut low and square both back and front. The skirt is straight with a pointed train short. The bodice has red tulle draped across one side and has angel sleeves, very long and flowing, of the same colored tulle. She always carries a large flame-colored ostrich fan with that gown.

She wore black almost entirely before her marriage to the President; she was married in a black gown and affects black most of the time now. She has another black gown of chiffon velvet, severely simple, and one of black net trimmed with jet and turquoise ornaments.

Almost all her evening gowns are cut on the same general lines—the skirts almost all alike, straight and with pointed train and the bodices square, softened around the neck with tulle, the sleeves almost always tulle, and some sort of a soft belt right at the waistline.

She has an evening gown of gray taffeta and tulle made on those lines and a similar white one of satin and tulle, with bands of opalescents here and there on the bodice.

She varies in the fans she selects for the gray and white gowns. Sometimes she carries a peacock blue with the white, or pink with the gray, sometimes a gray fan and again one of the shade of the orchids. Generally speaking her evening frocks are almost always made on a foundation of black or white, relieved with a touch of color. Her slippers and shoes are carefully chosen in keeping with her costumes on all occasions.

Frocks for Afternoon.

The First Lady has two gray afternoon frocks, one of taffeta and the other of chiffon. The taffeta one is made with a skirt slightly draped at the back and about five inches from the ground. The waist is cut surplice and has sleeves of self-colored chiffon. The chiffon frock has a tunic edged with moleskin, the bodice is cut square and has collar and wide cuffs of handsome lace.

She also has a demi-toilet of black chiffon over red satin, cut out square in the neck and almost entirely without trimming. With it she wears a large round hat of black velvet with a band of red satin ribbon simply arranged around the crown.

The President's wife also took with her to Europe to wear over her evening dresses several exquisite wraps of velvet, both plain and brocaded, all cut on the same loose lines and made with deep fur collars and cuffs. Also her trousseau includes a number of sweaters, mostly of subdued colors. She has one of dark brown which she generally wears when she plays golf with her husband in the early mornings. With it she usually wears a black cloth skirt and a wide round black hat with a narrow band of red ribbon ending in a red rosette on her left side.

WAY PAVED FOR INQUIRY INTO NATIONAL SECURITIES LEAGUE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—By unanimous vote today the House Rules Committee decided to report a rule giving right of way for action on the resolution calling for an investigation of the National Security League and its alleged activities in the last campaign, including charging members of Congress with disloyalty.

FAVORS FEDERAL RAIL CONTROL

By the Associated Press.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Dec. 7.—Just before final adjournment today the Illinois Federation of Labor passed a resolution favoring retention by the Government of the railroads of the country.

A resolution also was passed to petition President Wilson to take action to order a new trial at once of Thomas J. Mooney, the convicted California labor leader.

CANDY AND PICKLES FOR A. E. F., TURKEY FOR HOME CAMP BOYS

Distribution Difficulties and Time Element Prevent Sending of Christmas Food to Troops.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—If the boys of the American Expeditionary Force in France or "Somewhere on the Rhine" have the good fortune to dine Christmas day on turkey, cranberry sauce and mince pie, it will not be as Uncle Sam's guests. Men in camps and at posts and stations in the United States will fare on "jubilee turkey" and trimmings.

The difficulties of distribution and the length of time required to have special food sent to France for Christmas dinners, the War Department states, were responsible for the decision not to attempt to serve such foods on holiday occasions "over there." A similar decision was reached for Thanksgiving this year.

That the men will not go hungry is shown by the fact that for a characteristic week the armies' grocery bill was $26,191,227.

While lacking succulent turkey, cranberries and mince pie, the boys of the A. E. F. will be furnished with all the candy they can eat, and those with a taste for pickles may have it satisfied. The subsistence division last week made contracts for 9,000,000 pounds of candy for the American Expeditionary Force. Each soldier overseas will be furnished a half pound of candy every 10 days as part of the regular ration. As for pickles, 565,000 gallons recently were purchased for the overseas force, a quantity sufficient to keep every man supplied for months.

EIGHT-HOUR WORK DAY FOR ALL BRITISH RAILROAD MEN

New Rule Goes Into Effect Next February—Wage Scale to Be Reviewed.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—The British Government has agreed to an eight-hour day for all members of the wages staff on the railways of the United Kingdom. The eight-hour day will come into operation next February. A committee of representatives of both sides will be set up to review wages and other conditions of service of railwaymen.

Recognition by the Government of the prinicple of an eight-hour day long has been a contention of the British railway men since the beginning of the war. The strike in Wales and Southern England late in September resulted in the president of the Board of Trade pledging the eight-hour day.

Winston Spencer Churchill, Minister of Munitions, in a speech at Dundee, Wednesday night, declared that the Government proposed to nationalize all the railways.

'YOUNG NATIONS WILL NEED WORLD LEAGUE'

Taft Also Declares U. S. Must Help in Stamping Out Bolshevism in Russia.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—If for no other reason than to provide help and guardianship for the new countries which are to be carved out of the old in Europe, a league of nations is needed, William Howard Taft said in an address here today before the League for Political Education.

"It is only through a league of some power that will restrain international friction between these young nations and the countries out of which they have been carved that we can make the experiment of teaching government in 10 or 12 places," Taft said.

"These young nations will need help and guardianship of a stronger Power, a kindly father who will spank them when they depart from the rules laid down for them. We can create out of those dominions we have conquered 10 or 12 or 14 new nations. It will not make for peace, but war will be certain, unless we create a league of nations whose duty it shall be to maintain peace."

Alluding to Russia, Taft said: "Bolshevism must be stamped out if intellectual development and progress is to be looked for in this world," and that joint action by the United States with other nations was necessary to keep those other nations from being charged with selfish interests."

Taft declared the peace conference "is actuated by purer motives and higher purposes than any congress that has ever met, and it is sure to be one of the most eruthful sources of the definition of international law—almost of a codification of it."

BRITISH GOVERNMENT CABLES GRATITUDE FOR CELEBRATION

Message to Governor Acknowledges It as Welcome Proof of American Friendship.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 7.—Gov. Gardner today received the following cablegram from John A. Stewart of New York, who said he had been instructed to forward it to the Governors of the various states:

"His majesty's Government is deeply touched by the information that has reached them that it has been officially decided to celerate Dec. 7 as British day throughout the United States of North America, and they desire to express to the Governors of the states of the Union and all those associated with them their sincere thanks for this courteous expression of friendship.

"The celebration which his majesty's Government gratefully acknowledges is a welcome proof of the same spirit of friendship with which the American and British nations have fought and conquered side by side in the struggle for justice and liberty, and will continue to unite them in the coming days of peace.

"Strong in the knowledge of this friendship, the British people can face with confidence all the problems the new era may have in store.

JOINT RAIL AND WATER RATES ARE ORDERED BY M'ADOO

Action Establishes Government River Service as Integral Part of Country's Transportation Instead of Outside Agency.

UPPER RIVER VALLEY CHIEF BENEFICIARY

St. Louis Made Gateway for Vast Flow of Freight, but Desired Southern Territory Is Not Opened.

Joint rail and water rates between points in the upper Mississippi Valley and New Orleans yesterday were authorized by Director-General of Railroads McAdoo, to stimulate use of the Government river service from St. Louis to New Orleans.

Rates by the river service to New Orleans from St. Louis now are 20 per cent lower than rail rates between the cities, and the new joint rail and water rates will be based on that differential. The rates will apply to shipments to and from Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Illinois, part of Indiana near Chicago, and Missouri north of the Missouri River, and to communities on the south end of the river that take the same rate as New Orleans.

The rates will have the effect of saving the shipper in the Northern territory designated 20 per cent of the rate he now pays on the portion of the haul to New Orleans between St. Louis and New Orleans, or 1145 miles.

Inquiry of officials of the Mississippi section of the Mississippi-Warrior Waterways and of the Chamber of Commerce brought the opinion that following are the chief benefits of the rail and water rates, established for the first time in history in connection with the Mississippi River.

Effect of the New System.

1. Every city and town in the upper Mississippi Valley not now on the river is, for the purposes of cheap water transportation, brought to the river bank.

2. It establishes the river service as an integral part of the transportation facilities of the country, whereas since its establishment it has in reality been an outside agency.

3. It gives to river cities between New Orleans and St. Louis, which do not now profit by the river service ecause of lack of terminals, an assurance of the permanency of the service that will prompt immediate construction of terminals.

4. It makes St. Louis the gateway of millions of tons of freight annually produced in the territory designated to benefit by the rates. Chicago, particularly, has been co-operating with this city in an effort to have the joint rates established, that it might benefit by the river revival.

A. W. Mackie, manager of the river service, said that the establishment of the joint rates was the greatest even in the life of the service since its creation. "It is reasonable to suppose," he said, "that, now that joint river and rail rates have been established, joint river and ocean rates will follow, having the efect of creating joint rail, river and ocean rates which will tend to divert the shipments of immense tonnage of Mississippi Valley products which now move east and west by rail to New York and thence abroad, south over the river and thence to New York or abroad.

Vast Tonnage Through St. Louis.

"All this tonnage will pass through St. Louis and naturally will pay its tribute to this city. I think it a safe prediction that soon the river at S. Louis will be lined wih warehouses, the distributing point of many large industries of the Middle West."

Some disappointment was expressed among traffic managers of St. Louis manufacturers and jobbers that the new joint rates did not extend to West Louisiana and Southern Texas and to the Southeastern states, now shut off to St. Louis trade to a great extent by the existence of cheap water rates from New York. They interpreted the order to confine the territory at the southern end to the immediate vicinity of New Orleains and river points such as Vicksburg and Baton Rouge.

"If the southern territory has not been opened by these rates, P. W. Coyle, traffic manager of the Chamber of Commerce said, "I fell certain that subsequent rate orders will extend the rail and water rates to include the desired southern territory."

CECIL, ENGLISH ENVOY, A WILSON PARTISAN

Appointment as Peace Delegate Regarded as Lloyd George Pledge to League of Nations.

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1918, by the Press Publishing Co. (New York World.)

LONDON, Dec. 7.—The appointment of Lord Robert Cecil to represent the British Government in the peace conference, which will deal with the question of a league of nations, comes like a ray of light through the foggy atmosphere of these agitated pre-election days, when Lloyd George and the Tory press are accentuating above all else the cry for the punishment of the ex-Kaiser and for indemnities.

This appointment brings us back to something like the old feeling when a league of nations seemed to occupy sincerely the thoughts of the British Premier and to be a vital part of the British peace program.

Lord Robert Cecil's acceptance of a place in the British delegation is of high importance and significance for America, for no other British statesman has shown himself a sincere advocate of the project for a league of nations.

While the Premier can electioneer to his heart's content along the lines which the Liberals and the Labor leaders stigmatize as appealing to the appetite for revenge, and while he is silent, as in yesterday's declaration, as to any policy with reference to a league of nations, he must realize that the project of a league will be a cardinal topic in peace discussions, and that Britain must be represented in this matter by a statesman whose policies are in sympathy with those of President Wilson.

What Appointment Means.

In this realization lies the significance of the appointment. His appointment may be said to be the first announced for the peace conference on the British side. There has been significant preparation of conference machinery, but an entire absence hitherto of any reference to the personnel of the delegates.

Many Liberals have been speaking of President Wilson as a delegate who will really represent not only the United States, but also the great body of the people here who desire assurance of permanent peace through a league of nations, as the first duty of the conference, leaving such matters as the punishment of the ex-Kaiser for later considerations.

Whatever Lloyd Georgian motives may be behind the appointment of Lord Robert Cecil, chief significance will attach to it because of its bearing on proposals for a league of nations, for the former Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, Lord Robert, is considered by many here, regardless of party, as the most forceful and the staunchest advocate of the project in England, and thus a powerful supporter of the aims of President Wilson and the American delegation.

Balfour on League.

"A league of nations," declared Arthur J. Balfour in an interview given the Post-Dispatch today, "is one of the most vital questions at issue; a question of vast complexity. But such a league is vitally necessary to the future of the world, not only to prevent war, but to assist in reconstruction."

The world, he said, owes a great debt to President Wilson for the prominence which he has given to the league.

Balfour's utterance with President Wilson on the way and Lloyd George abstaining from discussions of a league of nations, is regarded as of great importance, as showing British official policy toward the league. Balfour hoped and believed no further territory would be occupied in Germany than was agreed on in the armistice.

ST. LOUIS FLIER WRITES OF CLASHES WITH GERMANS

Letters from Lieut. William C. McCarron, formerly second Lieutenant of Troop B, Missouri National Guard and a Soldan High School graduate describing some of his air clashes with the Huns have come to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. McCarron, 5806 Enright avenue. Excerpts follow:

"The last two days we have had three ships and one balloon placed to our credit. Every time we go out we are jumped by from five to seven Huns. You know they will never attack unless they outnumber us three to one and all the fighting goes on over their lines, never over ours. Yesterday three of us were on a mission and were jumped by seven Huns. My roommate was hit three times. We got one of them and drove the others off, but the ship I had was so badly hit that it will have to be salvaged.

"Was on a bombing trip last week and 10 of us were attacked by 37 Huns in one bunch. We lost four ships but completed the mission. Coming home from another mission two of us caught a German balloon and had it afire almost before the observer could get out, but he managed to get down inside his lines.

'The Germans shoot 'flying onions' at us a lot. They are shells which have a lot of wire in them and when they explode go through the air in all directions. On each wire there are flaming balls about a foot apart, so if you run into them good-by. Your ship is on fire immediately."

Present Scale of Pay Must Remain Until Economic Readjustment Cuts Living Cost, He Declares.

While Government operation of the railroads has materially increased the pay of railroad trainmen, W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, who is in St. Louis, is not in favor of making the war system permanent. No vote has been taken on the question by the organization.

Lee thinks the transportation machinery of the country will in due season be returned to private ownership, and that the outlook for a better understanding between the railroad officials and the employes is bright. The war, he says, has produced some wonderful instances of co-operation, in which the railroad people have done their share, the officials as well as the men.

"I have in mind," he said, "the record made by the Board of Adjustment which passed on all disputes growing out of the readjustment of railway wages. This board was composed of four railroad officials and an equal number of representatives of the employes' organizations. We agreed that there would be no strikes and that we would abide by the decision of this board. In some 300 cases the disputes were amicably adjusted, without the semblance of a deadlock. Now, wouldn't it be good policy to continue such an organization with a return to private operation?"

Candidate Indorsed.

It developed from Lee's visit to St. Louis that the big railroad brotherhoods had made a recommendation to President Wilson of a successor to Secretary McAdoo as Director-General. Lee said the choice of the organizations was a former member of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and that he had no direct connection either with the railroads or the big railroad labor organizations. Secretary Lane of the Interior Department fits this description, but Lee would mention no name.

He said the railroad men would, of course, prefer to see Secretary McAdoo remain, as his administration had been a success in every respect. "We believe, of course," he added, "that the highest railroad official of the country under Federal operation should be absolutely neutral. We would not want to see a railroad official given this appointment, any more than we would ask the appointment of an officer of one of our railroad brotherhoods. We got in our recommendation before the President sailed, and we do not know what action was taken, if any."

Lee's visit has much to do with the next annual convention of the order, scheduled for next May at Columbus, O., at which arrangements will have to be made for the payment of 61 American and 126 Canadian full disability war claims, in addition to all the dues of all the members who entered the army or navy. The army and navy took 15,166 members of the organization, forcing the organization to pay dues amounting to $27,000 per month.

Wages Are Discussed.

On the question of wages, Lee told the district chiefs who called on him at the Jefferson that they were up to stay, at least until such time as an economic readjustment would greatly reduce the present high cost of living. "The men," he said, "received very little in the way of increased pay until Mr. McAdoo went to the root of the whole question, and through his administration determined what increases were just and reasonable. The Adamson law, in effect, increased the pay of comparatively few of our 180,000 members. It did establish the basic eight-hour day, though."

Lee said that the railroad organization were in full co-operation with the vigorous policy of the Government to stamp out thefts from freight cars in transit, losses from which have gone into very high figures. "I want to say that the officials of the organization are back of the Government to the limit in wiping out these thefts," he said. "If any of our members are proved guilty of aiding or abetting these thefts, they will be expelled from the organization. We are in favor of applying the same penalties to these offenders as are applied to those who rob the United States mails."

Lee addressed a large meeting of railroad men at the Labor Temple in East St. Louis last night.

Soldier Smashes Cafe Window.

A soldier who told the police he was John Kidd, 29 years old, but who refused to tell where he belonged, was arrested with a woman who said she was Dollie Gordon, Princess Hotel, after the soldier is alleged to have kicked in a plate-glass window in a cafe at Seventeenth and Market strets early yesterday. The window smashing had followed the refusal of the cabaret owner to serve drinks to the soldier.

M'KINLEY SYSTEM TRAINMEN REJECT ARBITRATION PROPOSAL

Strikers, in Meeting at Peoria, Claim That Company Refused to Let War Board Adjust Differences.

A proposal from officials of the Illinois Traction System (McKinley lines) to its striking trainmen that they return to work and submit their differences to arbitration, was rejected at a meeting of trainmen at Peoria, Ill., yesterday afternoon. The men claimed that the company had refused to permit the Federal War Labor Board to arbitrate between them earlier.

The absence of any traffic on the 360 miles of track continued last night, and the company has announced that no effort will be made to operate the cars with strikebreakers. Officials said they expected to settle their troubles with the trainmen, and intended to preserve their organization intact.

It was disclosed that the strike was called by the men on the lines between Springfield and St. Louis, and that those working on lines north of Springfield walked out in sympathy, although all are members of the same union, and get the same wages.

The men who represented the trainmen at the conference with company officials at Peoria have returned to confer with their locals.

W. C. T. U. to Meet Here.

St. Louis has been selected as the place for next year's annual convention of the National W. C. T. U., planned to take place shortly after the November election. This was decided Friday by the Executive Committee at Chicago. A committee of three was appointed to attend the peace conference at Versailles and $25,000 was pledged for a campaign for world prohibition.

Mrs. Helen Hays Powell Dead.

VERSIONS OF ACCIDENT DIFFER

Cars of J. E. Allison and Marshal Roth Collide.

J. E. Allison, a consulting engineer, of 5825 Cates avenue, former member of the State Public Service Commission, and Marshal Roth, of Clayton, had widely different versions of what happened when their automobiles collided on La Due road, northwest of Clayton, last night.

Allison said Roth's machine was standing in the middle of the road and that he grazed it trying to get by. Roth then told him he was under arrest, and asking him to give a "cash bond," he said, whereupon he drove away. As he reached University City he collided with a curbing and a wheel was broken.

Marshal Roth denied he asked Allison for a "cash bond," but said he told Allison to accompany him to Clayton and there give bond. Allison drove away at a rate of 40 miles an hour, he said.

Why Shop When Conroy's Gives You The Choice of the 21 Leading Makes of Pianos and Players

CHRISTMAS Day is fast approaching. There are thousands of people contemplating the purchase of a Piano or Player. Why shop when here are to be seen 21 different makes of the world's leading pianos and players?

This House has the largest representation of Pianos and Players to be seen anywhere. An unsurpassed opportunity is therefore presented for comparing the tones and actions of Pianos and Players not otherwise possible. Tones do not linger clearly in the memory and you cannot well go from place to place and carry with you the impression of the instrument last played. Here all is different and any instrument can be instantly compared with any other so that a choice can readily be made.

It should be borne in mind that our business is Pianos and Players exclusively. We do not handle talking machines, miscellaneous musical merchandise, dry goods, or anything else to divert our attention or resources from the business of furnishing the very best Pianos and Players to the people of St. Louis and vicinity.

Buying Pianos and Players in large lots, so that our five floors and warehouse are constantly well stocked, we always sell our instruments at the lowest possible price. In fact, the prices here are the same as those in New York and you save the cost of freight.

One price only. While service has had much to do with the upbuilding of Conroy's, the fact that our prices have invariably been marked in plain figures and that no deviation is made under any circumstances has caused this House to be universally respected and relied upon.

You can buy at pre-war prices a New Standard Piano for $250, a New Standard Player for $465, a New Apartment Grand for $495. Beginning with these moderate prices the range for the 21 makes runs to $2500 for a Knabe-Ampico.

Buy your Piano for Christmas at Conroy's, where haste is made slowly and every facility exists for selecting just the Piano or Player that will be to you the greatest source of pleasure and pride. The terms will be made to suit.

Captain Leahy Describes Biggest Base in France

Three Miles Long by Mile Wide, With 105 Warehouses—How Armistice News Was Received.

David P. Leahy has received a letter from his brother, Capt. William H. Leahy of the 138th Regiment, in which he gives a description of the largest supply base in France, which he visited.

His letter follows:

"ST. SUPLICE IZON A. P. O. 705,
Nov. 12, 1918.

"Dear Dave—Col. McMahon came to the hospital Saturday and took me out to his camp and it is some camp. It is the largest base in France, the Rations Q-Master stuff and ordnance is sent from the states and is then brought here, stored and then shipped from here all over France to the different fronts.

"To give you an idea of the size, it is one mile wide by three miles long and contains 105 warehouses 50x500 feet, and has a storage capacity of 2,583,392 square feet and in addition has open storage space of 5,700,000 square feet, and has 190 miles of railroad tracks; in addition they are building large docks on the river which is at one end of the camp.

"With the Engineers, Railroad men and Labor battalions there are usually about 11,000 men in the camp. They also have 1800 German prisoners working here, and have two prisoner pens to take care of them, and are getting more work out of them here than any other place that I saw the Bosche prisoners work.

"He is handling almost half as many men as in a division, and almost twice as many men as a Brigadier-General, and he knows how to handle them, too.

"Yesterday afternoon the news came in of the signing of the armistice and all the whistles and church bells were kept busy until late in the night. We had a parade here and went to the neighboring towns; we had two fire trucks all decorated up and the band and about 5000 of the men and all along the road the French would yell Viva la American.

"Down in Bordeaux yesterday the people were wild. The stores closed up and everybody was on the street with flags and were almost crazy, slapping each other on the back, singing and dancing all over the streets, young men, old men, women, girls and boys all mixed up. I was standing by the curb with Col. McMahon and Maj. Burgher, and I had my crutch. People would pass and look and say 'You blesse,' which means wounded, then say Oh, which meant as much as I am sorry. I started to laugh once and I got a mouth full of confetti and Maj. Burgher laughed at men and he got a mouth full also.

"Maj. Burgher was gassed at the front and is back at a hospital and came down here to see Col. McMahon. He is doing fine, but cannot speak above a whisper. He made a great name for himself during the scrap. Was always up in the front taking care of the wounded and at Cheppy and at Chaudron farm captured two complete German medical outfits and carried one on his back all during the scrap, also Dr. Lavine, his assistant, done great work. Both of them worked for five days under a heavy shell and machine gun fire, taking care of the wounded and in some cases shells dropped amongst the wounded, killing them, but they kept on, with their work regardless.

"Col. Howland is still at the hospital and I think he will rejoin the regiment in a short time. He did some good work at Cheppy the first day where he was wounded. It was here that Maj. Saurwein and Capt. Skinker and a lot of our men were killed.

"I was able to get a shoe on today and I am going to discard my other crutch and just use a cane, and I am in hopes of joining the regiment in a couple of weeks, and sure will be glad. You cannot imagine how I feel after living, fighting and sharing their hardships for nearly 15 months to be separated from them and getting no news. I have been worried, wondering how the men were and who was killed and who was wounded."

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a tablespoonful of Salts if back hurts or bladder bothers.

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active—ADV.

LIPSNER'S CHARGES DENOUNCED AS TISSUE OF MISSTATEMENTS

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Postmaster-General Burleson wrote Capt. Benjamin Lipsner today, in accepting his resignation as superintendent of the aerial mail service, that charges made public by him in leaving the office were, from beginning to end, a tissue of misstatements upon matter "of which you should have been fully conversant."

Capt. Lipsner was quoted last night as saying he resigned because he had been informed that novices were to be placed in charge of important branches of the service and that special airplanes are to be built for carrying mail.

"The statement that the Postoffice Department has considered or authorized extensive alterations on military airplanes which the War Department is turning over to it has no foundation except in your imagination," said Burleson, who added: "Except for the application of skiis to the running gear of planes, to facilitate landing in snow, as recommended by you, and for experimental modification of three de-Haviland planes to decrease landing speed and minor modifications to facilitate loading of mail, nothing has been authorized."

So far from ordering new construction, the letter adds, Assistant Postmaster-General Prager refused to authorize the construction of a fleet of twin motored mail planes recommended by Capt. Lipsner. His assertion that novices are to be employed in the service, Burleson said, "is on a par with the other statements, since the two new officials appointed are aviators, which you are not."

In connection with Capt. Lipsner's retirement, Burleson announced the creation of two departments for the air mail service, one headed by Lieut. J. Clark Sdgerton, as chief of flying operations, and the other by Dr. L. T. Bussler as chief of maintenance and equipment. Both have been in the army and postal service.

GREATER TONNAGE WITH FEWER CARS UNDER FEDERAL CONTROL

Statement by McAdoo Gives Comparative Figures for 25 Important Railway Terminals.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Greater tonnage with fewer cars is one result of Government operation, according to a statement by the Railroad Administration today. Director-General McAdoo issued a statement showing that 25 important railway terminals handled, in the week ending Nov. 7, 2.62 per cent more tonnage of freight with 7.86 per cent fewer cars than in the same period in 1917.

New York, in the week ending Nov. 7, handled 24,298 cars, comprising 625,952 tons of freight, as against 27,155 cars and 653,328 tons in the same period in 1917.

It is planned to make the statements each week to furnish an additional index to business conditions.

WASHINGTON WINS 20-7 VICTORY OVER NEBRASKA ELEVEN

Two Earned Touchdowns and Two Field Goals Figure in the Scoring—Simpson the Individual Star of the Game—Pikers Well Coached.

By John E. Wray.

IF Eber Simpson, of the Washington University Medical School, had not been born, Nebraska University's Gargantuan football warriors might have had some hope of victory when they battled the Pikewaymen at Francis Field, yesterday afternoon, for the Valley Conference S. A. T. C. title.

Unfortunately for the valley champions of last year, Eber was there with both feet, a powerful an accurate forward passing arm and one of the best heads that has ever directed the destiny of a football machine in these parts. The combination, plus beautiful interference, alertness and fine football sense on the part of all his helpers, enabled the Washingtonians to beat the visitors, 20—7, in what many football experts consider the best gridiron exhibition since Nebraska last visited in this city and was beaten by Eddie Cochems' famous machine.

Below the neck Simpson isn't much to look at. Above it he wouldn't win many prizes for personal pulchritude. But his brand of football was certainly beautiful to look upon. As Director-General of Washington's field play, yesterday, he was a masterpiece of coolness and efficiency. No man could have made better use of his football tools than did Simpson, yesterday, and the only man who can divide credit equally with him for the Piker victory is Coach R. B. Rutherford who exhibited one of the best coached and drilled teams that ever played on Francis Field—home or visiting eleven.

Simpson Scores Eight Points.

Directly in the scoring Simpson himself contributed eights points to the Washington total—in itself enough to have beaten Nebraska, the points resulting from two field goals in the final period and goal kicks following touchdowns.

His splendid forward passing also contributed directly to the scoring of a touchdown, since it was his accurate shooting in the second period that dropped the ball 20 yards into the waiting arms of Joe Evans, whose lithe frame swayed and dodged through the entire Nebraska eleven for a 55-yard run across the enemy line.

Simpson also forward-passed the Pikers within plunging distance of goal, from which point Hausladen, Berger and Evans jarred their way through the Nebraska line for the Washington's first touchdown, the one that tied the score.

Simpson did not undertake much in running with ball and only on rare occasions did he elect himself to rush the enemy's defenses. He tried perhaps three times during the game, one effort netting five yards.

Game Was "In the Air."

First, last and all the time it was an aerial game and not a contest of running attack. The first period was almost exclusively punting, both sides kicking on the first down more than once. In all, Washington punted 20 times, while Nebraska was driven to it on 19 occasions.

In the other aerial department, forward passing, Washington enjoyed its greatest margin of superiority, since on the afternon it completed 11 out of 23 passes, for 252 yards gain, while Nebraska completed two out of seven tries, for 49 yards gain.

The forward pass success was made possible by Simpson, who was a man of ice when the conflict was hottest. With potential tacklers charging hungrily down on him, he sidestepped them even as they lunged, picked his man to receive the ball and made the toss as coolly as if nobody were near.

It was no wonder that first substitute quarterback Siebert said, when Simpson was mentioned: "I consider it an honor to be understudy to a man of Simpson's class."

Pikers' Interference Noteworthy.

Simpson out, the rest of the Washington eleven played first-class football. Their interference was of the highest order and they left their feet in blocking would-be tacklers in a way to cheer the heart of the old grad, who sat disconsolate in the stand among 7000 other fans and watched a game that was three-fourths in the air.

Nebraska exhibited a powerful team physically. The giant Monte Munn at center loomed up like a lighthouse, and was in the game up to his eyes, despite his 205 pounds. The rotund guard, Ross, who makes the scale hit the beam at 235 pounds, although his mean altitude above sea level is only 5 feet 8 inches, was quite a power in his own precinct until Left Guard Kohlbry ran him ragged and into the showers in the second half. From end to end and even in the back field, Nebraska was patently a huskier team.

Nebraska's Line Overrated.

Nebraska brought here the reputation of having the best defensive line in the West. But Washington's forwards outcharged them repeatedly and in the end outplayed them regularly. So completely was this so, in the final period, that Nebraska's rushes flattened out against the Piker line like billows against a cliff; their attacks were thrown back and during the period their attempts at rushing actually cost them 18 yards in losses. Nebraska's line utterly failed to show the superiority claimed for it.

Washington, on the other hand, vindicated its backfield laurels by demonstrating its superiority to Dobson, Shellenberg, Hartley, et al. The St. Louisans shone in every football quality desirable; and as between Evans, Berger and Hausladen it would be unfair to draw distinctions—they are ALL football players, although Berger and Evans were in the limelight more than the line-bucking Hausladen.

The entire Washington team was in the game as was evident from the work of Kraehe in recovering a Washington punt that hit a Nebraska man, of Deeds in blocking a kick, of Kohlbry in throwing an opponent for a loss at a critical time, and of Feuerborn for numerous examples of alertness and ground gaining.

Story of the Game by Periods

First Quarter.

NEBRASKA kicked off from the east side of the field to Berger on the 10-yard line, the Washington captain dashing back to the 30-yard line aided by good interference. "Dark horse," Joe Evans set the stands a-cheering on the next play with a 22-yard run around the end, doubling back on his own trail in order to do it. A short forward pass added another first down and Hausladen plunged through to the Nebraska 30-yard line for nine yards more. This made a clear march of over 40 yards and the crowd was already singing "touchdown," when the Nebraska line came to life on its own 25-yard line and stood like a rock, stopping two line plays and breaking up two forward passes, the ball changing hands on downs.

The Cornhuskers here started a punting game which resulted in a persistent booting on the first down every time they got the ball. Washington, after several ineffectual tries at the line, resorted to the same tactics. Up to the last three minutes of play neither side would keep the ball any longer than it took to boot it back to the other fellow.

As a result of the exchanges Washington gradually fell back losing a total of about 15 yards on the exchanges. Just as the crowd was beginning to yawn, Ross, the 236-pound guard, intercepted a Washington forward pass on the Pikers' 35-yard line and Nebraska then started a real attack. In three successive heaves Dobson and Shellenberg were hurled through the Pikers' line for a total of 25 yards bringing the ball to the 7-yard line, where Washington showed its sterling qualities by holding for downs—it was hot work and in four tries Nebraska did not gain two yards.

From behind his own goal line Evans punted, but the ball went high in the air and was recovered scarcely 15 yards from Washington's goal. To the surprise of all Washington again held for downs, breaking up two forward passes by Nebraska among other plays frustrated.

The quarter ended with Washington having the ball on its own 14-yard line.

Second Quarter.

WASHINGTON punted on the first down, after shifting goals, and Lantz was down on Washington's 30-yard line—after a feeble kick that went outside. On the second down the all-conference star, Dobson, broke through the line for a 15-yard gain. The next attack was stopped, but a forward pass sent Swanson to Washington's 3-yard line. The Cornhusker forwards again failed wofully to penetrate the enemy, that defense threw back the next two attacks for a loss. Then a forward pass over the line to Swanson just touched the finger tips of that player as he leaped; the ball bounced out of his hands, and then settled safely back just as he was smothered by enemy players. It was a touchdown and goal followed, giving Nebraska the lead.

Following the kickoff came a double exchange of punts which eventuated in Washington getting the ball on Nebraska's 40-yard line. Two forward passes in succession, one to Berger, the other to Evans (both short ones), put the fighting Pikers on the Nebraska 17-yard line. Washington's blood was up and every man was working at top speed. Evans twisted and squirmed through for seven yards, Berger for five and Evans plunged over for the touchdown. Simpson's goal tied the score, 7—7.

After Nebraska received the kick-off and punted to Washington, Simpson renewed his overhead attack and on the first trial he dropped a 20-yard pass into Evans' arms—he had to leap a trifle to get it—and the "dark horse" galloped around and through the greedy clutches of the enemy 55 yards for a touchdown. Simpson again booted goal, giving Washington the lead, 14—7.

Simpson made a splendid run-back of the next kickoff for 20 yards, but the Pikers' running attack was checked and Evans punted to Nebraska's 20-yard line. The Cornhuskers booted, or tried to; but big Deeds rushed in and blocked the ball, Washington recovering it on Nebraska's 12-yard line.

The Piker plunging attack was checked and Simpson tried for field goal, missing the upright by a hair. Time was called after Nebraska had kicked from the 20-yard mark.

Third Quarter.

SIMPSON again ran Nebraska's kickoff back 20 yards; but after plunges and passes had been stopped dead, Evans punted and the Cornhuskers booted it right back without even trying to rush the ball.

On the third down Simpson placed a 25 forward pass in Feuerborn's hands and the Washington end dashed to Nebraska's 15-yard line. It looked like a possible score; but after small gains, Simpson grounded a forward pass behind the goal line for a touchback.

Nebraska kicked out. Washington lost three yards on a double pass. Simpson elected himself to carry the ball and gained five yards, but ordered a kick following a failure to gain later. Nebraska punted on the first down and Simpson worked another forward pass for 10 yards. Three more tries failed, however, and Evans punted to Nebraska's 10-yard line.

Here Nebraska woke up. Dobson lunged 20 yards through the line. He repeated for 12 and Shellenberg added 15 more. Washington's line appeared to have suddenly had its supports knocked out from under it. The Nebraska quarter cleverly shifted to a forward pass and Shellenberg caught the ball for an 18-yard gain.

The ball was now on Washington's 22-yard line, the Cornhuskers having marched 65 yards. It was here the Piker team found itself again, checking the Cornhuskers for three downs. On the fourth down Berger leaped into the air and intercepted a forward pass.

Washington punted and the period came to a close with the ball in midfield.

Fourth Quarter.

NEBRASKA started off the final quarter by a fumble which cost her six yards. Schellenberg tossed a successful forward pass for 12 yards which prompted the captain to order another. But George Berger leaped up and intercepted the throw, dashing back 25 yards before he was downed.

Washington couldn't gain an inch and grounded two forward passes. A punt followed and Nebraska retrieved the ball on her 4-yard line.

The Cornhuskers' play was broken up for a loss the first try; on the next one a poor punt gave Washington the ball on Nebraska's 30-yard line.

Here again Simpson and Berger connected with a forward pass, which carried the ball to the Nebraska 5-yard mark. And there it stopped for three downs. On the fourth, seeing the hopelessness of line plays, Simpson dropped back to the 18-yard line and booted a field goal from directly in front of the uprights. Washington 17, Nebraska 7.

Simpson's "old head" showed itself when Nebraska kicked off. Eber received the ball and started for Nebraska's goal. He was checked and almost thrown, and the official properly blew his whistle. Simpson kept on down the field, shaking off persistent tacklers, and passed across the goal line. He had heard the whistle. But he also knew that time was going on and that his team had a fairly safe lead over the enemy. He was playing for time.

Evans punted over 60 yards when the ball was brought back. In descending it touched a Nebraska player woh fumbled and Feuerborn recovered it, on Nebraska's 20-yard line.

Again the forward pass, Simpson to Busick, put the ball on Nebraska's 5-yard line. Again three plays failed to score. And again it was up to Simpson to boot a field goal. This time the angle was a wide one and the goal very difficult. But Simpson put it through, making the count 20—7.

Simpson rushed back Nebraska's kickoff 25 yards, but Evans was soon forced to punt. A Nebraska fumble again gave Washington the ball, Kraehe this time being down in time to retrieve it.

The Simpson-Feuerborn combination worked another forward pass, and a plunge put the ball on Nebraska's 12-yard line, with another score in sight. But over-eagerness by Washington resulted in holding and 15-yard penalty. Washington punted over the goal line and Nebraska scrimmaged from the 20-yard line. In three tries her backs did not gain an inch, and then the whistle blew.

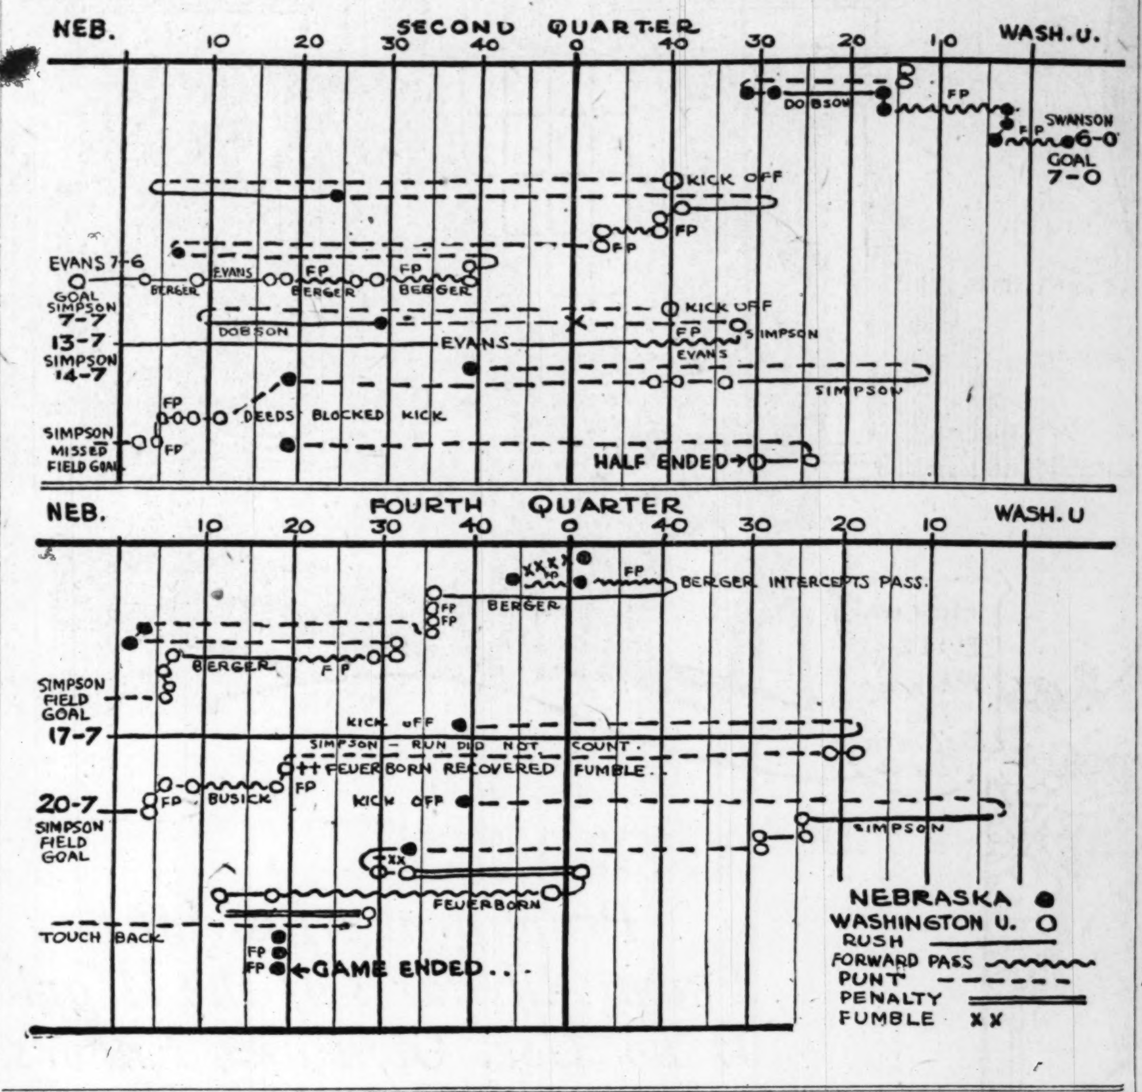
How Scores Were Made in Pikeway-Nebraska Game



"Simpson Cause of Defeat," Said Nebraska's Coach After Contest

"There is no need for me to alibi or explain the defeat," said Coach W. D. Kline of Nebraska, during the final period of the game yesterday. Pointing to Eber Simpson, he continued:

"There's the cause of it. He's the greatest player I ever had the good fortune to see. On records and on weights, my team seemed at least evenly matched with Washington. The difference, or rather Washington's superiority, lies in their possession of Simpson. If we had him we might have made it a different story."

He was asked if he did not think it just to give Evans a share of the glory.

"Yes," replied Kline, "but Evans could not have made his touchdown but for Simpson's accurate passing. A brainy man, that fellow, and a keen student of football. He hasn't played against us this afternoon, he has simply stood out there and thought about us."

Kline's remarks just about agreed with a majority of those persons who stood on the sidelines. The center of interest, Simpson held up his end admirably. His kicking in the final period, which definitely decided the contest, was marvelous to watch, particularly his last field goal, which was booted from a seemingly impossible angle. Even Coach Kline and the Nebraska substitutes remarked after the ball had gone between the uprights: "Marvelous. It can't be beaten."

Coach Dick Rutherford of the Pikers, laid the groundwork for negotiations looking toward making the Nebraska game an annual affair. The matter was discussed informally between the Pikeway mentor and Prof. Scott, Athletic Director at the Cornhusker institution.

With the victory of the Pikers yesterday, Rutherford believes Nebraska will willingly consent to such an arrangement since they will want to avenge the defeat next year. It probably will be worked out in detail at the meeting of the Missouri Valley Conference in Kansas City this month.

Coach Ernest C. Quigley of the Billikens, was an interested spectator during the first half, along with Bill Higgins, captain of St. Louis U.

"Nebraska showed the same flaw as did my eleven," said Quigley. "One of their ends is trying to cover Evans. The other is letting him run wild. However, it looks like Simpson and Evans will beat any team near their own class."

What sort of honor was attached to yesterday's victory? Prof. Scott was asked in the second period, whether Nebraska would claim the Valley title if they won. "We never intended to," said he, "because we don't believe there's any basis for it."

According to Coach Kline, only two players who participated in yesterday's game would have been ineligible under Conference rules. They were Monte Lunn and Lantz, both of whom are freshmen this year.

Halfback Schellenberg was forced to quit the game in the second period when his face collided with an elbow of a Washington player. It not only knocked him "cold," but raised a good-sized egg, just abaft his eye.

Benny Winkleman's big boot was missed yesterday. Joe Evans did all the punting but it was a common remark among the Pikeway adherents that Joe wasn't getting the distance that Winkleman is capable of.

Evans had to take time out in the final period when he was caught in a jam near the Nebraska goal. He suffered a badly bruised hip, but nothing serious. Coming earlier in the game, however, it would have materially crimped Washington's chances, as he failed to carry the ball after being hurt.

ZACHRITZ HELPS FUNSTON BEAT CAMP GRANT, 21-6

CAMP FUNSTON, Kan., Dec. 7.—Playing a heady game and exhibiting superior teamwork, the Camp Funston Divisional football eleven today defeated Camp Grant, 21 to 6. Two of Funston's touchdowns were the result of blocked kicks. The third touchdown resulted from a series of line bucks which carried Zachritz across the Grant goal line. Shaw and Felflinger blocked two Grant kicks and made possible the other two touchdowns. All three goals were kicked by Gardner.

Grant was able to penetrate the Funston defense successfully, but once when they shoved the oval across the goal, and failed to kick goal. At no other time during the game was the Funston team in danger. The game was a feature of the Britain day celebration here.

Better Get Your Hudson Now

No Open Model Super-Sixes to be Built During Next Few Months. Factory Capacity is Limited and Goes to Closed Cars

Our allotment of Hudsons does not provide for open models —the seven and five passenger types—until late next spring

This means that all who get cars of that type in this territory during the next several months must choose from our present stock. It is not large. Only a few cars to meet four or five months' needs.

The reason is this: Production of Hudson Super-Sixes was to have been discontinued January 1st. Then the war came to a sudden end and automobile production was allowed to proceed. But a factory cannot instantly be turned from war activities to building motor cars. It will be in June, at least, before Hudson production can be brought back to normal.

For the past four months we have been trying to accumulate a stock of Super-Sixes, but we were never able to get ahead. The demand took the Hudsons practically as fast as they were shipped.

Just think, for a monent, of the value of the Super-Six and why it is so popular. More than 60,000 are in service. It has proved its value under every possible circumstance. During the past year and a half, when cars had to be of the right stuff or they failed because there was no expert service to keep them in condition, the Super-Sixes never faltered.

The reputation Hudson made for itself during that trying period has added a new glory to an already supreme car.

We now have a few cars of some of the more popular models. Don't you think it advisable to come and see what we have? When you know how limited our stock is, you will realize the need for prompt decision.

The Corner Stone of Baseball Seems to Contain a Large Proportion of Concrete

FOUR CANDIDATES ARE IN LINE FOR N. L. PRESIDENCY

Heydler, Lieut. Fultz, McQuade and Brown Are Men Mentioned for Position.

LEAGUE MEETS TUESDAY

Status of Players and Other Important Questions Will Be Discussed by Owners.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—The annual meeting of the National League to be held here next Tuesday will be the first step in baseball reconstruction made necessary by the war.

Among outstanding questions which must be considered are the election of a league president, the future status of players released outright last autumn, National Commission arrangements, playing plans for 1919 and limitation of club rosters.

The election of a president to succeed John K. Tener, who resigned last summer, is expected to be one of the first features considered. The names of four men have been mentioned in connection with the position. The four are John A. Hewdler, present secretary-treasurer of the league; Lieut. David L. Fultz, former president of the Baseball Players Fraternity; Francis X. McQuade, a city Magistrate of New York, and Robert Brown of Louisville, Ky.

Heydler Logical Man.

Unless the votes can be centered upon one of these men, there is possibility of the election of a "dark horse" as was the case when Thomas J. Lynch was selected to succeed Harry Pulliam.

Heydler appears to be the logical man for the position, but it is understood that he is not particularly seeking the honor of league executive, being perfectly satisfied with his present place.

Fultz, likewise, is a baseball veteran, and in addition has the advantage of legal training. McQuade is a local city Magistrate, noted for his interest in baseball, while Brown came into baseball prominence several years ago when he was advanced as a candidate for Lynch's place by Barney Dreyfuss and Garry Herrmann.

Agreement Between Owners.

The status of the player also must bet settled before big league baseball can proceed, with arrangements of the coming season. While the players were released outright on Sept. 1, in accordance with the "work-or-fight" order, legal opinion appears to be that since the action was necessary to conform with Government orders, the reserve clause is still binding. As a further sefeguard there is said to be working agreements between the magnates of the leagues not to bid for each other's players.

Several of the National League magnates are of the opinion that a joint meeting of the two leagues will be necessary before plans for resumption of baseball on a large scale can be completed. The future form and personnel of the National Commission might be discussed at a meeting of this type, as well as future world series financial disbursements.

MITCHELL CANNOT ACT FOR CUBS, SAYS HEYDLER

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—John A. Heydler, acting president of the National League, today notified Charles Weeghman, former president of the Chicago club, that Fred Mitchell was not eligible to represent the Cubs at the annual meeting, which is scheduled to be held here next week.

Weeghman had previously notified Heydler that it would be impossible for him to attend and that he had nominated Mitchell and William Veeck to act for the Chicago club.

In announcing that Mitchell would not be eligible to act, Heydler stated that there was a clause in the constitution of the league which provides that a club representative cannot be under contract as manager or player.

MITCHELL IS ELECTED PRESIDENT OF BRUINS

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—The Chicago National League club was placed under the management of active baseball men at the annual meeting of the directors held today. Fred L. Mitchell, manager of the club, was named president; William L. Veeck, a former baseball writer, vice president and treasurer, and John O. Seys, also a former writer, secretary.

Former President Charles H. Weeghman; former Vice President William Walker, Business Manager Craighead, and Secretary Adolph Spielmann all turned in their resignations. Mitchell and Veeck were both given stock in the club.

Mitchell and Veeck left late last night for New York to attend the National League meeting.

HEYDLER WILL BE N. L. PRESIDENT — HERRMANN

CINCINNATI, Dec. 7.—Before taking a train for New York here today, August Herrmann, president of the Cincinnati club and chairman of the National Commission, announced that all the clubs would vote for an immediate resumption of baseball, at the annual meeting in New York next week.

It also was Herrmann's belief that John Heydler, at present acting president, would be named president. Herrmann said that no other candidate for the position was expected.

Joe Evans Starting 55-Yard Run After Receiving a Forward Pass

Central Defeats McKinley, 7 to 3, and Captures Title

Yorger Intercepts Forward Pass and Runs 90 Yards for Touchdown—Midcity Eleven Only Unbeaten High School Team of Year Gets Possession of Yale Bowl.

THE 1918 Interscholastic League football championship went to Central High School yesterday afternoon when the Black and Red aggregation defeated the crippled and captainless McKinley machine by a score of 7-3 at High School Field. Though seriously handicapped by a five-pound disadvantage in the line and utterly deprived of the services of their field leader, Bill Fries, whose absence was due to the unexpected death of his mother, the South Side eleven offered an impregnable line, whose bulwarks were repeatedly stormed with little success.

The game, which was the first of a double header, Soldan dealing defeat to Yeatman in the second contest, offered the possibility of a three-cornered tie for the championship. In the event that McKinley had triumphed over the MidCity gridders, the result would have been a deadlock between these two and Soldan. As it is, Central remains the one unconquered high school team of the year. And with the victory comes the coveted honor of acting as official keeper of the Yale bowl for the entire year. The trophy is now in the possession of the crimson eleven.

McKinley, minus a field general and coach, faced the formidable Central eleven with a sufficient amount of grit to compensate for her delinquencies. O'Gorman, substituting at center for Capt. Fries, committed himself worthily by his splendid interference. Several times when Central threatened gains that might have eventuated in a score, O'Gorman's leaping tackles saved the day.

Bremser and Yorger Star.

Central's earned triumph was made possible by the brilliant playing of Bremser at halfback, and Yorger at quarter. Both these men, injured early this week, were not expected to play. However, with the championship in view, both men entered the game. Bremser's work in line plnunging and his remarkable speed in consideration of weight, brought much comment. Yorger, whose illness was almost certain to prevent his playing, caught a fumbled ball on his own 10-yard line and dashed 90 yards for a touchdown in the second quarter.

One of the peculiarities of the game was McKinley's ftolure to successfully execute a single forward pass, although only four were attempted during the entire game. Forward passing and trick plays were heralded as the Crimson's features and upon these were pased here entire hope for victory. The fundamental blame for the infrequency of her attempts at forward passing may be laid to the speed displayed by Anzalone and Egan, Central's ends, who succeeded in intercepting all attempted passes.

The weight advantage owned by Central was somewhat overcome by McKinley's aggressiveness and aptitude in interference. The gap left by Capt. Fries took away the heaviest man in McKinley's line.

All the scoring in the game came in the second quarter. After Central had lost the ball on a fumble, Spuehler carried the oval to the Central 30-yard line, from where Ted Siebert, McKinley end, kicked a field goal from a difficult angle. On the next play Siebert was injured and was replaced by Meeker.

After this Central took the ball and after Bremser had carried tho sphere 50 yards on four successive plays, the South Siders held and took the ball on downs. Then with the ball on their own 10-yard line, Yorger intercepted a forward pass thrown by Schaeffering and raced 90 yards for the touchdown. Captain Minnegerode added the extra point by kicking goal.

In the first period, McKinley missed a scoring chance, when with the ball on the Central 12-yard line, a 15-yard penalty was inflicted. Central was penalized 20 yards for R. George's slugging in the third period, but neither eleven came within scoring distance. The South Siders made a determined stand in the final period, but were unable to cross the line. Schaeffering, the McKinley quarterback, made several good gains in this quarter.

1918 FOOTBALL SEASON NULLIFIED BY BIG 10

Kickers Who Participated in Games Will Be Permitted to Play Four Years.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—Intercollegiate athletics in the Western conference were restored to a pre-war basis today at a meeting of the "big ten" faculty committee held in connection with the scheduled meeting of the athletic directors and coaches.

The freshman rule, wiped out when the War Department assumed control of the universities to establish Student Army Training Corps, was restored and the Faculty Committee again came into control of athletics.

The committee, however, voted to disregard all eligibility rules pertaining to the 1918 football season, which makes it possible for those who played varsity football to compete for four years in that sport, as well as restoring to their old status students who left school to enter military or naval service.

The annual conference outdoor track and field championship will be held at the University of Chicago on June 7 and the indoor championships at Northwestern University on March 22. The swimming championships will be decided at Northwestern on March 21 and the Tennis championships at the University of Chicago on May 29, 30 and 31.

BOY KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE AS HE STOOPS OVER TOY WAGON

Hardware Dealer Says He Thought Boy Was a Bundle—Fatality Is Eighty-Eighth of Year by Autos.

David Signaigo, 12 years old, 1333 Tamm avenue, was killed last night at 6 o'clock by the automobile of George E. Lehman, 54 years old, 4514 Oakland avenue, a hardware dealer. Lehman was driving south on Tamm between Nashville and West Park avenues. Signaigo was stooping over a top wagon, Lehman told the police. He said he did not see the boy until he was within 10 feet of him and that at first glance he thought the boy was a bundle. The auto's lights were lit and it was going at a moderate rate of speed, the owner said. Lehman put the boy in the machine and drove to the offices of two physicians in the neighborhood, neither whom was in. He then drove to Barnes Hospital. On arriving at the hospital the boy was pronounced dead. Lehman went to the Mounted District Police Station and surrendered.

This is the eighty-eighth automobile fatality this year, compared to 69 for the same period last year.

A Thrilling New Story

—For—

Post-Dispatch Readers

"NOW, I want you to get this: Next time you bring a bunch of bulls and sausages up to this joint you won't get planted; you'll get ditched. And if I catch you stowing any more soup around here it'll be over the river for yours. You're no box man; you're a bum."

About as intelligible to the average reader as Patagonian. And so it would have been to Charlotte Browning, banker's daughter, before she surrounded herself with a houseful of criminals to get the proper atmosphere for a "crook play."

Several weeks later the words quoted came from her own lips. She spoke them to try herself—and proved that she had learned quickly and well. The object of her remarks was quelled into submissiveness, and she found herself raised to a new place of respect in the eyes of all her guests.

The incident, with scores of others equally as amusing, is related in

"Too Many Crooks,"

A story that is a mixture of laughs and thrills from beginning to end. Its writer is E. J. Rath, author of "Too Much Efficiency."

ABOLITION OF PUBLIC SERVICE BODY FAVORED

Kansas City Executive Expects Conference of State Mayors There Will Demand That It Go.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 7.—The meeting of Missouri Mayors, called for Monday at Kansas City by Mayor James Cowgill, to form an organization to urge the calling of a convention to frame a new Missouri constitution, is expected here to develop a strong demand for abolishing the Missouri Public Service Commission, and it may be that that will be the principal business considered at the conference.

Cowgill is taking the lead in the movement, and today told a Post-Dispatch reporter that he favored abolishing the Commission, and, should that not prove advisable, he would urge upon the conference that it insist that the Legislature amend the Public Service Commission law in important details.

"I believe each city should have the right to regulate the public utilities serving that city," Cowgill said, "and one of the principal matters which will be discussed at our meeting Monday will be the relations of cities and public utility companies.

"In my opinion, the Commission could just as well be abolished for all the good that is accruing to the public. So far as I have been able to learn, the Commission has done little except increase rates. It is maintained at a big public expense and, while I do not wish to be understood as saying that the rates increased should not have been increased, I do not believe it proper for the public to pay the cost of protesting the utilities.

Nullifies Contracts on Rates.

"The commission has seen fit to hold that contracts made by cities with public utilities, in which rates are fixed, are not binding as to rates. I cannot see any reason why a contract of a city with a public utility company should not be as binding as any other contract.

"If it is not deemed advisable to abolish the commission, we should at least demand of the Legislature that it so amend the laws as to make such contracts binding.

"I have received letters from the Mayors of a number of Missouri cities and they are of the opinion that each city should regulate the utilities in it. I would not be surprised if there was an almost unanimous sentiment of those who attend the meeting in favor of abolishing the commission."

Cowgill has invited the Mayor of every Missouri city of more than 1500 population to attend the conference, and also the commercial clubs and Chambers of Commerce of the cities, to send representatives. He expects that the attendance will be about 100.

Primarily, the purpose of the conference is to create an organization which would get solidly back of the movement for a new Missouri Constitution.

Defeated by Selfish Interests.

In nearly every Legislature for the past 10 years there has been an effort to obtain the passage of a bill calling a constitutional convention, but each time it has been defeated largely through the opposition of the public utility corporations, the railroads and the liquor interests, all of which feared that any new Constitution framed would contain features to which they would object.

It was pointed out by Mayor Cowgill today that it is the experience in each election that it is impossible to amend the Constitution. Meritorious amendments have been defeated each time for the reason that selfish interests have placed on the ballot proposed amendments to which there was widespread objection. In this class are the prohibition and single tax amendments. To insure their defeat, their opponents have consistently voted against all amendments.

Kansas City, as well as many of the smaller cities of the State have about reached the limit of their debt-making power under the present Constitution, and it is proposed to consider this subject.

'WETS' SPENT $79,577.94 TO BEAT PROHIBITION IN MISSOURI

Contributions by St. Louis Brewing Interests Totaled $21,400, Expense Statement Shows.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 7.—The campaign expense account of the Missouri "wets," filed under the name of the Citizens' Committee, shows that $79,600.47 was collected and $79,577.94 was spent in defeating the prohibition amendment at the November election.

The largest contributor to the wet campaign fund was the Anti-Prohibition Public League, which is credited with $31,698. Others of the large contributors are Henry Vahlkamp, secretary of the Lemp Brewing Co., $6400; C. Norman Jones, secretary of the St. Louis Brewing Association, $15,000; T. H. Glancy, manager of the Marquette Hotel, $100; Breckenridge Jones, $75; Mark Steinberg, $500; Lyman T. Hay of the Planters and Jefferson, $200, and Berkley Martin of the Annex Hotel, $100.

The bulk of the funds, $54,943, was spent through an advertising company. Other advertising cost $18,723, and $11,824 was spent for "service."

PART FIVE ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 8, 1918. PAGES 1—6B

9-STORY STRUCTURE PLANNED FOR 17TH AND WASHINGTON

Cost Including Site Estimated at $750,000—Outside Firm Has Leased Half of Building Already.

6-STORY BUILDING ON DELMAR PROPOSED

Belt Investment Co. to Erect Structure on South Side of Boulevard, West of Clara Avenue.

By Berry Moore.

The Seventeenth Street Realty Co., of which George Warren Brown is president, through John H. Bogue, announces plans for the construction at once of a nine-story commercial building at the northeast corner of Washington avenue and Seventeenth street. The cost, including that of the site, is estimated at $750,000, the ground, according to real estate authorities, being valued at between $3000 and $3500 a front foot.

A large concern from another city, whose identity has not been made public, has acquired a lease on one-half of the building, while negotiations are pending for the remainder of the space. The building will embrace the lots having a frontage on Washington avenue of 121 feet by a depth on Seventeenth street of 135 feet. It will be of reinforced concrete construction and will comprise 150,000 square feet.

Plans for the building were made by Albert G. Groves, architect. Murch Bros. were awarded the contract for its construction. It will conform with the buildings erected on the other three corners of Washington avenue and Seventeenth streets. The Seventeenth Street Realty Co. built the Leather Trades Building at Sixteenth and Locust streets; the Warwick Hotel at Fifteenth and Locust streets, and the Advertising Building at Seventeenth and Locust streets.

The Bell Investment Co. has been incorporated with a nominal capital of $50,000. The principal stockholders are J. C. Van Riper, president American Trust Co.; E. C. Hanpeter, president of the Hanpeter Iron and Steel Co.; Henry L. Cornet of Cornet & Zeibig; A. G. Siegel, president Huttig Sash and Door Co.; William H. Hauschulte, president Rosenbaum-Hauschulte Real Estate Co.; Sigmund Baer, president Grand-Leader; Louis Nolte, City Comptroller; Edward W. Weber, president of the John F. Weber Grocery Co.; F. H. Kreismann, Hugo Muench of Muench, Walthers & Muench, and Joseph M. Goldsmith.

The company, which was promoted by Sam Hamburg Jr., has been formed to erect a six-story building on the south side of Delmar boulevard just west of Clara, a description of which was given in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch. It will occupy a lot 115 by 454 feet.

The site was purchased through Barngrove & Specht, representing Mrs. Mary Sheu, who had held it for 35 years, it being used most of the time as a truck garden. The price realized was many times greater than that at which it was originally bought.

PEDIGO-WEBER SHOE COMPANY ENLARGE UNIT OF BUILDING

The Pedigo-Weber Shoe Co., according to Paul Jones & Co., its agent, contemplates erecting in the early future an addition to the eight-story concrete building now being built by that company at the northeast corner of Theresa avenue and Locust street. Heavy demands for high-grade women's shoes occasion the need for the addition.

The building now being erected is one unit of the capacity of the contemplated plant. The site was purchased from Paul Brown, through the Paul Jones Realty Co.

The concern is one of the largest manufacturers of women's shoes in the United States.

The building is of the most substantial and attractive of its type in Shaw's-Lafayette addition.

TRANSFER COMPANY BUYS ADJACENT LAND

Addition Being Improved to Increase Repair and Other Facilities of Service Station.

The Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co. negotiated the purchase from David N. O'Neil, of a parcel of ground at 205 South Fourteenth street, to be improved for increasing the area of the service station under construction for the Columbia Transfer Co. The added ground will give the company a building covering a lot 150x150 feet, providing 22,500 square feet of floor space.

The building will be erected of brick with novel construction of lattice trusses, this being the first of that class used in St. Louis. The front will be faced with stucco, matt brick and ornamental iron trimmings, and an exceptionally heavy concrete floor will be laid. A number of metal and glass skylights will be installed in the roof. There will also be a well equipped repair shop with pits and machinery for auto truck repairs. The plans were prepared by Nat Abraham, architect, and the building is being erected by the Sol Abrahams & Son Construction Co.

DEACONESS HOSPITAL BUYS TRACT FACING FOREST PARK

Announcement yesterday of the sale of five acres on the south side of Oakland avenue, facing Forest Park, to the Deaconess Hospital, disclosed that the removal of the hospital from its present site, at 4125 West Belle place, is contemplated. The tract is four blocks east of Oakland terrace.

It was said at the hospital that no plans for building have been made, but that a new building had been contemplated for some time and that advantage had been taken of a favorable opportunity to buy a desirable site. The proximity of the park was one of the chief inducements, it was said. The superintendent said it was probable that construction would be started before late next year.

The tract fronts 454 feet on Oakland avenue and is 455 feet deep. The sale was made through J. H. Farrish & Co. and Cornet & Zeibig.

PASS THE BOND ISSUE ON ITS MERITS

THIS CITY HAS SUFFERED FOR SOME YEARS for a lack of a number of necessary improvements. It has become evident that if we are to keep pace with other metropolitan cities and retain our position of fourth city in the Union, we must get busy at once with our MUNICIPAL IMPROVEMENTS, as other cities are doing. For this purpose it is now proposed to issue bonds to the extent of

$23,000,000.00

THIS CITY IS BETTER EQUIPPED at this time to handle this great project than ever before.

We have a splendidly equipped and thoroughly efficient city plan commission that has given years of study to the different items that are to be included in the issue; thus we are assured that these improvements are properly planned, and when completed ample provision will have been made for the future growth of the city. In addition to this, the different departments that will have charge of this work, are officered by men with years of experience, and are well able to carry this great work to rapid completion. This, combined with the SPLENDID PROGRESSIVE ADMINISTRATION now in office to work in harmony with the different departments, makes this an ideal time to start this work.

A SERIOUS MISTAKE

However, is being made in urging this as a means of employment for returning soldiers. It will take mechanics and laboring men, in most cases, to do this work, and as the bonds will not even be voted upon until next Spring, at the earliest, this class of workman will have plenty of work. Just to demonstrate this in

HI-POINTE

Alone over ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY purchasers have bought lots on which to build homes and most of these have plans already completed and will start building in the very early Spring. In addition to this, judging by the large number of builders with whom we are now figuring, who, of course, will start operations as soon as the weather breaks, this tract will be entirely sold out within a short time and the property rapidly built up.

While HI-POINTE, OF COURSE, OWING TO ITS WONDERFUL LOCATION, JUST OPPOSITE FOREST PARK, AND THE RIDICULOUSLY LOW PRICES AT WHICH IT IS BEING OFFERED, IS THE MOST POPULAR SUB-DIVISION ON THE MARKET AT THIS TIME, THE BOOM IS NOT CONFINED TO HI-POINTE ALONE—other sections also are going to be rapidly built up; in fact THERE IS GOING TO BE A GREAT BUILDING BOOM throughout the city, and this being so, it will be readily seen that the Bond Issue as a means of furnishing employment will be abolutely unnecessary, and if the Public in general is lead to believe that this is the purpose for which the Bonds are issued they will not be very enthusiastic next Spring when the issue is to be voted upon.

We understand that a great CAMPAIGN OF EDUCATION is to take place to thoroughly inform the Public as to the necessity of these Bonds.

THIS CAMPAIGN should be based upon the URGENT and ABSOLUTE NECESSITY of these IMPROVEMENTS for the HEALTH and GROWTH of the city, rather than upon sentiment. Everyone is agreed that the BOND ISSUE is very desirable and UNQUESTIONABLY it will receive the support of the entire city, but it should be put forth UPON ITS MERITS to insure its success.

MR. MAYOR, WE ARE WITH YOU.

MISSOURI BIRDS WIN AT CHICAGO SHOW

Henderson and Mahood Take Honors With Barred Rocks and Rhode Island Reds.

By T. W. ORCUTT.

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 7.—The 1918 exhibit of the Midwest Poultry and Pet Stock Association, closing today, will be recorded as a remarkable display of feathered aristocracy. The quality of the exhibits was proof of the marked progress that has been made in the past four years by American breeders in general.

In the American class, the Plymouth Rock and Rhode Island Reds were numerically the largest, and like quality has never been observed heretofore in an American showroom. This exhibit comprises the best efforts of America's foremost breeders of all varieties and drew a large attendance from all parts of the United States and Canada. The quality of this show was expressed in a remark made by a prominent breeder, "that the white varieties were whiter, the reds redder, the buffs buffer and the blacks blacker than ever before."

In the American class, Missouri, competing with the best in the world, won grand champion male in exhibition Barred Plymouth Rocks, as well as second place. This honor went to the Henderson strain, a repetition of their performance in Chicago in 1912, when Missouri-bred Barred Plymouth Rocks won first and second and grand championship male in their respective classes. These birds came from the farm of W. W. Henderson, at Bridgeton, Mo.

The Rhode Island Red classes were the largest and best that were ever assembled in any exhibition. E. W. Mahood of Webster Groves, a specialist in this variety, is among the winners.

The Federal Government exhibition is large and attractive, illustrating and exhibiting the success of the Government efforts at the various experimental stations.

President Richards of the American Poultry Association was an enthusiastic attendant. Secretary Campbell is in charge of the American Poultry Association display.

The striking feature of the show was the selection of judges to place the awards. The staff consisted of well-known practical breeders in all the varieties, among whom were Charles V. Keeler, Wyandotte specialist, Winamac, Ind.; James A. Tucker, Rhode Island Red specialist of Royal Oak, Mich., and Dan W. Young, White Leghorn specialist, Monroe, N. Y. Missouri was drawn on for two breeders and selected W. W. Henderson of Bridgeton and Leo A. Lee of Kansas City.

Seventeen specialist breeders participated in placing the awards to the satisfaction of more than 1500 exhibitors. Poultry shows throughout the country should pay heed to this feature, which proved successful, as this is the first time in history that poultry breeders have been selected to place awards at a large poultry show.

The attendance has been very large throughout the week. Secretary Hewes reports that all expectations have been fulfilled and this tenth annual exhibit is a gigantic success.

Get More Eggs Waste Less Feed

Increase income—reduce costs! Make your hens lay heavily now while eggs are bringing high prices. Prevent feed waste due to sluggish or imperfect digestion. Make every hen lay by using

Pratts Poultry Regulator

The sure-fire egg producer which has triumphantly stood every test of nearly a half-century of general use.

Pratts Poultry Regulator is not a severe stimulant which gives but temporary results. It does not force but induces hens to lay because it builds them up naturally, puts them in such fine physical condition that regular egg-production is bound to follow. And it keeps them laying right through the period of high prices. It assists the birds to thoroughly digest and make use of every particle of food, thus prevents waste and reduces feed costs. Test it with a part of your flock and compare results.

Our dealer in your town has instructions to supply you with Pratts Preparations under our square-deal guarantee—"Your money back if YOU are not satisfied"—the guarantee that has stood for nearly 50 years.

RAY.—The question or a cannon which we may say throws a projectile at the rate of 1 mile a minute when stationary, is placed on an engine running at the rate of 60 miles an hr., and fired in an opposite direction from which the train is running, how far will the projectile go? is thus answered by Washington University: Ball will fall vertically. It will move with respect to the train as if the train were at rest.

CURIOUS.—Pershing is said to be a Republican; religion Episcopalian. We do not discuss advertised remedies. World Almanac will be announced when ready. Largest daily circulation in U. S., New York Evening Journal: In 1916, Prof. Walter Williams said the largest newspaper circulation in the world was claimed by the Mail, London, published on the American plan. In 1911 the following statement was given: A Parisian paper, Le Petit Journal, has been credited with the largest daily circulation in the world. It is a paper of only 6 pages. M. Paul Dupuy claims that Le Petit Parisien (Paris) has a larger circulation than any other daily newspaper in the world. In 1906 it averaged 1,300,000 copies (6 and 8 pages) daily. Advertisements cost 40 cts. to $10 a line. Catholics in U. S., not including islands, 17,416,303, says Catholic directory. The following figures were published last May: The aggregate membership of the several Baptist denominations (North, South, negro and 14 others, was 7,236,650; of the various Methodist denominations (Methodist Episcopal, Methodist Episcopal South, Methodist Protestant, African Methodist Episcopal, African Methodist Episcopal Zion, Colored Methodist, Episcopal, and 11 other Methodist denominations, 5 of which are white and 6 are negro, 7,165,986; of the Presbyterian denominations (Presbyterian in U. S. A., Presbyterian in U. S., United Presbyterian and 7 others), 2,257,439, and of the 20 Lutheran denominations, 2,463,265.

G. E. L.—Thompson Ramsay and Rutherford so greatly expanded the boundaries of knowledge of electricity that they virtually opened a new era with the dawn of the 20th century. Thousands of text books in universities at once became obsolete, and teachings of centuries' duration were swept into oblivion. They startled the entire world of science by breaking up atoms into electrons. This was thought to be impossible—hence the name "atom." Their capital and cardinal discoveries have been repeatedly confirmed. Electrons explain the hitherto inexplicable and open corridors and chambers all unexplored. Electrons, so far as can now be found, are the absolute ultimate and are pure electricity. Their mass is about 1-1,700 that of the lightest atom known—that of hydrogen—and their diameter about 130,000 that of the average atom of matter, and are entirely beyond the range of the mind of man at present. All matter as it now exists, all motion, change and activity of matter, force and energy are due to these omnipresent and (shall it be said?) omnipotent electrons. One grain weight seen in any drug store weighs as much as 91, 600, 000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 electrons. A row of electrons 1 inch long would contain 12,500,000,000,000. These are negative electricity and exert repulsion, instead of attraction, like gravitation. Two electrons in the absence of matter placed 2-5 of an inch apart would repel with a force such that 61,500,000,000,000 equal forces would force the balance in a pair of scales with a pressure of 1 oz. This, as inconceivably minute as it is, is 1 with 44 zeros added times stronger than gravitation. These experiments could not be performed by man by means of any apparatus or laboratory instruments. The results here given are all results of refined computation.—Larkin.

S. B. S.—1831 3 cts., 40 cts. value. No premium on dime of 1831. • • • (1) Cook no catsup or anything else that is acid in galvanized iron. (2) If a patent tin flour sifter, with crank is used to strain tomatoes for catsup, half the labor is saved. (3) When putting up catsup if the whole neck of the bottle is put into the sealing wax it will be nearly sure to keep well. (4) For bottling catsups, pickles and sauces have the corks full large, soak them in boiling water for a few minutes, then force them into the neck of the bottle. They should be put far enough into the neck of the bottle so a little sunken space is left to be filled with a sealing wax. (5) To prevent tomato catsup molding, drop a few whole cloves on top the catsup before sealing bottle. (6) Tomato catsup recipes: Boil and strain good, sound tomatoes through a sieve, allow to each qt. of the strained mass 2½ tablespoonfuls each of black pepper, salt and ground mustard; 1 of pepper, salt and ground mustard; 1 of ground cloves and 2 cups of vinegar; boil 2 hrs. and bottle. Another recipe is to skin and slice a bushel of tomatoes; stew them until soft, rub through a sieve and boil until pulp is soft, adding 2 ozs. of salt; when the mixture is about the consistency of apple butter, add a qt. of vinegar, 3 tablespoonfuls of ground mustard, 1½ ozs. of ground pepper, 1 of ground cinnamon and 1 of ground cloves; put in a cup of sugar, boil up twice and bottle.

GAMES.—There is what mothers used to call "Hitting the Pig," a trial of skill which all children enjoy. Spread upon the floor a big square of canvas or a sheet, and suspend from the ceiling or the center of an opening for folding doors, directly over the middle of the covering, an ordinary paper bag filled with tiny pretzels and animal crackers, popcorn and broken or clear candies. Have the string long enough so that the bag will swing easily. Place a child about 6 feet from the bag, with his eyes blindfolded. Place in his hand a stout cane, turn him around 3 times and bid him take 4 steps forward and then hit the "pig." Nine chances out of 10 he will strike in directly the opposite direction and all the children will shout with glee. He has 3 chances and failing to burst the bag, must yield the stick to some other child. When the stick finally strikes the bag, the latter will burst and the children are permitted to scramble for the shower of good things. Several of these bags will be required, and they should be low enough for all the children to have a fair chance. A game not unlike "I spy" is "monkey in sight." All the little guests but one are banished from the parlor or living room, and then the child who is "it" hides where it can be plainly seen by sharp eyes, yet it is a shadow or on a self-tone surface, a dark penny or very flat, dark button. The children are then instructed not to pick up the penny when they see it, but to walk far from it or look in another direction after saying "Monkey in sight." All must eventually find the "monkey" or acknowledge defeat, which draws the game out better than "I Spy." The one who said "Monkey in sight" first is "it" for the next turn. A game which will create no end of fun with children of medium years, from 8 to 12, is to stretch a strip of sheeting or thick paper in a doorway and gather half the children on one side and half on the other, so that neither side can see so much as the feet or topknots of those on the other side. Then make a small hole in the sheet of paper and let the boys and girls on one side stick just their noses through the hole, while those on the other side must guess "who's who" from just a glimpse of this single feature

Business Romance

The following will prove the heading of this ad:

Women are today entering the business world, filling capably every position. Many feel that they should enter, could they find the right opening, where their natural abilities and leadership could be fully utilized, and where they could have the same opportunities as men of leadership.

There is a new profession, a specialized business, calling for leadership, and offering untold opportunities, and that is the Subdivision Business, as now conducted, where the best that the landscape and city planning architect and the civil engineer are used, to make more attractive, more livable our suburban properties, into which are pouring thousands of families now that the war is over, and they can get away from the congestion of the thickly built sections of the city, and apartment houses.

Here you have wonderful opportunities both for making big money and for rendering a real service. Thousands of people will make unusually large profits the coming few years in West St. Louis, as good real estate becomes more and more valuable. Thousands need homes.

We furnish automobiles to show properties, close your deals; in fact, teach you the business. We want women of understanding, who feel that they have ability, who are out of debt, and who are under 40.

Come in and talk with us and we will tell you frankly whether you would be a success. Call 10 to 11:30 or 1:30 to 4. See Mr. Davis.

CEMENT COMPANY IN POST-DISPATCH BUILDING

Missouri Portland Takes the Eighth Floor on 10-Year Lease.

The Missouri Portland Cement Co. of which Harry L. Block is president, and C. A. Homer, vice president, has acquired a 10-year lease, through Cornett & Zeibig, of the entire eighth floor of the Post-Dispatch Building at Twelfth and Olive streets.

The company will remove to its new quarters about March 1, when the alterations have been completed. It now occupies the fifteenth floor of the International Life Building at Eighth and Chestnut streets, which is inadequate to its requirements.

The company, which absorbed the Union Sand and Material Co., and of which Harry L. Block is the dynamic force, is said to be the most extensive of its kind in the West, if not in the United States.

The Post-Dispatch Building and equipment, exclusive of the site, cost more than $1,500,000, and is rated as the most sumptuously finished and perfectly appointed building in the city. The first floor and corridors are finished in exotic marbles and in bronze, while the equipment includes a battery of high-speed elevators, three in the front and two in the rear of the premises. The building, which represents the acme of construction of this character, is sound-proof and fireproof, and is replete with sanitary provisions, including the latest and most costly automatic plumbing.

There still remain to be leased two stores in the Olive street and two in the Twelfth street facade of the building, which are now occupied without charge, by the Soldiers' and Sailors' Club.

AARON FERER & SON LEASE 55,000 SQ. FT. OF FLOOR SPACE

Acquire Building at Main and Tyler Street From Logeman Chair Co.

Aaron Ferer & Son have just closed a lease on the building at Main and Tyler streets, part of the holdings of the Logeman Chair Co., and containing about 55,000 square feet of floor space.

The property will be occupied by Ferer & Son after alterations are completed, and the building in this block, also owned by the Logeman Chair Co., was leased to the Mathes Iron and Metal Co. This building contains over 100,000 square feet.

The John B. Krieger company represents the parties in the deal. The Logeman Chair Co. have just taken a long lease on the large building on the northwest corner of Tenth and Mullanphy streets.

S. H. Morton Jr. on Furlough.

S. H. Morton Jr., son of S. H. Morton of S. H. Morton & So., land dealers, is home on a 14-day furlough from New York. He has seen overseas duty and expects to get his discharge soon, to work with his father. He is a member of the Missouri Naval Reserves, and was called in March, 1917.

SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH'S REVIEW OF MARKET CONDITIONS

WALL STREET STOCKS GAIN 2 TO 10 POINTS ON WEEK'S DEALINGS

Trading Is Quiet, but Market Shows Strong Upward Drift on Most Issues—London Sentiment Is Cheerful.

Closing Prices on Liberty Bonds in New York.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Final prices on Liberty Bonds today were: 3½s, 97.40; first convertible 4s, 93.60; second 4s, 93.30; first convertible 4¼s, 97.50; second convertible 4¼s, 96.00; third 4¼s, 96.04; fourth 4¼s, 95.88.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—The Evening Post, in its weekly financial review, says:

"Since the Stock Exchange is unlikely to move to any purpose until some new turn occurs, for worse or better, in the general situation, it may be asked, when and where such a turn may come.

"Such a prediction is equally futile; but there are two fields with broad possibilities bearing on financial sentiment. One is political in its nature. The Versailles conference may settle the future relations of the nations in a manner to create worldwide relief and reassurance, or the divergent views of the allied states may throw the program into disappointing compromise of confusion.

"The new and long-postponed demands on our industries, by home and neutral consumers, may continue active production, sustain prices at a profitable level, and avert disturbances of labor. Or, on the other hand, such requirements might be deferred until continuous reaction in prices had created a highly perplexing situation.

"It must be admitted that the enormous program of exacting indemnities and punishing Germany's former rulers as proclaimed this week by the English statesmen, have raised some uncomfortable doubts in people's minds. On its face, this policy seemed more likely to repeat, in the field of money exactions, the scramble for territory at the Congress of Vienna, than to foreshadow united and statesmanlike dealings with the future.

"We have got to see, however, to what extent all this is merely (like some recent congressional proceedings of our own) the result of releasing the long bottled-up strenuosities of domestic politics.

The Position of France.

"French statesmen are indulging in no such angry demonstrations. But then France is not plunged into a parliamentary election, and England is.

"Next week, when the steel manufacturers meet the War Industries Board, we shall get more light on the outlook of trade, labor and prices. Apparently, the industry itself now leans towards unrestricted movement of prices—which would seem to mean reduction. But how much reduction? If moderate revision of the selling schedules would start in volume the deferred demand from railways, structural enterprises and neutral markets, it would be salutary from every point of view.

"One probability is slowly beginning to emerge. We do not seem likely to encounter the kind of disastrous competition in the export trade which was predicted in 1916. People now understand that Germany's productive power is for many reasons paralyzed. Even England and France, considered as our competitors, are confronted, first with shortage of materials at home; second with requirements for European reconstruction, which their own mills possibly cannot adequately meet; third, with a high price of labor caused both by losses of able-bodied workmen in the war and by the power of labor, dominant as it is in European politics, to resist the lowering of wages.

"Stock values were 2 to 10 points higher for the week. Yesterday's market was firm."

London Review.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—The city is genuinely glad that President Wilson is to attend the peace conference, simply because it will enable him to obtain a first-hand view of the entire situation.

Little progress has been made with demobilization, and Government expenditure consequently shows little reduction, but the effect of the armistice should shortly be seen in the contraction of outlays for munitions production.

This probably will find reflection on your side almost immediately in the reduction of orders placed with your manufacturers on the allies' account. It may largely be offset by our demand for raw materials. Meantime, the labor supply released here is being absorbed by peace industries, but special arrangements have been necessary for providing employment for displaced workers.

The Government's plan for stabilizing conditions in Northern Russia, by issuing notes at 40 to the pound sterling, against credits deposited at the Bank of England, is well received here. The view is that with a currency of stable value, trade between that region and the outside world will quickly revive, and that with this effected, the "pacified" area of Russia will tend to expand.

Your attitude toward the permanent arrangement of the debts of the allies to the United States is awaited with interest. Until some funding scheme is definitely arranged, it is difficult to shape an intelligent policy here or in other belligerent countries. Great Britain is likely to show the greatest indulgence to France and other debtors, but our policy naturally depends somewhat on America's attitude toward her debtors.

The Refunding Plan.

It is clear that unless a funding plan covering a long period is evolved the European belligerents will inevitably be penalized by having to make enormous purchases in America, with abnormally unfavorably exchange rates prevailing. Indeed, no aspect of the coming peace conference seems to us more important than that touching finance and industry. The sincerity of the League of Nations idea will be tested even more by the treatment of these matters than by the political considerations themselves.

Your economic position is recognized to be oxerwhelmingly strong, but it is also recognized that you must share in the peace problems, especially in the problem arising from the dislocation of labor. Nevertheless, given skill and prudence, your position five years hence should be even stronger than today, because your present profits and those accruing in the next two years are likely to be largely invested by America, thus giving you an almost permanent control of the foreign exchange.

It is already apparent that the course of money rates in the coming year mainly depends upon your initiative. The present view is that the United States and England should jointly oppose cheap money and speculation, while similar united action will be necessary to bring about a gradual deflation in credit and commerce, with a minimum of financial and social disturbance.

CATTLE—The trade closed in good condition, due to the variable nature of the outlet. Killing steers, strong weight stock steers and feeding steers, finished 25c to 40c higher, while all classes of cows and common canners and butcher cattle closed with a net advance of $1 per cwt. However, light-weight stockers sold very slowly, and no better than a week ago, while the worst feature of the trade was the good butcher heifers; they opened the week higher, but at the finish had lost all of the advance, in cases more.

Prime heavy beef steers, $17 to $19.40; good to choice, $15 to $16.50; medium to good, $13 to to $14.50. Common to medium weighty steers, $11 to $12.50; common light steers, $7.50 to $10. Good to choice feeders, $10.50 to $12; common to medium, $8 to $9.50. Good to choice stockers, $9.25 to $10.50; common to medium, $7.50 to $9. Choice to prime fat light yearling butcher cattle, $11 to $15; good to choice, $9 to $11; common to medium, $7.50 to $9. Choice to fancy beef cows, $11 to $13; good to choice, $9 to $11; medium to good, $7.50 to $9; cutters, $6.50 to $7; canners, $5.75 to $6.25. Fat beef bulls, $9.50 to $12; sausage bulls, $7 to $8.50. Good to choice stock cows, $6.50 to $7; good to choice stock heifers, $7.50 to $8.50.

HOGS—There was 9000 hogs held over Friday night, and all of them weighed less than 200 lbs., as the buyers had picked the market over and bought all of the better weights Friday. Today (Saturday), with 45,000 fresh hogs on sale, making 13,500 here, the market was somewhat of a catch-as-catch-can trade, as the buyers were just going around, and picking a load here and there that suited. The general trade was 5c to 10c lower and the top was $17.60. Bulk of the good hogs weighing from 170 lbs. up, sold at $17.25 to $17.50. Market dull on the lighter weights: 130 to 160 lbs ranging from $14.75 to $16.50; lighter pigs, $10 for common kind, up to $14.75 for the good kind; best roughs, $16.40; half fat kinds, $12 to $15. There is still quite a sprinkling of hogs unsold, but they are those that range in weights from 150 to 180 lbs.

SHEEP—Lamb market fully 75c per cwt. higher than a week ago, sheep steady. Medium to good lambs, $14 to $15.40; cull lambs, $8 to $11; fat sheep, $9; choppers and bucks, $7.50; canners, $5; good fat goats, $5.50; plain common kinds, $3 to $4; kids, $6.50 to $9.

Horses and Mules.

HORSES—The market is slow. Eastern chunks, $130@160; farm mares, southern type, $105@140; southern horses, choice, $95@105; southern horses, medium, $45@75; southern horses, cheap, $15@30; plugs, $10@20.

MULES—The trade is dull; 16 to 16¼ hands, $200@325; 15 to 15½ hands, $140@225; 15 hands, $165@180; 14 to 14½ hands, $90@135; 13 to 13½ hands, $50@125; 12 to 12¼ hands, $50@125.

COTTON 45 TO 75 POINTS LOWER IN NEW YORK

Market Reflects Less Optimistic Trade Reports and More Liberal Southern Spot Offerings.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—There were reactions in the cotton market today, with January fluctuating between 26.50c and 26.90c, and closing at 26.55c, compared with 27.43c, the high level of yesterday. The general list closed steady at net declines of 45 to 70 points.

The market opened easy at a decline of 43 to 55 points, under realizing and hedge selling which was probably against the increased business reported in Southern spot markets late yesterday. These initial offerings were readily absorbed by talk of an improving export demand and bullish Southern spot prices.

December sold up from 25.23c to 25.83c with active months selling back to within 12 to 20 points of last night's closing figures.

Realizing continued, however, and the market eased off again in the late trading, closing about the lowest point of the day on most positions.

After the advance of nearly 3c per pound from the low level of last Monday, local brokers had anticipated considerable realizing for over the week-end, and were disposed to attribute the decline chiefly to selling of that sort.

Some attention was attracted by reports from the goods trade that French and Belgian commissions had purchased quantities of goods that had been held in stock for the War Department, but which were no longer needed for war purposes. Otherwise, reports from the goods trade were considered rather unsettling, as mill production was said to be curtailed in some sections to prevent accumulations of goods.

Reports that the Ship Control Committee of the United States Shipping Board have tendered resignations to take effect Jan. 1, were considered a further indication of the gradual improvement in shipping conditions.

Sales reported at the leading Southern spot markets on the advance of Friday, showed a very substantial increase, aggregating about 27,000 bales.

A Southewestern authority issued a revised crop estimate placing the yield at 11,120,000 bales, excluding linters.

CORN SHOWS LOWER DRIFT DESPITE $17.50 FOR HOGS

Market Is Higher in Early Week, Then Meets Selling; Oats Futures Are Irregular.

Ten per cent increase in the number of hogs in the United States, together with announcement that the January average price of hogs would be $17.50, or up to the December level, forced liberal advances here last week in the corn market. Strength, however, was mostly in the early sessions and later talk of larger receipts caused selling and gains were lost. Yesterday's market was weak and 2c under Friday's close.

Food Administration estimates as to the need of immense supplies for Europe had given the corn market an upward slant even before the attention of traders became focussed on the great expansion of the hog raising industry.

Authoritative figures on the increase in the number of hogs in excess of the total of a year ago were taken to indicate that enlarged production of corn had been more than counterbalanced, and this view was sharply emphasized by the subsequent fixing of the January average hog price. Nevertheless, later in the week prices to some extent weakened when restrictions on speculative trading were removed.

Oats were influenced by the movement of corn and by a fair demand from the seaboard."

Opinion differs as to the course of corn prices. The bears claim now that peace has come it shortly will be impossible to hold values up artificially as at present, because the world's markets are open to competitive trade and Australia, the Argentine and other countries will be in a position to undersell the United States. They declare that setting the price of hoge at $17.50, or higher than a year ago, when the number in the country is 10 per cent over last year, creates a condition in corn that must sooner or later be adjusted especially, as the guarantee on wheat suggests that the Government will have to pocket a loss in much the same way as it is adjusting many war contracts.

Some claim that the best solution would be to open the wheat markets to general trade and the Government pay the difference, if any, in market price, and the set figure of $2.26.

Farmers now are holding their corn, owing to continued talk of famine in Europe; and bears assert that stocks on the farms will prove cumbersome in the spring, at a time when "heating" is possible, and that much grain will be forced on the markets and cause more severe declines in values than if the price is not supported artificially, and is left to seek a peace basis gradually.

Bulls on corn claim that conditions in Europe warrant high grain prices, and point out that after the Civil War wheat, corn and oats sold higher than during the actual war period. They say the Government will be forced to maintain its wheat guarantee of $2.26 to the farmer, and that demoralization in the trade generally would result should efforts to support prices be entirely removed.

The high prices of other commodities, as well as wages, are mentioned as supporting factors, as are continued high cash premiums over futures. These premiums might, however, melt over night, should something develop to make the farmer move his grain freely to market.

CORN OFF 2 CENTS IN TRADE IN CHICAGO PIT

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—Removal of some of the barriers on trading had a bearish influence today in the corn market. Values were also depressed by enlarged country offerings. Handlers expected that receipts here Monday might aggregate 500 cars.

Opening prices, which ranged from ⅝c to 1¼c lower, with Jan., $1.30 to $1.30¼ and Feb. $1.29¼ to $1.29¾, were followed by a decided further setback.

Oats sympathized with the weakness of corn. After opening ⅛c to ⅝c off, with January 72c to 72¼c, the market continued to sag.

Provisions reflected the declines in grain and hogs. Big shipments, however, continued.

Week-end rallies were unimportant. The market closed steady 1¼c to 2½c net lower, with January $1.28½ to $1.28⅝ and February $1.28 to $1.28⅛.

ANNOUNCING

"UNDER FOUR FLAGS"

The Government's Own Film

3rd U. S. Official War Feature

COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC INFORMATION
DIVISION of FILMS
WASHINGTON

This war is too big a thing to imagine. You must see it to comprehend the vastness of it!

"Under Four Flags," the 3rd of the great war films produced by the U. S. Government, takes up the story where "America's Answer" left it.

The keynote of this new and absorbing picture is—Unified command as a means of winning the war for democracy!

It visualizes the more recent war activities of the leading belligerent nations in a way that nothing else can.

It is as if you were given a "front" seat in the "theatre" of war—with the panorama of Allied activity spread out before you.

What would you not give to see Lincoln and Grant meet and shake hands?

Pershing at Versailles

You can see General Foch and General Pershing shake hands at the conference of Allied representatives which met at historic Versailles!

What would you give to see the "Yanks" and the "Johnnie Rebs" meet in battle at Bull Run or Gettysburg?

You can see Pershing's men go into battle at Chateau-Thierry! You can see them hurl their hand grenades and mop up captured trenches! You can see the long lines of Hun prisoners file toward the rear!

It's all as real as life—because it is life—life caught in the passing!

The War's Significance "Brought Home"

When you see the vivid, thrilling, pathetic scenes of "Under Four Flags," the war ceases to be a vague, far-off thing—it comes home to you with living reality. It becomes a vital part of your own existence—as vital as your memories of the day your soldier boy left home to serve his country.

Do you want to see how the Hun devastates evacuated towns? How a submarine chaser drops its depth bomb? How the streets of Paris looked when the "boys from home" marched through them, after the victory of Chateau-Thierry? How the—

But there's so much you want to see, and know, that we refer you to "Under Four Flags," perhaps the most appealing series of war scenes ever filmed! You can't afford to miss it!

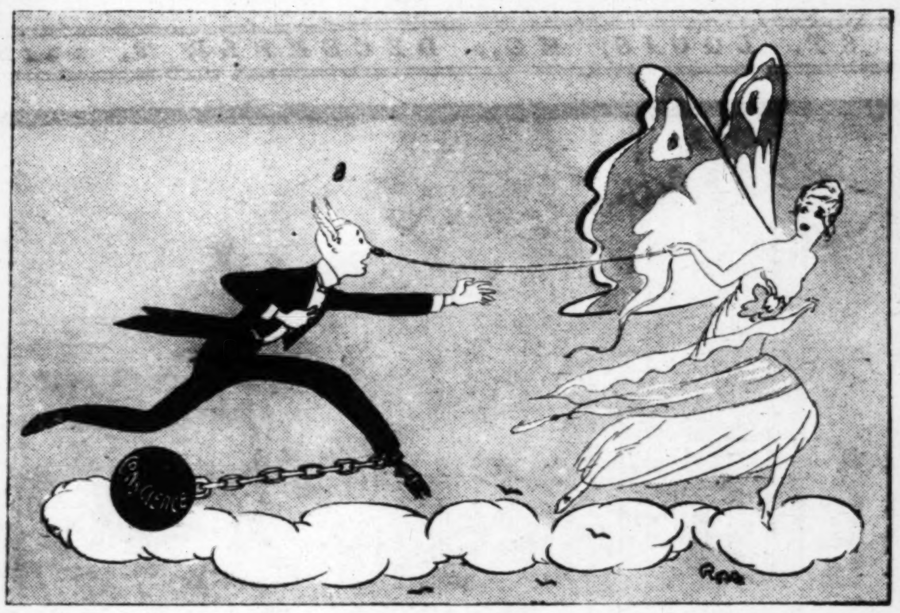
“The Tumult and the Shouting Dies”

DRAWING BY LEE CONREY

WHEN the great guns fell silent and the soldier’s stern task was done, then his dreams could turn to the kindly pursuits of peace; and as in a vision he beholds the cannon, beaten into plowshares, tilling the bounteous earth and bringing forth its fruits; the while wife and child cheer the toiler’s beneficent labors.

What Every Woman Knows About Mere Man

Witty champion of fair and only intelligent sex says ladies always pitifully regard their male folks as donkeys, and know them to be shallow and pathetic fellows—Every noteworthy man has a wide streak of woman in him, like Napoleon and Goethe—The fact that the average man marries, against his own honest inclinations and best interests, is most notorious proof of superior feminine talent for persuasion and intimidation ::



"The very fact that marriages occur at all is a proof of woman's superior intelligence."

ALAS for Mere Man! For generations canny woman has been making him believe himself a demigod, when he is, as she knows perfectly well, only a numskull. Without a woman to rule him and think for him, he is merely a baby with whiskers — as lamentable a spectacle as one can imagine.

Men enjoy having women mother them — without suspecting that the women all the time are just pitying their helplessness, their shoddy and preposterous souls, their touching self-delusions. If any male of the human species dares look at himself in a mirror which does not flatter, and if the female of the corresponding genus can bear to have her secret thoughts about man brought to pitiless light—then let them read the following extracts from "Defense of Women," the latest book of that keen satirist, H. L. Mencken (Goodman):

A MAN'S woman folk, whatever their outward show of respect, always regard him secretly as an ass, and with something akin to pity. His most gaudy sayings and doings seldom deceive them; they see the actual man within, and know him for a shallow and pathetic fellow. In this fact, perhaps, lies one of the best proofs of feminine intelligence, which is simply a sharp and accurate perception of reality, an habitual immunity to emotional disenchantment, a relentless capacity for distinguishing clearly between the appearance and the substance. The appearance, in the normal family circle, is a hero, a magnifico, a demigod; the substance is a poor mountebank.

A man's wife labors under no illusions. She may envy her husband in certain details. She may envy him his masculine liberties, his invulnerable complacency, his talent for petty vices, his soothing romanticism. But she never envies him his puerile ego; she never envies him his shoddy and preposterous soul.

This shrewd perception of masculine bombast and make-believe, this acute understanding of man as the eternal tragic comedian, is at the bottom of that compassionate irony which passes under the name of the maternal instinct. A woman wishes to mother a man simply because she sees into his helplessness, his need of an amiable environment, his touching self-delusion. That ironical note is not only apparent daily in real life; it sets the whole tone of feminine fiction. I can't recall a single masculine figure created by a woman novelist, from Daniel Deronda to Ethan Frome, who is not, at bottom, a booby.

It is not necessary to bring up a vast mass of gratuitous evidence to establish what should be a maxim. As well devote a laborious volume to the lasciviousness of Puritans or the imbecility of Congressmen.

Women are not only intelligent; they have almost a monopoly on certain of the subtler and more utile forms of intelligence. Men are strong. Men are brave in physical combat. Men have sentiment. Men are romantic and love what they conceive to be virtue and beauty. Men incline to faith, hope and charity. Men know how to sweat and endure. Men are amiable and fond. In other words, the essential traits and qualities of the male, the hall-marks of the masculine, are at the same time the hall-marks of the numskull The caveman is all muscles and mush. Without a woman to rule him and think for him, he is a truly lamentable spectacle, a baby with whiskers.

Find me an obviously intelligent man, free from sentimentality and illusion, hard to deceive, a man of the first class, and I'll show you a man with a wide streak of woman in him. Bonaparte had it; Goethe had it; Herbert Spencer had it; Bismarck had it. It would be an easy matter, indeed, to demonstrate that superior talent in man is practically always a function of this feminine flavor—that complete masculinity and stupidity are indistinguishable. Man, without a saving touch of woman in him, is too doltish, too naif and romantic, too easily deluded and lulled to sleep by his imagination to be anything above a cavalryman, a theologian or a stock broker.

A man thinks that he is more intelligent than his wife because he can add up a column of figures more accurately, and because he understands the imbecile jargon of baseball and the market, and because he is able to distinguish between the ideas of rival politicians, and because he is privy to the minutiae of some sordid and degrading business or profession, say, soap-selling or the law. But these are merely superficial accomplishments, and their acquirement puts little more strain on the mental powers than a chimpanzee suffers in learning how to catch a penny or scratch a match.

The whole bag of tricks of the average business man, or even of the average professional man, is inordinately childish. It takes no more actual sagacity to carry on the everyday hawking and haggling of the world, or to ladle out its normal doses of bad medicine and worse law, than it takes to operate a taxicab or fry a pan of fish. The late Charles Francis Adams, after a long lifetime in intimate association with some of the chief men of affairs of the nation, reported in his old age that he had never heard a single one of them say anything worth hearing. These were vigorous and masculine men, and in a man's world they were successful men, but intellectually they were all but blank cartridges. Their very capacity to master and retain such balderdash as constitutes their stock in trade is proof of their mental inferiority.

This theory is of dignified antiquity, and is borne out by the familiar incompetency of first-rate men for what are called practical concerns. One could not think of Aristotle or Beethoven multiplying 3,472,701 by 99,999 without making a mistake. First-rate men are bad at tying neckties, do not understand baseball, are flabbergasted by double-entry bookkeeping, and know nothing of party politics. And their lack of skill at manual and mental tricks—which must inevitably appear to a barber or a dentist as stupidity and to a successful hay and feed dealer as downright imbecility—is a character that men of the first class share with women of the first, second and even third classes.

It is a commonplace of observation that a housewife who knows how to cook, or who can make her own clothes with enough skill to conceal the fact, or is competent to instruct her children in the elements of morals, learning and hygiene, is very rare indeed, and when encountered, is not usually esteemed for her general intelligence. This is particularly true in the United States. Nowhere else in the world do women show a higher level of intelligence. And nowhere else is there a more inept handling of the whole domestic economy. It is no mere coincidence that the land of the emancipated women is also the land of canned pork and beans, and of everything else readymade. In brief, women, when they get a chance, rebel against the dull, mechanical tricks of the trade that the present organization of society compels them to practice for a living, and that rebellion testifies to their intelligence.

That is a rare, rare man, I venture, who is as steadily intelligent, as consistently sound in judgment, as little put off by appearances, as the average woman of 48. The doctrine will, perhaps, arouse a protest. But an appeal to a few obvious facts will sustain my contention, despite the vast accumulation of romantic rubbish to the contrary.

Turn, for example, to the field in which the two sexes most constantly come into conflict and in which, as a result, their habits of mind are most clearly contrasted—to the field, to wit, of monogamous marriage. Surely, no long argument is needed to demonstrate the superior effectiveness of women here, their greater self-possession, their saner weighing of considerations, their higher power of resisting emotional suggestions. The very fact that marriages occur at all is a proof of this, indeed.

For it is plainly to a man's interest to avoid marriage as long as possible, and as plainly to a woman's interest to make a favorable marriage as soon as possible. Which side commonly prevails in the duel? I leave the verdict to the jury. All normal men fight the thing off; some men are successful for relatively long periods; a few extraordinarily intelligent and courageous men (or perhaps merely lucky ones) escape altogether. But, taking one generation with another, the average man is duly married and the average woman gets a husband. Thus the great majority of women, in this clear-cut and endless conflict, make manifest their substantial superiority to the great majority of men.

Not many men gain anything of net value by marriage, as the institution is now met with, and any benefits are plainly overborne by crushing disadvantages. Any man in full possession of the modest faculties that nature commonly apportions to him is at least far enough above idiocy to realize that marriage is a bargain in which he gets the worst of it, even when, in some detail, he makes a visible gain.

No man ever, I believe, wants all that marriage offers and implies. He wants no more than certain parts. He may desire a housekeeper to protect his goods and entertain his friends—but he may shrink from the thought of sharing his bathtub with anyone, and homecooking may be downright poisonous to him. He may yearn for a son to pray at his tomb—and yet suffer acutely at the mere approach of relatives-in-law. He may want company and not intimacy, or intimacy and not company. He may want a cook and not a partner in his business, or a partner and not a cook. But in order to get the precise thing or things that he wants, he has to take a lot of things that he does not want—that no sane man, in truth, could imaginably want. It is to the enterprise of forcing him into this almost Arminean bargain that the woman of his "choice" addresses herself. And she almost invariably succeeds.

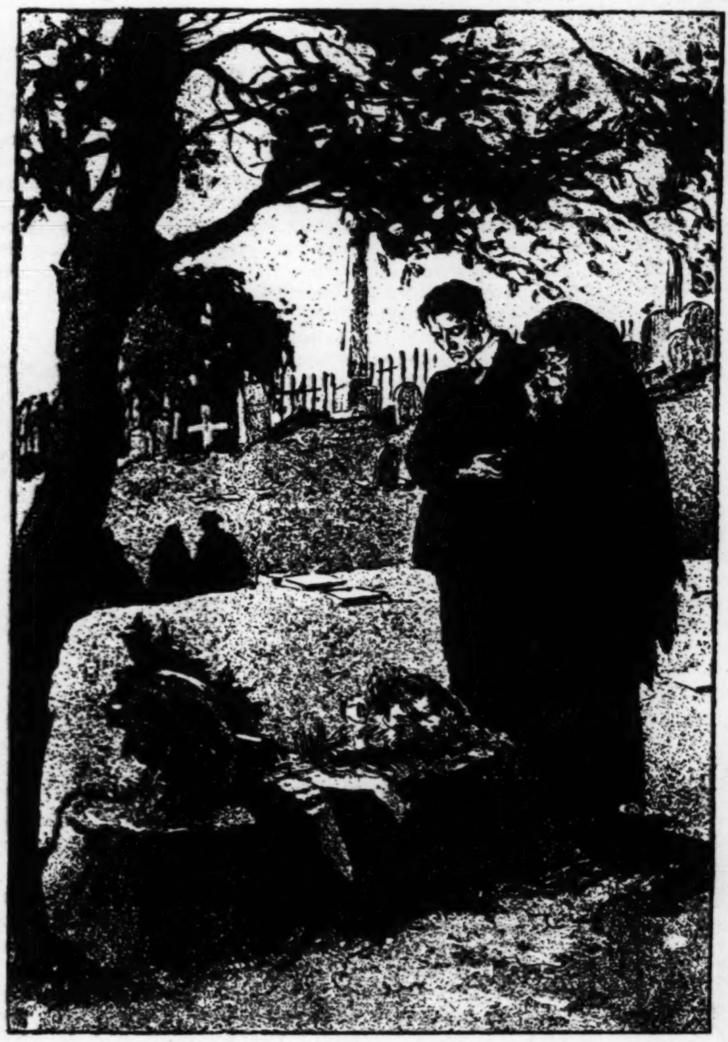
When a man marries it is no more than a sign that the feminine talent for persuasion and intimidation—i. e., the feminine talent for survival in a world of clashing concepts and desires, the feminine competence and intelligence—has forced him into a more or less abhorrent compromise with his own honest inclinations and best interests.

When I observe the dangers to which man is constantly exposed, through his stupid conscientiousness and dull sentimentality, the crusading spirit burns within me, and I am moved to destroy this sorry scheme of things entire. I once, indeed, proposed an alternative scheme, to wit, the prohibition of sentimental marriages by law, and the substitution of match-making by the common hangman.

This plan, revolutionary as it may seem, would have several plain advantages. For one thing, it would purge the deadly business of marriage of the romantic fol-de-rol that now corrupts it, and so make for the peace and happiness of the race. Death itself, at present, rarely gets on anyone's nerves. It is a certainty, bound to come sooner or later. So one rarely thinks much about it, or actively dreads it. By the adoption of my plan, marriage would be brought into a comparable inevitability, and woman, though she still retained her immense superiority in practical intelligence, would have no opportunity to display it afresh and constantly afresh in so annoying and humiliating a fashion—if the hangman, that is, made his selections by the hazard of the die.

Because Smithy Kept His Word

Honor system was inaugurated at Eastern prison, where for 10 years past 50 per cent of inmates have been out on parole, and not one has ever failed to return at hour promised—One convict, out driving truck without guard, saved scores of lives at risk of his own in munitions explosion at Morgan, N. J. :: ::



"Smithy went straight home, and was at the graveside supporting his widowed mother."

JUST about noon on a bright October morning—one of those days when everybody feels like getting outdoors—Dr. Frank Moore, Superintendent of the New Jersey Reformatory at Rahway, stood in his office facing Smithy, the worst inmate. Dr. Moore was holding a telegram.

"Smithy," he said, "I sent for you to give you some bad news. It's from your old home. You remember your father, don't you?"

Smithy was looking out of the window trying to appear uninterested. A bored look was one of his specialties, especially when one of the officers of the institution was trying to talk to him.

"I have a telegram here from your mother. Your father took ill very suddenly and passed away. Your mother wants me to let you go home tomorrow for the funeral."

Smithy made no sign that the news meant anything to him.

"Now, I don't quite see," Dr. Moore went on, "how I am to let you go. You know what your record is. I would like to send you, though, just for the sake of your mother. She wants you. Even the sight of her boy who brought so much sorrow into her life might be a comfort to her at a time like this."

Smithy was looking out of the window, as though he didn't care a fig whether he went or whether he stayed. If he had any private feelings about the matter he wasn't going to make them public property. Maybe the "supe" imagined he could make him break down and blubber like a kid. Nix on that stuff! Or perhaps the "supe" thought the news of his father's death would kind of break him all up so that they could handle him. All right, he'd show them. They had nothing on him.

The Sheriff from the county where Smithy's old home is had come into the office while Dr. Moore was speaking. He knew Smithy of old. In fact, he had been instrumental in putting him in the reformatory. He had even personally conveyed Smithy there and got a receipt for him. That receipt was one of the Sheriff's proudest possessions.

"If you'll allow me to suggest, doctor," said the Sheriff, "I think I can help you out in this matter. I can take Smithy back with me this afternoon. I'm going right to his town. He won't get away from me, because I'll have the cuffs on him. And tonight I'll lock him up in a cell. Then tomorrow I'll send a couple of Deputy Sheriffs to the funeral with him. They'll have him handcuffed and they'll put him back in a cell after the funeral's over, and we can keep him there for you until some of your patrol officers are passing, and they can bring him back here."

Dr. Moore thought for a moment.

"Smithy," he said, "you wouldn't want your mother to see you at the funeral that way, would you?"

"No, sir," whispered the outlaw, without turning his head.

"And your mother—she wouldn't want to see you that way, would she?"

This time there was no answer.

"I'm much obliged to you, just the same, Sheriff, for the offer," said the doctor, and the Sheriff departed with every assurance that any little thing he could do at any time—well, all the doctor had to do was to call on him and he would be willing to oblige.

"Smithy," said Dr. Moore, closing the door, "I want you to go to your father's funeral. I'd like you to go all alone. But I have no authority to let you go. There's no law permitting me to send you, and if I were to take the responsibility of letting you go alone and you failed to come back, I might be required to take your place here—to serve out your sentence. Do you realize that?"

Smithy nodded. He was thinking.

"Now suppose," continued the doctor, "just suppose that I were to let you leave here alone this afternoon, so that you could be in your old home with your mother tonight, and then tomorrow you could attend the funeral with her. Remember, though, that is something which has never been done in this institution. No man has been permitted outside without a guard. You would be the first man, Smithy, ever allowed to go away on a leave of absence. The only hold I would have on you, once you got out of sight, would be your promise, given to me on your word of honor, that right after the funeral you would come straight back here and report to me. Would you give me your word of honor to come back, Smithy?"

"Yes, sir," replied Smithy, and for the first time he looked right at Dr. Moore.

Smithy left that afternoon, dressed in a dark suit of clothes. Dr. Moore lent him a dollar to pay his fare home. He hadn't far to go, and his name isn't Smithy. The funeral was to be at 11 o'clock the following morning, and Smithy was to be back in the reformatory at 3 p. m.

Two-thirds of the reformatory officers predicted he never would come back. They knew Smithy. They had his record.

More than two-thirds of the reformatory inmates predicted Smithy would be back before 3 o'clock. They said they knew Smithy better than the officers did. Of the other one-third, some had doubts; some said they'd be willing to believe he'd come back when they saw him walk in. Some were sure they'd seen the last of him. He'd never come back to Rahway. They knew Smithy so well they could read him just like a book. They'd kissed him good-by and the "supe" was in Dutch for fair.

That night and next morning Smithy was the topic of conversation around the reformatory. In fact Smithy did go straight home. Next morning he stood at the graveside supporting his mother during the recital of the last prayers for the dead. And at 10 minutes to 3 that afternoon he rang the reformatory door bell for admittance. In his left hand was a $1 bill, which he handed to Dr. Moore with a few words of thanks for the Superintendent's kindness in letting him go to the funeral, and hoping the Superintendent had found him as good as his word for once, and hoping further that from now on his old record would be wiped off the slate, because he was going to try hard to make good.

And this is where Smithy fades out of the story, for that funeral was held 10 years ago. The incident is mentioned here, just as Dr. Moore related it a few days ago, in order to lead up to the present time, when other events, for which the Smithy episode forms a fitting prelude, have been occuring.

Smithy, by giving and keeping his word of honor, was directly responsible for the saving of 100 or more lives during the terrific trinitrotoluol explosions at the Government shell-loading plant at Morgan, N. J., on the night of Friday, Oct. 5.

There were 716 other inmates of the reformatory at the time Smithy gave his word and kept it. Probably 500 of them thought as much of their word of honor as Smithy did, and they didn't hesitate to say so. They, too, wanted a chance to get out; not because there was any necessity for it, but just because they wanted to prove to the officers and to the other inmates that they would come back again.

So Dr. Moore encouraged them in that belief. He introduced an honor parole system. That was 10 years ago. Today fully 50 per cent of the inmates are availing themselves of it. And in all that 10 years not one man who was let out on his promise to return at a stated hour has failed to keep his word.

"I'd feel sorry," said Dr. Moore, "for any man who had broken his word if the other inmates ever got hold of him. I used to say that the first man out on leave who failed to return on time would be turned loose among the other inmates. But they all came back. A 10 years' trial has proved that the plan works out successfully. Over at the reformatory farm at Annandale we keep from 15 to 20 inmates quartered in two old farmhouses. They're all alone out there. Nobody is watching them to see they do not escape. There are no armed guards, no walls, no bloodhounds. These men are there on their honor and they'll stay, every one of them, until we bring them in. I visit them every week or two to see how they are getting along and how the farm work is progressing.

"Another big squad is working at Cartaret. Others are working on farms and on the State roads. They have no guards or keepers with them. Every morning the motor trucks take them to work. At night the trucks bring them back here again."

The operation of this parole system explains why Alfred O'Brien, a reformatory inmate, happened to be on his way back to Rahway from Trenton on the night of the big disaster at Morgan. O'Brien is a motor truck driver. His particular job at the reformatory is to drive a two-ton truck. In it he takes loads of tinware and other reformatory-made products to Trenton and other far-distant parts of the State. He always goes alone. He isn't padlocked to the seat, his clothes are like those of an ordinary truck driver.

Immediately after the first awful explosion at 7:40 p. m., when 7000 pounds of trinitrotoluol let loose, O'Brien headed for the shell-loading plant. The bombardment has been described as terrific. Those who were right there have declared that "terrific" isn't the correct word. The village of Morgan was wiped out of existence at the first blast, 94 workmen and other civilians were killed and 50 seriously injured. The property loss was $25,000,000.

Those who were able to were trying to escape from the danger zone when O'Brien got there. There were 100,000 pounds of trinitrotoluol and amythol stored in the shell-loading plant and it might let go at any moment. O'Brien and his truck furnished transportation for hundreds of fugitives that night. It seems a miracle that he wasn't killed and his truck blown to bits. He carried load after load from Morgan to South Amboy. The reformatory officials knew where O'Brien was. They were satisfied. O'Brien was there rendering first aid as representative of the reformatory system. That night more than 500 refugees found shelter in the reformatory.

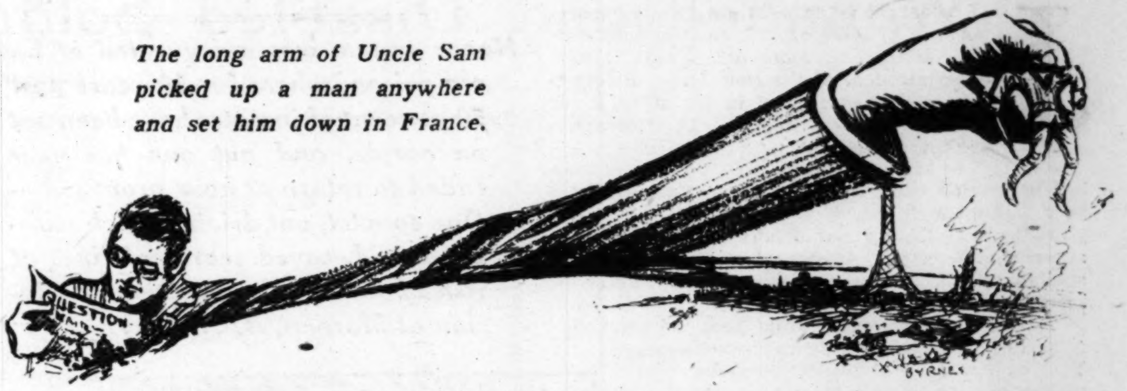
The heroism of O'Brien was called to the attention of the State Department of Charities and Correction, and a letter was sent to Dr. Moore and read before the inmates extolling O'Brien's bravery. The Reformatory Board, acting upon a request of the Superintendent, probably will present a petition to the State Court of Pardons at the next meeting asking that O'Brien be pardoned and restored to citizenship.

So, if O'Brien gets out he ought to hunt up Smithy and thank him for keeping his word.

And he is far from being the only one who ought to thank Smithy. Every prisoner at this institution in the last ten years who has been paroled from the gloomy and solitary cell, from the stern restrictions of existence within prison walls, should be grateful to the Superintendent who had a kindly impulse, and secondly to the prisoner who gave his word of honor and kept it.

Quaint Humors at the Draft Appeals Board

Clearing-house of human emotions exhibits as under X-ray all that is noble and base in humanity—Women who made sacrifices so husband could join army, others who lied to keep them out — "You've taken my man away to fight and he's the best fighter I ever had," complains one wife—"I haven't received my elopment," writes another — Some address letters to President and Mrs. Wilson :-: :-: :-:



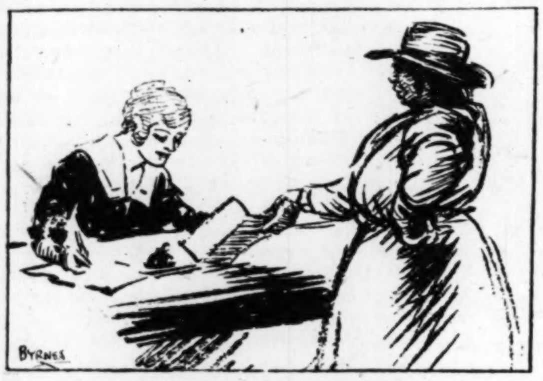
The long arm of Uncle Sam picked up a man anywhere and set him down in France.

"HE didn't get married until after war was declared, but he's not in the army. His folks are boasting around that they can spend enough money to keep him out of the draft, and his wife's people swear they will spend as much to get him in as his folks can to keep him out. The neighbors want to see the thing settled one way or another."

Thus went one of the flood of anonymous letters that poured into the office of the District Appeals Draft Board in St. Louis after Uncle Sam began mustering his millions from shop, store, office and farm in the spring of 1917.

There never was such a turning wrong-side-out of souls as that which followed in the wake of the draft law. All that was noble, unselfish, courageous, patriotic and all that was selfish and cowardly in human nature came under the X-ray. The District Board office proved a regular clearing-house of human emotions. There could be seen, in the daily routine of business, the expression of much that made one thrill with pride for his nationality, and of some things that brought a blush.

"My husband refused to claim exemption, although we have three small children, and I am glad that he didn't," wrote one woman. "But we think that as we are giving him to the country, you might tell me where I can get work to support the children." Then there was the other kind of letter, which was like this:



The advertising circular stated: "You will soon be called to serve your country; buy your wrist-watch now."

"My husband left me five years ago, and the children and I didn't hear of him until the draft law was passed. Then he came back and promised to make a living for us. I signed his dependency claim, and after he was put in Class 4 he ran away and we haven't heard of him since."

But the letters were a small part of it all. Beginning with the first registration, one and all began to ask questions. Men who had registered wanted to know how they could get into service quickest, and a few wanted to know how they could stay out longest. Some wanted to know what branch was the safest, and others (who, let it be said, were in the majority) wanted to know where they "could get the most action for their money."

Some men's wives came to inquire what they could do to keep their husbands out of the army, and some came to learn what they could do to get them in. And whatever motives inspired them, and whatever they wanted—all asked questions.

Many—perhaps a majority—of the inquiries were concerning matters over which the board really had no jurisdiction. The task of pacifying the angry wife, who stormed in to demand that "my husband be made to either work or fight right away," and of satisfying the disgusted youth who wanted to know "why in thunder they don't give a fellow a uniform instead of bothering him with all this questionnaire foolishness," fell upon a young woman.

Miss Jean Farmer, information clerk of the board, who is 23 years old, had no business experience before the war. When she selected that position as the one in which she could best serve, she picked what a housebreaker calls a "mean lay," when he is talking about a house that has an árclight on each side, with a new policeman on the beat trying for promotion. In plain, it was a tough job.

It required a thorough knowledge of the draft law and of the hundreds of supplementary regulations, which were changed and enlarged constantly. It required efficiency and dispatch in the case of the business man who wanted to know how to support his employes' claims; sympathy for the mother who wanted to appeal in behalf of her son, and brusqueness for the inquirer who didn't realize that he had been spotted as a slacker the minute he came through the door.

And above and beyond all, it required the patience of a saint. Since the first of the year, when Miss Farmer took the job, it is estimated that she has answered more than 25,000 questions, of which it is doubtful if any two were exactly alike. It is never possible to please so many people, but it is not on record that the information clerk ever lost her temper or made a sarcastic reply.

MURILLO PORTRAIT

Miss Jean Farmer, St. Louis girl, who answered 25,000 inquiries.

"I want to know whether my wife has to fill out her part of my questionnaire; she is a patient at the insane asylum," stated one man. This might appear to some a humorous situation, but a moment's thought will show it was not. The man was serious; he had asked because he didn't know what to do. His wife's misfortune was a terrible tragedy to him, and any answer but a comprehending and sympathetic one would have wounded him deeply, and that while he was trying to do his patriotic duty.

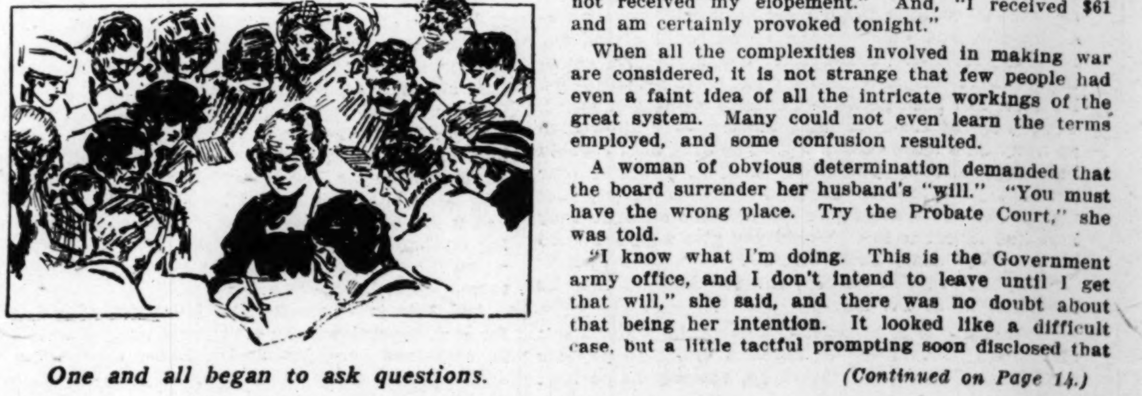
However, there were funny ones—hundreds of them. A large negro woman flounced into the office, which is on the thirteenth floor of the Boatmen's Bank Building, not long ago.

"My husband's goin' to be put in the ahmy, an' tain't right," she declared. A reference to the files proved that the man was in Class 2—a deferred class in which men are placed whose wives could support themselves if the husband was called. Miss Earmer assured the complainer that there was little probability he would be called.

"Probability nothin'!" exclaimed the caller. "I know he's goin' to be called," and, with the air of one who cannot be disputed, she produced an advertising circular which had been mailed to her husband by a jewelry firm. In black letters it stated:

"You soon will be called to serve your country.

"Buy your wrist watch now."



One and all began to ask questions.

Letters to President Wilson and Mrs. Wilson were frequently received. One informed Mr. Wilson that "I have already written to Mr. Headquarters and received no reply; if I don't get one I'm going to write to Uncle Sam hisself." Another woman wrote: "Mrs. Wilson, I need help bad; see if the President can't help me."

Some of the other quaint passages from letters received by the Appeals Board were these: "I am left with a baby 7 months old, as she is a baby and can't work." "I received my insurance polish" (policy). "I ain't received no pay since my husband has been gone from nowhere." "You have taken my man away to fight and he was the best fighter I ever had." "Now you will have to keep me or who in hell will if you don't?" And, "My son is in —— Company; please tell me if he is living or dead, and if so what is his address?" One woman asked whether her allowance would be increased since her husband had been put in charge of a "spittoon" (platoon).

Then there was the case of the man who wasn't taking any chances on disobeying regulations. "I want to know if I can spend my last evening at home," he inquired. He was pressed for more details. "I'm to go away with a contingent in the morning, and I wondered whether I could spend my last evening with my folks," he elucidated. He was told to spend it where and how he desired.

In the draft was no place for a man to be if he had any secrets. There was no such thing as keeping anything dark from Uncle Sam. But the diminutive negro didn't know that when he came in to learn how he could get his "question papers." He was told that the questionnaire should be sent from the place he was registered, but he was reticent when asked where that was. He tried every other tack, but finally capitulated.

"Well, I'll tell you all," he said. "Fact is, I got into a little trouble and when I registered I was in the Tennessee Penitentiary down to Nashville."

The degree to which some registrants considered themselves essential to the industrial welfare of the country was sometimes startling, as in the case of the man who proposed the imperative query: "In what class would you put a man who is the heart and soul of the clothing business?"

Many weird puzzles of English "as she is writ" had to be deciphered, such as these extracts from letters actually received: "I hope I am writing for inflamation." "He was inducted into the surface." "I needed his assistance to keep enclosed" (in clothes). "I am his wife and only air." "I would not wish to go under a consumed name." "I am writing to ask why I have not received my elopement." And, "I received $61 and am certainly provoked tonight."

When all the complexities involved in making war are considered, it is not strange that few people had even a faint idea of all the intricate workings of the great system. Many could not even learn the terms employed, and some confusion resulted.

A woman of obvious determination demanded that the board surrender her husband's "will." "You must have the wrong place. Try the Probate Court," she was told.

"I know what I'm doing. This is the Government army office, and I don't intend to leave until I get that will," she said, and there was no doubt about that being her intention. It looked like a difficult case, but a little tactful prompting soon disclosed that

A St. Louis Office That Will Reclaim Thousands of Wounded and Disabled Soldiers for Industry

District Vocational Office here will place men in institutions where they will be taught trades or in offices where their injuries will be no handicap—Soldier's salary of $30 a month or more if he is non-commissioned officer goes on while he is learning and he gets $35 a month additionally until placed in a permanent job :: ::

Blinded English soldiers weaving mats.

HEY there, Buddie! Are you an injured or disabled soldier, sailor or marine? Are you about to be discharged for either of these reasons? Can you get a good job? Because you aren't of further use in the army or navy, do you think there isn't a place for you in civil life?

What can you do to earn a decent living? Can you go back to your old job? Do you want to go back to it? Can you learn a new trade? Can you find a place that will train you to get away from the old and into the new? If you can get training, can you get a job after you are trained?

These questions loom up as big as a stone wall in a snowstorm right now to several St. Louisans and to hundreds of men from Missouri, Kansas, Iowa and Nebraska whose needs will be attended to shortly. To every question asked there is an answer, a decidedly satisfactory answer, if the soldier desiring a change, a new field, a better chance, goes to the right place.

For a divisional office of the Federal Board for Vocational Education has been opened in St. Louis and is being staffed to meet the needs of the returned soldiers. That office has listed 3000 men from the four states mentioned, in varying stages of disability. They were men discharged from the cantonments and training camps and men injured in the overseas expeditionary force. The number does not include the men from the last 179,625 injured. It is not known what percentage of these latest casualties happened to men from the four states in this district.

George L. Corlis, of St. Louis, Divisional Vocational Officer.

Re-education and re-employment are to follow the highest standards. At the very top of the national work stands the Federal Board for Vocational Education. The chairman of this board is David F. Houston, a St. Louisan, the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture. The other members are Secretary Redfield of the Department of Commerce, Secretary Wilson of the Department of Labor, Commissioner of Education P. P. Claxton, James P. Monroe, vice chairman; Charles E. Greathouse, agriculture, and Arthur E. Holder, labor. These last two are concerned with the work in their professional capacity as citizens, not as Government office holders.

The board's executive staff is headed by O. A. Prosser, director, whose office is in Washington. Prosser has been the recognized leader in the vocational education movement in this country in the last decade.

The St. Louis staff comprises a district vocational officer, George L. Corlis, an attorney; the supervisor of training, T. L. Johnson, a practical school man and an architect; a placement officer, A. R. Stillwagen, and a medical officer, Dr. A. Canby Robinson of Washington University serving temporarily in this position. A case officer, W. C. Matthews; a representative of employers, Robert Lund of the Lund-Mauldin Co., shoe manufacturers, and a representative of labor, J. W. Williams, secretary of the Carpenters' District Council, and Lewis Gustafson, superintendent of the Ranken Trade School, are associated with the board in an advisory capacity. Corlis is dean of the Benton College of Law, a night school that has graduated more than 700 students in 22 years, most of whom were absolutely dependent upon their own efforts. Johnson was director of manual training at Central High School for four years and is a graduate of Indiana University and a post graduate of Harvard University in manual arts and economics. The other men are with institutions that bespeak their fitness for the particular task assigned.

Already more than 800 men are registered at the St. Louis office for investigation. The course followed after they register is about this:

A man discharged from service presents a statement that he is a beneficiary of the War Risk Insurance Bureau and that he wants vocational training. It makes no difference what field he wishes to enter, the Government will help him to his preference if he has any aptitude for the work and if it is a profession that he can follow satisfactorily despite his disability. Also, it is advisable not to allow a man to enter work that already is overcrowded or that promises to be unstable.

If he is single he will receive his army pay ($30 a month if he is a private), a vocational training allotment of $35 a month and free tuition in a school or industry suited to carry out the work he intends to take up. Disabled soldiers will not be mobilized at any institution. The Federal board will make an individual contract with an institution that the soldier may wish to enter and will send him there as a civilian student, not as a disabled soldier, Congress already has appropriated $2,000,000 for the expenses of these men and more will be forthcoming if needed. If a soldier is married and has children his dependents will receive the same allotment while he is in school as they received while he was in the army. When the period of training is ended a job will be found for every student thus trained. If the student was an officer, his monthly compensation will be the equivalent of his last month's pay in the service.

The first Missouri case handled by the district board was that of a St. Joseph soldier whose right arm was partly paralyzed. It was impossible for him to raise a 10-pound weight to his shoulder. He always had a preference for medical study and decided to take up medicine. He is at the University of Missouri, where he will be kept for the time needed to complete his education. Cost is not the primary consideration in determining the reclamation of any disabled man, but rather the most effective procedure to get the man in an occupation for which he is suited.

In reorganizing the work in the United States the board has the experience of England, Canada, Australia, France, Belgium and Serbia to draw from, extending over four years of war. In this connection it might be well to cite that the British Ministry, to Aug. 31 of this year, was working out the education and care of 421,877 disabled soldiers, officers and men. What has been done for these men is well illustrated by a survey of the results in Canada, taken at random from a recent report. Here is the way their reports read:

Case A—Farmhand, gunshot wound in head; took tractor, gas engine and farm machinery course; found ready employment operating a farm tractor at $100 a month:

Case C—Farmhand, back injured in a mine explosion in France; graduated from farm tractor course and was employed in 1918 operating a farm tractor at $5 a day and board on a large wheat farm.

Case E—Farmer, took farm machinery and gas engine course; now traveling salesman for farm machinery house, drawing $80 a month minimum salary, expense account and commission on his sales.

Case F—Ordinary teamster, suffered severe shell wounds; took motor mechanics' course; now employed as chauffeur at $80 a month. Salary as teamster was $1.25 a day.

Case I—Clerk, incapacitated by shell wounds; took motor mechanics' course and is employed on a large wheat farm as tractor operator at $85 a month and board.

Case J—Theatrical stage hand, contracted a stiffness in left shoulder; took motor mechanics' course; now employed as chauffeur at $24 a week.

Case P—Telephone lineman, left leg injured by bullet wounds; took electrical engineering; now receiving $110 a month and is in charge of a powerhouse.

Case Q—Car repairer, disabled by pneumonia and measles; took course in oxy-acetylene welding; now employed by the Canadian railway at 54 cents an hour.

All the accomplishments of any other nation will be duplicated by the American board. A soldier will be taught anything, from basket weaving, piano tuning, or furnace repairing to the most technical of the vocations. Several already have applied here to be instructed as accountants, bookkeepers, stenographers and the like. They will be sent to any of the colleges or universities or any of the business colleges that have the recognized standard business courses, or trained in shop or office.

SERIOUSNESS is a great thing in this life—in fact, it's about the most serious thing there is. That's the general idea I got from some remarks of Mary Lansing's to young Van that day at the new schoolhouse. I couldn't agree with her at all.

"Look at the mule," I argues. "There ain't any more serious animal in this country or any other, and what opinon 've you got of him?"

Miss Lansing was about as sweet as Fresno honey, and that's right from peach blossoms, but she jabbed me with a look that said stronger than words out of a dictionary it was just as good an opinion as she had of some other people, and then went on showing up Van to himself. It isn't my idea of any way to entertain a man by calling special attention to his weak points; but she and Van were a different social species from what I'd ever seen before, and maybe I wasn't in kick with their point of view.

But you don't know who Van was or Mary Lansing, either, and I'd better head off any wrong notions by telling you. Van was the busiest financial genius that ever played tag with a California oil field, and Mary was—but that's not getting at it right, either. What I mean is, Van was the laziest, smartest highbrow hobo that ever trailed his two feet into our midway field; while Mary—but I've got to start somewhere nearer the beginning. Nobody ever made a go of it pumping oil before they'd drilled their well.

Van was about a year out of college when he blew into the Midway, and fresh from a business bust-up in San Francisco. His dad was Henry C. Buskirk—that name would make you sit up if you'd lived much around the oil regions. The old man had staked him to the big end of a good, going commission business in San Fran, and then left him to play the hand out by himself, on the grounds that it would make a man of him. I reckon the creditors lived on outlawed eggs and tired foodstuffs until they didn't have the nerve to look a chicken or a truck garden in the face. Then the old man likely said things sarcastic, if not actually rude, and young Van made for the lonesomest place he could hide his head in.

He just about hit it in the Midway, 15 miles from a railroad, with the wells only just beginning to come in. There was plenty of oil excitement around, but spread out over so many square miles of desert it didn't make any great impression on the landscape as a whole. Van's maiden name was Van Tyle Buskirk, but he didn't care about using that down with us. He preferred Vanderbilt Williams, which was likely the first thing he thought of, and he never gave two thinks when he could get away with one. Van was so lazy anyway he couldn't have kept that fool name on the payroll if he'd been all by himself; but with the rest of the boys working he sort of joined in for sociability's sake, for Van was all sociability, from his socks to his sombrero.

"You mean to tell me," I third-degrees him, "that you're Henry C.'s son? Does your dad know you're working in his own camp?"

"You bet he doesn't," Van answers; "and he won't. This isn't his camp, anyway. It belongs to the Gusher Oil Co."

"Well, any difference between the Gusher and Henry C. Buskirk ain't clear to the naked eye," I maintains. "But I like your nerve. Don't he see you when he comes? He's been down three or four times while you're here."

"Oh, he don't see me," he says, grinning. "I'm always busy somewhere until he gets ready to pull out."

"So we got two Mysterious Georges in Midway?" I says. "Pretty soon we'll be a regular detective story down here."

"Mysterious George" was a fellow that had been in camp about two months. Where he comes from we didn't know nor care, but he had a curious way whenever he saw a cloud of dust coming up the road of making himself harder to find than a dime on a sawdust floor. He and Van being something the same kind of highbrows, had done the birds-of-a-feather act more or less, and seemed to take to each other.

It was the same day we came in town on the casing job that we saw Mary Lansing. It came pretty near nipping my young manhood in the bud, because the first sight Van caught of her he let go a section of casing that came pounding down and just missed my left ear. A gnat's hair closer and I'd have come to in heaven with a jumping headache. She walked by about four feet off—just easy paralyzing distance—and when I saw her head-on I quit holding Van criminally liable for that casing affair. The company lost our services till she'd got a considerable distance by, and then Van turned on me.

"Jim, who's that?" he asked in a whisper you could have heard the other side of the freight sheds.

"If that casing had struck any closer," I throws back at him, "she'd have been an accomplice. But as it is I reckon she's the new schoolteacher."

Oil Strata had got loony enough to want a school, reckoning its kids ought to have some educational drop over the rattlesnakes and horned toads of the vicinity. Charlie Brindley, in charge of the Bakersfield Drill and Tool Co.'s store, was craziest of anybody over the scheme. He said he wasn't going to stop until he'd made that town the Athens of the Desert, Athens being some place, it seems, that was notorious for schoolhouses, like Los Angeles for climate and Petaluma for eggs. So far the schoolhouse wasn't anything but a pile of lumber dumped off along the track waiting for the next spell of enthusiasm to get hammered into a kid-proof shack. We'd heard about the proposition out at camp, for Jess, the carpenter, was laying to send his two young ones if it ever got started, which we doubted. As soon as we laid eyes on Miss Lansing, though, we began to allow that there was more doing than we'd reckoned on.

I reckon Van went through town like Paul Revere with the British after him, for when I got in again next day that pile of lumber had sprouted legs and was walking off toward where it was going to be set in place. He and Charlie Brindley had got together on the Athens proposition, and an oil boom was just like clam chowder to a highball alongside the ache for learning uplift those fellows had messed up. Van had the nerve to subscribe a week's labor in the name of the Gusher; but he talked Bashford over into standing back of it—and letting him be the labor.

It was the day school opened that Mary rubbed it into Van for being so lightweight on seriousness. It seemed sort of mean, just after what he'd done for her, but I reckon she thought the course of his true love had been running altogether too smooth and decided to throw on the emergency. Girls always like to do that, and sometimes it's a good thing and sometimes it ditches the whole train. Of course, she'd seen early in the game that Van's roustabout looks only went overalls-deep, even if he hadn't told her all about himself, and I reckon she thought he was wasting his time down there.

"Your life is too much sunshine," she says, as plain-spoken as the foreman of a gang of Polaks. "And you don't make hay while you can."

"That's a little rough, Miss Lansing," I cuts in. "When Van gets started working he's got a mule blushing with envy."

"Yes," she swings on me, "and a mule only pulls when he's pushed."

Van had been drinking in these personal remarks as sweet and smiling as if they'd been honey and brandy, but at that he stood up and there was a flash way back in his eyes like lantern light on a gun barrel.

"I understand," he says, with his teeth open just enough to let the words out. "You think my head's lazier than my hands? I've been getting the same idea myself lately. If I knew just where to start in. * * * I'm pretty well posted on the oil business, but none of the companies around here except the Gusher is big enough to employ a regular superintendent."

"Yes?" says Miss Lansing.

"And though most of them have good enough claims, there isn't the money back of them to do business on a large scale. If somebody would come along and combine a few of them into one big company, there'd be an opening for me. My father could do it, and probably he will before long."

"Yes," says Miss Lansing, "your father probably will do it. And then you'll ask him for a job?"

"You bet I won't!" says Van, as near a yell as it's polite to go with a lady. "But if I could get somebody else to do it, there'd be a big chance, if they had confidence in the man."

"Yes?" says Miss Lansing again, and she was breathing soft and not moving a muscle, she was so quiet. I've seen men act that way out fishing, when they've got a whale of a big fish nosing around their hook. She dangled that "Yes?" of hers in front of Van, just begging him to strike.

"It's a cinch!" goes on Van, and then he suddenly gets pale, as if he'd all at once found four aces in his hand. "Why, I could almost do it myself! If I was—if I wasn't"——

"If you weren't so lazy!" cries Mary Lansing, giving her line one good yank that gouges the hook deep into Van's gills.

"Lazy?" You'd have thought Van was hearing that word for the first time in his life. Then he began traveling up and down the floor between those kids' study desks, until suddenly he stopped in front of teacher's table, where Miss Lansing was sitting. He leaned over as far as he could, until he was looking that girl in the face, eye for eye. "You think I can do this if I shake my laziness?" he asks, sort of fierce, like a dog eyeing you over a half-chawed bone.

The first sight Van caught of her, he let go a section of casing that came pounding down and just missed my left ear.

"If you don't," she answers, giving him back his eyes, "it will be because you don't deserve—any of the fruits of success!" If she was one of those fruits it would take some tall climbing to get within plucking distance.

"And if I do," Van insists, trying to crowd her eyes off the board and not making a go of it, "you promise"——

Miss Lansing didn't let him finish.

"Mr. Carruthers," she says, turning to me, "isn't it the mule that has to be coaxed with oats to make him pull?"

"Sometimes it's oats," I answers, "but mostly the butt-end of the whip"—— I didn't need to say any more, for Van was out of the door like the villain getting foiled in the last act.

"Miss Lansing," I remarks, "you've started the go-devil."

"Go-devil?" she asks, not understanding.

"When an oil well is flowing too sluggish," I explains, "they load her up with nitro. Then everybody hunts the horizon, and the blaster, with his legs fixed for a quick getaway, takes a pointed iron rod—sort of a straight fish hook it looks like—holds it over that hole, and then lets her drop. They call that a go-devil."

Well, Van threw up his job a couple of days later to go after the new work he'd laid out. I kept hearing of him off and on for the next week, riding around the desert, calling on the different companies, making friends, boosting his proposition and signing up his contracts. I kind of missed him at camp, but there was one evening I was mighty glad not to have him around or he'd have likely done something to put an everlasting kink in his prospects.

It was that greaser, Manuel. He had a tongue like a rattlesnake; when he wasn't just rattling loose and noisy he was spitting poison. We'd finished supper and was beginning to roll our smokes, when he out with a remark about Mary Lansing. It was the kind of thing you could say about any woman that ever breathed, and didn't have any other foundation than that sump-hole brain of his. I'm not so quick on the uptake as lots of people, and I was just sitting there getting sore under the collar, when right across the table from the Mexican I saw "Mysterious George" jump to his feet.

He was mild-mannered, and I hadn't ever seen him mad before; but right now he was a regular oil-tank ablaze, with a vicious kind of wickedness in his eyes, and his ears appearing to lay back like a horse's when he's ready to kick. He stood there maybe two quick breaths, looking holes through that mule skinner, and Manuel, the color of a green olive, jumped up and began climbing backward over his bench. He wasn't more than one leg over before George's fist got to him right between the eyebrows.

Just how Manuel's life was saved I don't know, but he disappeared that night, and a few days later we had more trouble.

It was about "Mysterious George." He'd been nailed. The Sheriff of Kern County had raided the Gusher camp with a posse—it must have been just after we left—with a warrant for him as being one of the Cracker gang that there'd been a reward out on a long time. For all George's handiness at keeping out of sight, they hunted him up, roped him and toted him off to town. They had passed the Flowing Fortune an hour back, and the boys were all getting ready to follow and be in on the fun.

My mind once in a while travels so fast as my feet, and these facts came stringing out so gradual I had time to match 'em up in pairs.

"Say," I asks, "was there anybody from our camp in that crowd with the Sheriff?"

"Why, no," answers one of the boys, "nobody except that Mexican muleskinner, but he ain't working for you any longer, is he?"

"The sheep-heads!" I yells; "they're letting that greaser put it over 'em. He's just getting even for the beating up George gave him."

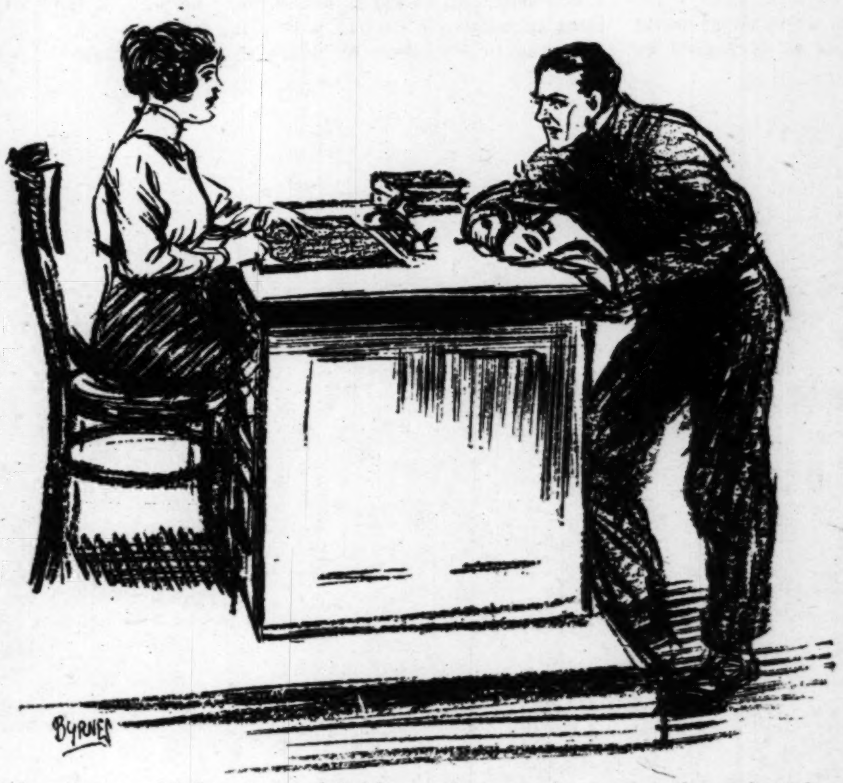
"What beating up's that?" Van raps out.

And then I had to tell him about the row at the cookhouse and what started it. I never saw so much fighting hell in anybody's eyes when he heard what it was Manuel had said.

"See here, boys," he calls out, "there's something wrong. George isn't any more a train robber than you are. I don't know who he is, exactly, but he's no holdup. There isn't going to be any lynching in this!" And he swung around and began pounding hoofprints into the road to town, with me following as close as my horse let me.

It looked like excitement in town as soon as we swung in. The First Chance was as quiet as a church trying to compete with a Dutch picnic, but up at the other end a big crowd, some horseback, but most afoot, was swarming around the jail. I was for mixing in with the boys and trying to explain things to 'em—a mighty poor chance, remembering George's suspicious way of living, but Van had a scheme of his own.

He slid off his horse and began working through those wolves until he got to the front, when he stepped out as careless as if he'd been at a dance, and marched right up to the window where the Sheriff was nursing his eye.



"I understand," he says, with his teeth open just enough to let the words out. "You think my head's lazier than my hands?"

"Halt there!" yells the Sheriff, and he poked a gun, with his finger having D. T.'s on the trigger.

Instead of halting Van hoisted his hands over his head and marched straight on till he was so close to that gun he could smell it if he wanted to. There wasn't a man that didn't look to see him blasted right off his foundations, but somehow the Sheriff's finger couldn't get up strength for the fatal squeeze. Van began talking to the Sheriff low and earnest, and pretty soon that finger quit jigging on the trigger and the Sheriff stuck his whole face into view.

We couldn't hear what was going on, though I judged Van was trying to get him to do something he was mighty unwilling to tackle. But the Sheriff was interested, just the same, and pretty soon we could see him nod his head, and then he left the window. A minute later he opened the jail door and stood facing that mob. If they'd rushed then they'd had him, but I reckon every man there was too stupid surprised to do a thing but just wait for what was going to happen next.

Dan Hammel must have stood up before a few mobs in his time, because he was Sheriff before the county had begun to smell Eastern capital, but I'll bet his widow wasn't ever any nearer a pension than that minute. He looked the crowd over, and all at once he speaks out, quick and earnest:

"As Sheriff of Kern County I summons you, Jeff Hedges, to serve on my posse!"

Jeff was in the front row, the hottest-fingered man in the fields and planning on being first inside that door. The summons took him all in a heap, so he couldn't say a word.

"And you, too, Killian," goes on the Sheriff, "and you, Monks, and Carruthers, and Brindley."

That had the crowd shoved into a corner. They stood around whispering and swearing to each other and trying to think what deviltry to do next. Van saw the trouble germ starting again and reckoned some diversion was needed. Stepping up close to the Sheriff he says, loud, so everybody could hear:

"Boys, there's something interesting about that man in there you ought to know. I'll tell you about it." And then he sinks his voice so low only the boys right close can hear, and goes on in a soft, confidential tone, saying all the good things about George he can think of.

Out in the crowd they were beginning to edge in closer and closer, trying to hear what was going on. It was a dandy dodge, Van making those boys come in that way. Pretty soon somebody way back yells, "Louder!" like it's a campaign rally they're at, and Van had 'em in his vest pocket. He doesn't say any more about George than he can help, but lights into lynching on general principles and gives it black eyes all over itself. He tells 'em what a fool business it is anyway, to butt into the workings of the law with a lot of rope, and the bad name an oil region gets that lynches an innocent man. Eastern capital don't show its head in the place again for years; and right now they want all they can get for the big game that's coming.

And then if that fellow doesn't tell them about the Petroleum Producers' Association, and offer to let 'em all in on it! I've heard of hustlers doing nervy things like selling toothpicks and dyspepsia tablets to cannibals, but never did I know of anybody jobbing stock to a bunch that was more than three-quarters ready to make a human sieve out of him. But a man with a real paraffin base enthusiasm generally manages to come out with the thing he's full of, and whether it's business or booze, he can't keep it hid. Then he brings them back to George and tells about Manuel's vile talk in the cookhouse, and that triple-action knockout; and he shouts:

"Where is that greaser? Bring him up here and we'll have George out and show how he did it."

Well, that was something like, and it started everybody to rounding up Manuel. Then some fellow says he's seen him tearing off horseback when Van began talking. It showed up next he'd taken Jeff's horse, and that bluffed bulldog had got a chance now to work off his feelings. Two to one Manuel was making for the Mojave country, and everybody got a sudden ache to visit that summer resort. From the horse point of view that Sunday wasn't a day of rest in Oil Strata. I don't know what ever became of Manuel, but he didn't ornament any telegraph poles that day, and I reckon he found his soul mate amongst the other creeping things out there in the Mojave. Anyway, the last heard of him was when Jeff's horse drifted back home three or four days later, with his flanks all chewed up by the spurs.

So many things had happened by that time, though, that we'd forgotten there ever was a Manuel. As all the evidence against George was making about 20 miles an hour in a far-off direction, the Sheriff decided not to hold him any longer. Van and I rode back with him to camp, sticking close so nobody would be tempted to pot him just for luck. But wonders never cease, as Jass, our carpenter, said when his first baby sprouted a tooth. On the road we had to pass Bud Williams' place, where Miss Lansing boarded, about a mile the other side of her school. Mary was sitting outside there. As soon as George caught sight of her he started to switch his horse around, as if he'd concluded to go back and get lynched, after all. But she'd seen him at the same time, and with a surprised sort of a girl yell she made for him.

"Harry!" she cries, "it's you!"

"Yes, Mary," he answers, game now that it's too late to run away.

"Thank heaven I've found you," she goes on. "You must come back. Your baby needs you, and your wife, too. She is ready to forgive and to ask forgiveness." And she held out her arms to George till I wanted to shoot him out of pure cussed envy.

Then I looked at Van, and my heart went sick. I've seen a man that way before, when his well turned out a duster, but even that fellow's face was a sunrise of joy alongside Van's. It was just dead—yes, dead, and not caring which hereafter it went to. With a pull that must have come near dislocating something, he yanked his horse around toward town, and in another minute he'd have been half-way there if Mary hadn't called out to him. He stopped at that and turned in his saddle.

"Miss Lansing," he says, with his voice deep and hollow like a wagon going across a bridge, "I have brought your husband back to you, and I will leave him"——

But his high-tragedy words got cut short.

"Husband!" cried Mary. "What are you saying? Do you mean Harry? He is my brother. I have been looking for him for months!" And she goes on excited, crying and laughing and explaining and begging and commanding, running up and down the scale of what a woman can do in the line of talking, like a calliope

VERSAILLES: Birthplace of the German Empire and Its Burial Ground

NEVER before has history staged so eternally fitting a coincidence as that at Versailles, where Bismarck created the German Empire by crowning William I of Prussia, in 1871, should also have been the scene of that short-lived empire's entombment, through the armistice terms which drove William II from his throne, reduced Germany's sea power to nullity and destroyed his country's insane ambition to dominate the world.

For Versailles, henceforth to be a shrine of world democracy, was built as a temple to autocracy by despotism in its finest flower since the Roman Empire—by Louis XIV, who could declare, and declare truly: "The State? I am the State!"

In the 250 years between Louis XIV and Marshal Foch a marvelous pageant of personages and events has paraded through Versailles. From a dramatic standpoint of mankind's eternal struggle towards freedom and democracy, superb Versailles, built at a cost of $100,000,000, on a sandy, waterless plain, a dozen miles southwest of Paris, stands today as perhaps the most impressive historical monument in the world.

It was in 1682, shortly before the death of Maria Theresa and the King's marriage to Mme de Maintenon, that Louis XIV commissioned Mansart, the great architect, to undertake the vast extensions which transformed the old ancestral chateau into a luxurious palace of art in the classic style of the Renaissance. Already it had long been used for revels and entertainments—including those to which Moliere and his players contributed. The place had developed to its full splendor when it became the scene of the gilded follies of the Regency and Louis XV's reign, ruled by Mmes. de Pompadour and Dubarry. Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette were still keeping up the family traditions of frivolity and extravagance there when the Nemesis of the Revolution overtook them, and the fish-market mob from Paris stormed their gates. In the halls of Versailles palace were convened the States-General, and the National Assembly which drafted the Constitution. In the great assembly room the treaty between France, Spain and England was signed on Sept. 3, 1783. Napoleon held court there during the First Empire.

During the siege of Paris, 1870-71, Versailles was the headquarters of King William of Prussia, whom Bismarck proclaimed German Emperor. From here, a little later, Gen. MacMahon directed the "Versailles army" of Government troops that suppressed the Commune. Subsequently, after the re-establishment of the French Republic, the palace became the meeting place of the National Assembly, and of the Senate. In later years it has been made a national museum, filled with choice objects of decorative art and historical paintings.

But the sanctum of the recent Supreme War Council—that august body headed by Premier Lloyd George of England, Premier Clemenceau of France, Premier Orlando of Italy and Col. E. M. House, representing President Wilson of the United States, which formulated the momentous armistice decree to be handed by Marshal Foch to the defeated and suppliant foe—the scene of this memorable conference was the main salon of the Grand Trianon, a detached palace or villa in Versailles Park, which Louis XIV built for Mme. de Maintenon in 1688. It is an architectural bijou, filled with objects of art—and not to be confounded with the Little Trianon, where Marie Antoinette used to play at rusticating.

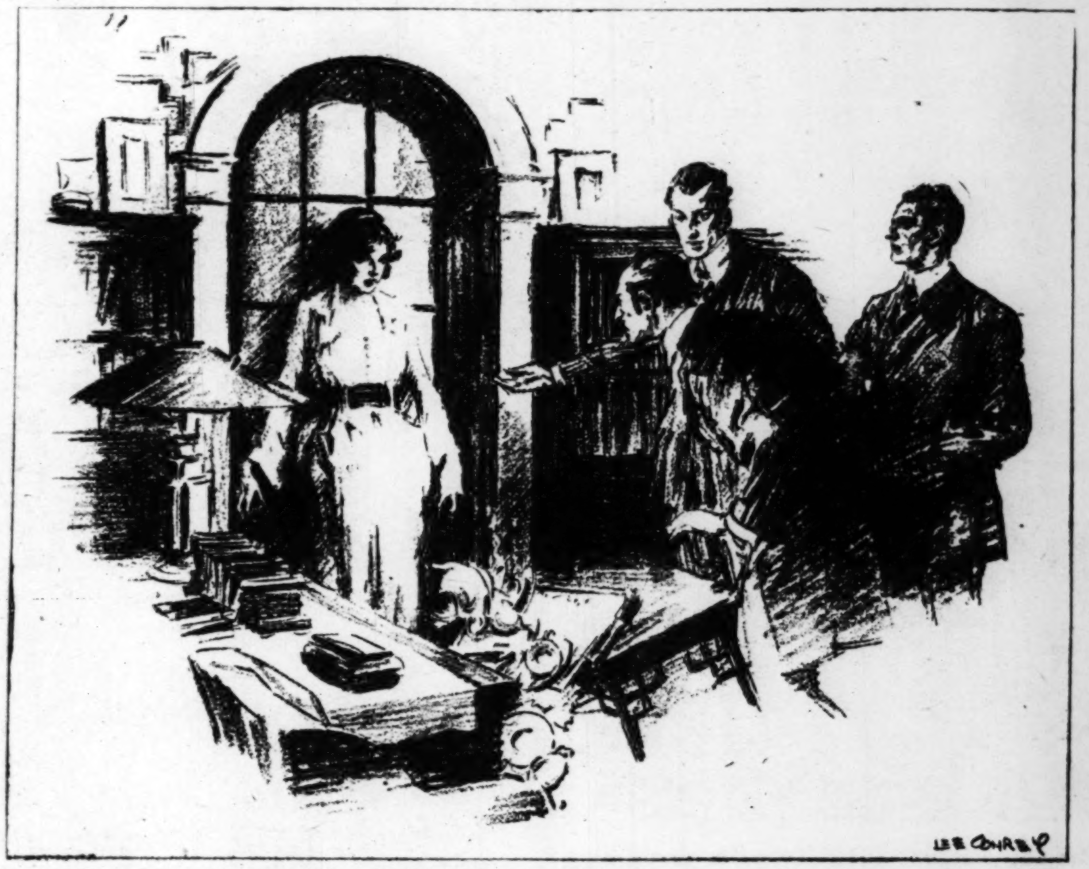
Could a more inspiring setting be found for this closing climax of Liberty's world-war drama than the memory-pictured walls of stately Versailles?

The Curious Case of Marie Dupont

A Mystery Love Story of the Present Time

By ADELE LUEHRMANN

Illustrated by Lee Conrey



The Count recoiled so violently that the tea table was overturned amid a crash of china.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED BEFORE.

Guy Amarinth, secretly married to Marie Dupont, learns from her guardian, Hugh Senior, something of her mysterious past. A motor accident in Paris seven years ago threw the young girl upon the care of Senior and his aunt, Mrs. Thorley. There was no clew to her identity, except an antique necklace she wore, supposed to be a worthless imitation. Now the necklace is discovered to be enormously valuable, and is claimed by a Rumanian stranger who sees it on exhibition in a jewelry store. A pendant in the form of a Greek cross is missing from it, and turns up in the possession of Miss Sibyl Lowther, who has given it to Roger Gavock as security for a sum of money he is about to lend her.

CHAPTER XV.

MRS. THORLEY had awakened with a severe headache and had kept to her bed. The periods of acute pain alternating with drug-deadened hours left no mental freedom for the consideration of troubles other than her own; but the pale cheeks and shadowed eyes of the young face that hovered tenderly about her made her heart ache.

As the morning's suspense dragged into the afternoon, the girl's face grew whiter and a haunted look crept into her eyes. When, now and then, the ring of the telephone or door bell penetrated to the stillness of the sick room, she would start violently, then shiver back into tense waiting. And when, at 4 o'clock, Hugh's summons came, she swayed dizzily as she made her way to the door.

Of all this Mrs. Thorley had been conscious and now she sat up, straining her ears for the sound of the voice at the telephone in the hall outside. The few faltered words she caught told her nothing.

Mrs. Thorley sank back to her pillows with a sigh of despair. Then the door opened and Marie came in.

"They'll be here in a few minutes," she announced tremulously.

"They? Guy's coming, then?" Marie nodded.

"Well, my dear, if he's coming!" Mrs. Thorley threw off the words on a deep breath of relief, as if with them went all her misgivings. But her reassurance was not reflected in her hearer's countenance.

"Hugh wants tea served," Marie said with a puzzled look.

"Tea!"

"That's what he said. But he never takes it. Neither does—either of them."

"What exactly did Hugh say?"

Marie repeated the conversation.

"Oh, well, he's coming anyway, so your troubles are over, and you can stop looking like a haunted spirit. The sight of you was more harrowing than neuralgia. Now go and make yourself beautiful for your future lord and master. He deserves it, since he's decided to behave like a man, after all."

The girl had turned away, but at the final words she stopped.

"Then you thought he wouldn't?"

"Yes, I did, frankly. That's why I didn't want him to be told."

"Do you think he need never have known?"

"You could have told him after you were married."

"Wouldn't he have resented my not telling him before?"

"Probably. But as his wife your hold on him would have been stronger than it is now."

"My legal hold, you mean?"

"No, I mean your hold on his affections."

Marie turned away again. Before her eyes rose the face of Guy Amarinth as she had seen it last, flushed and anxious, suspicious, almost hostile. Suddenly, stopping again, she asked:

"Did you meet Mr. Gavock last night, Mr. Roger Gavock of Paris?"

"No, as it happened, I didn't, but I heard that he was there. You met him? He's rather an interesting man, I am told. Lives abroad altogether. Made an unfortunate marriage when he was very young and has never tried it again. His wife turned out to have been—well, that sort, you know."

"What sort? What do you mean?"

"The sort men don't marry."

"Oh, I see," said the girl, and after a moment, "What did he do?"

"Divorced her, of course."

"What became of her?"

"Oh, heaven knows!" said Mrs. Thorley.

CHAPTER XVI.

DIRECTING the servant who admitted them to tell Miss Marie that they had arrived, Hugh Senior led the way back to the library. Inviting his guests to be seated, he crossed to the fireplace and threw a fresh log on the irons, then lingered, looking down at the fire, while he brushed the wood dust from his hands.

No one spoke. Count Szemere's glance trailed from object to object, darting back every now and then to his companions. He sat erect, expectant. Guy Amarinth's hands gripped the arms of his chair, which was turned away from the door, and he stared before him with eyes that seemed to listen fearfully.

Hugh was listening, too. While the others only waited, with him lay the responsibility for action. The drive uptown had been all but speechless, and over and over again he had challenged his judgment in deciding on this heroic measure, only to be thrown back on it each time as the one possible course. But what would the outcome be? It was not to satisfy Amarinth nor himself that the girl they both loved had not been a notorious dancer—that fact could have been established without a face-to-face encounter with Szemere. But on the encounter Hugh had built hopes of a greater decision. If the Rumanian's story were true, there was no escaping the conclusion that in some way Marie was involved in it. If not Alix Floria, she was perhaps a friend, a servant, and might have known Szemere. The sudden sight of him should come as a shock to her, and a shock, the specialists had agreed, was the one thing, short of an operation, that might restore her lost memory. The risk was great; the shock might do more harm than good—one could never count with certainty on such things——

A step in the hall!

Amarinth stirred sharply in his seat but did not look around! Szemere glanced toward the door, then at his host, who had wheeled and taken a pace forward. He fell back again, however, as the butler appeared in the doorway, bearing a tea tray.

"Miss Marie will be down immediately, sir; she told me to bring in the tea."

"Switch on the light, please."

The soft glow from the low lamps now filled the room. The butler moved about quietly, pulling down the shades of the windows, then withdrew. Followed a short space of silent waiting, then a light footfall in the hall. The next moment Marie Dupont entered.

Hugh had stepped swiftly forward to meet her.

"Did Morgan bring the tea?"

The light question restored Hugh's wavering self-control.

"Count Szemere, let me present you to my ward, Miss Dupont."

She started forward, offering her hand, and the Count extended his own as he advanced to meet her; but at the second step he recoiled violently, and the uncalculated movement threw him so roughly against the tea table that the light-legged structure was overturned amid a crash of china.

Neither Amarinth nor Hugh moved. Their eyes sped from Szemere to the girl and back again. The Rumanian, having regained his footing by a clutch at a chair, stood staring at Marie, wild-eyed, aghast, trembling in every limb. She looked at him a moment with a sort of wonder which as hostess she tried to conceal, then started forward with a little cry.

"Put out the lamp, it's burning the rug!"

Hugh and Guy sprang to do her bidding and the creeping flame was extinguished. She meanwhile had crossed to the bell and rung.

"I'll have Morgan bring more tea," she said.

Count Szemere took a deep breath and for an instant his shaking frame relaxed in relief; but only for an instant, then his muscles grew tense and excitement leapt to his eyes.

"I regret infinitely that I have been so awkward, mademoiselle—I should say, rather, Miss—I fear I have not understood the name"——

"Miss Dupont," said Hugh.

"Ah yes—Dupont. As I say, I regret infinitely"——

"Oh, it was nothing that is not easily repaired," she assured him graciously. "Here's Morgan now."

As she turned to give an order to the servant, Hugh interposed.

"If you'll excuse us, we men will go to my den while Morgan clears up here. It will take him some little time, and we have a matter of business to discuss and —Count Szemere is rather hurried. If there's time we'll have tea afterward, if you'll join us."

He hardly glanced at her as he spoke and was conscious that his manner was brusque, but his one thought was to get Szemere away from her. She had not recognized him, that was plain. But he had recognized her. The shock had missed her and fallen on him.

She looked at him, suprised. "Certainly, whenever you like," she stammered.

"I'll let you know by Morgan," he said over his shoulder as he crossed and threw open the study door. "This way, Count."

The Rumanian bowed deeply to Marie and passed out.

Amarinth stepped forward to follow. He looked at Marie, but she only inclined her head and did not meet his eyes.

"She's afraid to face me—she's afraid!" he told himself, and strode after the Count.

CHAPTER XVII.

"AN extraordinary story, Mr. Senior!" exclaimed Count Szemere, when Hugh had finished relating the history of Marie Dupont in much the same words as had conveyed it that morning to Amarinth. "Frankly, were it not for my confidence in you I should hardly credit it."

"Here are papers which will bear me out."

Szemere looked through the papers.

"Women are sometimes very clever!" he murmured.

"But what had she to gain by such a deception?"

The Rumanian glanced at Amarinth. "She is about to contract a very desirable marriage."

Hugh made a sound of impatience. "You think she could have counted on that from the start? Why, she was a child!"

"In years, yes, but hardly in experience."

"She was no more prepared than you were for the meeting here this afternoon, yet she didn't betray the slightest sign of recognition. That should convince you, I think," Hugh remarked.

"Pardon. I mean not to accuse you. But before we had left your office you had been for a quarter hour in another room. In that room there was perhaps a telephone—— Oh, I do not accuse! I say only that you had the opportunity, had you wished"——

"You're right, I could have warned her. But the fact is that when I brought you here I had the hope that if she had ever seen you before the sight of you might be shock enough to restore her memory. The doctors have said that a shock might do it. I said to myself that if she did not know you, either she was not Alix Floria or"——

"She is Alix Floria. Of that there is no doubt," Szemere cut in.

"An hour ago you said there was no doubt that Alix Floria was dead!"

"I had not then seen her alive!" the Count cried excitedly. "This Miss Dupont is Floria in face and figure. And was she not wearing the necklace? What proof could there be more? But tell me this, how could you think I would so affect her when the necklace had not done so?"

"She has never seen it."

"Ah! And why?"

"She never asked for it and I thought it had no value. For seven years it's been in that drawer there, sometimes locked up, sometimes not."

"My God!" The Count's horrified gaze rose from the drawer to Hugh's face. Suddenly he leaned forward. "Show it to her now," he said.

"No," said Hugh sharply. "I shall turn the jewels over to the owner as soon as they have been positively identified by the Rumanian Government. Owing to their great value I must insist on that. You gain your object, the recovery of the necklace. What more can you want?"

"The cross, Mr. Senior."

"I know nothing about that."

"She knows."

"She may have once—she doesn't now."

The sight of the necklace may recall it."

"I don't wish it recalled!"

Hugh spoke defiantly; he meant defiance.

"Let me explain," he said, as Szemere was about to protest. "This girl is my ward—I use the word in its truest sense. I am responsible for the condition in which you find her. She had her place in life and through me she lost it. I have given her another and I don't mean to let her lose it through you or anyone else."

"An operation would have had that result, and you have said you thought of that," the Count observed.

"I have not considered an operation since I have realized all it might entail, nor will I risk the enlightenment that the sight of the necklace might bring. I am responsible for her happiness and I shall guard it with all my power."

"I respect your motive and your sentiment, Mr. Senior," Szemere replied suavely. "Though I confess your attitude seems to me absurd. Am I permitted to indicate that you, of the three of us, are the only one who has nothing to lose and something to gain by keeping your ward in her present mental state? Mr. Amarinth, as her fiance, might be pardoned, I think, for wishing to have the mystery of her past made clear."

The Count paused long enough to give Guy a sympathetic glance, being sufficiently a diplomat to convert to his own uses the emotions of another.

"For myself," he went on, "the recovery of the necklace without the cross will not serve."

"I'm sorry, Count Szemere, but my mind is made up. She shall not be shown the necklace, nor shall she be questioned about it."

An ominous light appeared in the Rumanian's eyes.

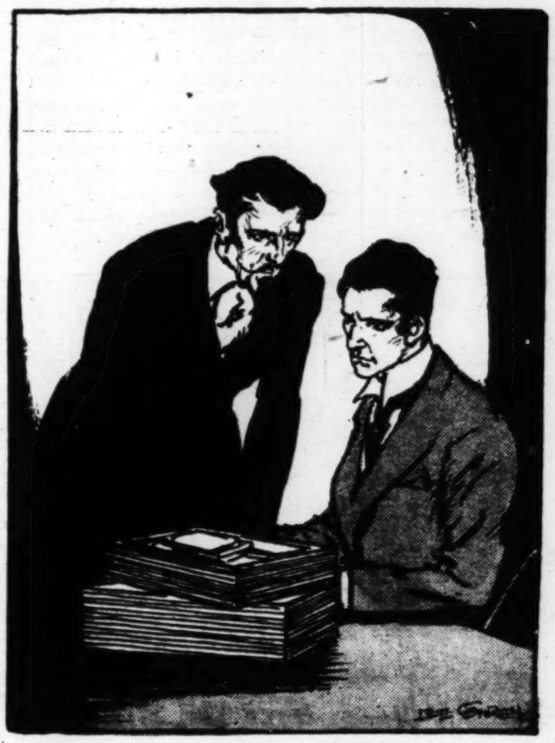
"I repeat that I respect your sentiment, my dear Mr. Senior, but I fear you do not comprehend fully this matter. When you met this lady she was wearing a necklace which did not belong to her and she was, it appears, running away with it. That act might be called by a name you would not wish to join to the name of a person you admire. The mantle she was wearing, you have told me, was of black with sable collar. Very well. In the dead hand of Prince Lascar there was found a piece of sable. Have you forgotten that?"

He stopped and let his eyes rest on Hugh's an instant.

"Maybe it was that the hand that took the cross from the necklace was also the hand that killed the Prince. Who knows? Who—but the lady?"

Hugh gave back the narrowed glance without flinching.

"You're wasting your time," he said curtly. "I know as well as you do that the last thing you want in this affair is publicity. You don't want it any more now than you wanted it when you so carefully excluded all mention of the Prince and his jewels from that murder trial."



"Here are the papers which will bear me out," said Hugh.

"You deceive yourself!" cried the Count, and for the first time his voice broke from his control. "Today the affair is quite other. Then we had first to conceal the death of the Prince. For that the search for the necklace was done in secret. Today we may seek openly. No man nor woman shall be spared but that the cross is found. I have spoken!"

"Threats won't help here, Count Szemere. This is New York, not Bucharest. The necklace will be returned to you when your Government has identified it. Beyond that I cannot help you. This is my final word."

Amarinth had also risen and now he took a step forward to a position beside Szemere and opposing Hugh.

"It's not my final word," he said sharply.

His companions turned and stared at him.

"I think Count Szemere has a right to know all she might be able to tell him," he said. "And I have a right to know!"

"What right?" demanded Hugh. "You've made your decision—that's been evident for some time. Would anything you learn now alter it? You have no intention of marrying Marie. I don't deny your right to withdraw. But you are pledged to secrecy. I have your word of honor—don't forget it."

"And I have yours! You told me that if I married Marie her story would become my property to use as I saw fit. Didn't you?"

"Yes." Into Hugh's gaze a faint surprise had come.

"Well—I married her last night."

There was a dead stillness.

"Amarinth—is that true?"

Guy took the marriage certificate from his pocket and without a word handed it to Hugh. The latter's hands shook as he opened it and read its contents. Then he handed it back.

"What are your orders?" he asked huskily.

"First, show her the necklace."

"Where?"

"If you will permit a suggestion, Mr. Amarinth," Szemere put in, "I think it would be well that she sees it here—quite unprepared—that is, if Mr. Senior does not object?"

"As Mr. Amarinth pleases."

"That's the best way, of course," said Guy.

Szemere continued eagerly. "With Mr. Senior's consent, the necklace can be brought here by the Rumanian Consul. All may quickly arrange itself by telephone."

The sending up of the necklace was soon arranged for; then the three men sat down to wait.

In about 20 minutes the Consul and his escort arrived and were shown into the library. A box containing the necklace was delivered and the bearers retired to wait in the drawing room.

When the three were again alone, Hugh looked at Amarinth. "What are your orders now?"

Szemere replied. "We must surprise her. Look! We shall place it so—just under the lamp." He opened the box and set it in the position indicated. On its background of velvet and with the strong light full upon it, it blazed. "Now I turn out the light—so. When she enters you will ask her to sit there—just by the lamp."

Hugh nodded.

"For me, I am placed here. Suddenly I advance and turn up the light—so!" Again the gems sprang to life. He looked for Guy's approval.

"That's all right," the latter responded.

Hugh had been standing watching with compressed lips, his face pale and drawn. Now, at Guy's words, he crossed to a bell and rang. Morgan appeared.

"Bring the tea, please, and—ask Miss Marie if she will join us."

"Yes, sir."

The butler departed and Szemere, who at the servant's arrival had changed his position so as to screen the jewels from view, now resumed the seat he had chosen for himself, and again lowered the lamp.

The butler returned with the tea tray and carried it to the table on which its predecessor had stood. Then he struck a match and lit the spirit lamp.

"Will I make the tea, sir?"

Hugh looked up with a slight start. "No, Miss Marie will do it."

"Miss Marie has gone out, sir."

"Gone out! Are you sure?"

"Yes, sir. I chanced to be in the hall when she went, sir."

"She left no message?"

"No, sir. Mrs. Thorley was asleep and the maids didn't know as how she was out. Will I make the tea, sir?"

"No; that's all."

"Yes, sir."

The instant the door closed on the man, Szemere rose excitedly.

"She has run away! She knew me and was afraid! She has seen her danger better than you, Mr. Senior. Ah, pardon! But I cannot longer pretend to believe your story of the lost memory. It is too bizarre, that! She is afraid and runs away, that simply. How else will you explain?"

"I can't explain," Hugh replied. "I can only assure you that I have acted in good faith with you both. I had no idea of this marriage. She told me nothing."

"I had forbidden her to tell you," Guy said.

"It is not to waste time here!" The Count was dragging on his overcoat. "The necklace must go back at once."

Hugh assented and with the box of jewels led the way to the drawing room, where the Rumanian Consul and his companion waited. Their cab stood at the curb and they presently departed in it with the necklace.

Szemere bowed formally. "I have warned you how far my Government will advance to recover the necklace and the cross. I now communicate with my chief at Washington for authority to proceed. If I have not satisfactory news from you in the meantime the affair will be placed in the hands of the police. My hotel is the Knickerbocker. Good afternoon."

"Good afternoon," Hugh answered.

Szemere strode to the door. Guy moved to follow, but a gesture from Hugh halted him.

"Have you no idea where she has gone?"

Guy shook his head sullenly.

"This marriage? When was it and where?"

"Last night. We left the ball, were married and went right back. It was my fault, I suppose; I persuaded her," he admitted grudgingly. "Afterward, she told me there was something she had kept from me

AT THE HOUSEBOAT ON THE STYX

Doings Reported by Wireless to JOHN KENDRICK BANGS—GLOOM, JEREMIAH AND OTHERS

IT wasn't the brightest day in the world, and in certain sections of the House Boat on the Styx there were not wanting signs of a settled gloom—most of it, however, quite characteristic of the Gloomsters.

O, gee!" cried Jeremiah, suddenly breaking forth from a deep and sullen silence. "What's the use of anything?"

And then, in a melancholy voice, he droned out the following lyric:

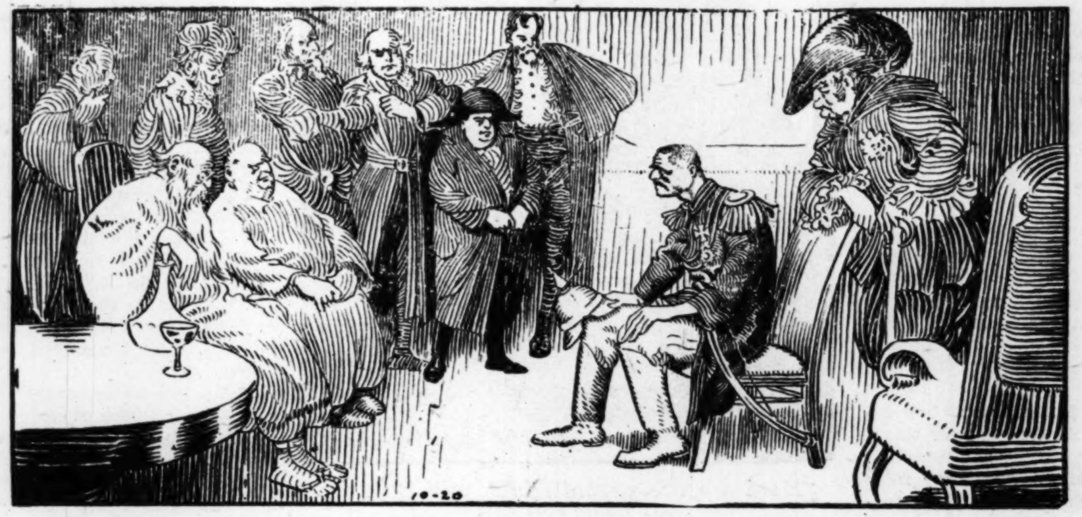
"I see no good in nothin', be the weather dark or fair.
The rain is always cold and wet, the sun's a bloomin' glare.
There ain't no virtue anywhere in animile or man,
And if I had my way I'd give the universe the can."

"Great Scott, Jerry!" laughed Marcus Aurelius. "What's got into you this morning? You talk like an incurable case of acute indigestion. Been eating too many cold lobsters, the kind that cheers but not assimilates?"

"O, well, what's the use of arguing with Jerry?" protested Epictetus. "He was born yelling; he lived lamenting, and I'll bet a hat to a German treaty that he died kicking. He's a dipsomaniac gloom."

"You bet I am, and I'm kicking yet," retorted Jeremiah, "and I don't mind saying for your benefit, Pickey, that if the world had heeded my warnings, and acted accordingly, instead of going off on a philosophic joy ride with you apostles of cheer, patting itself on the back like a glorified little Jack Horner every time it found a plum in the universal pie, it would have been a great sight better off today."

"I think it is possible to do both," said Benjamin. "Ride with the grave and laugh with the gay. Life is neither a giggle nor a doldrum, and personally I find a great deal of satisfaction in being able when occasion requires to weep with Jeremiah, to hope with Marcus Aurelius and to laugh with Omar Khayyam. When Jerry sings one of his little songs of gloom, and tells us that the sun's a bloomin' glare, I can agree with him that there are times when the sun is not wholly agreeable. If he observes that it is impolite enough to scatter freckles one the nose of a pretty girl, I should not be so foolish as to deny the fact, but, just the same, I know that good old Sol raises something else besides freckles—things like roses and wild flowers and grain and"——



A guest of Frederick the Great prior to his departure for the bottomless pit.

"And dandelions and mosquitoes and the temperature," interjected Jeremiah.

"I rather like dandelions," said Marcus Aurelius. "They have a wonderful color, and I am not sure but that if some smart Alexander of a florist in earlier days had corralled the supply and sold them at $8 a dozen for ladies to wear at the opera we should have regarded them less as weeds than as flowers of beauty."

"I always looked upon them as little excess rays of sunshine springing up out of the earth," said Omar Khayyam.

"Well, you wouldn't if you'd ever had the job of pulling 'em up out of a lawn," said Jeremiah. "I suppose you can see some good in mosquitoes."

"I most certainly can," grinned Omar. "Of course, I don't claim that as between a good dog and a mosquito I'd choose the mosquito for a pet, but, after all, they have one undeniable virtue."

"I never observed it," said Jeremiah.

"Well, they have, just the same," returned Omar. "No matter how persistently they present them, you don't have to pay their bills."

"I always felt that I owed my great strength to mosquitoes," put in Samson.

"I suppose you eat 'em and they filled you with buzz," said Jeremiah.

"No, it wasn't that," said Samson. "It was because they were so thick around where I lived in my childhood that slapping at 'em morning, noon and night kept my muscles in a constant state of exercise."

"The virtue of the mosquito as a promoter of calisthenics never occurred to me before," said Dr. Johnson.

"That's because your long suit was etymology, rather than entymology, Dock," said Samson. "But, take it from me, the mosquito is the A No. 1 original promoter of that boon to health known as exercising in bed. I had 40 solid minutes of it every morning before I got up, in the old days at Danville."

"Same way with flies," said Ptolemy. "The necessity of swatting 'em from rosy morn to dewey eve was what made me a power all along the Nile. It kept me wide awake and ceaselessly active, and I'm told that the thing that caused Pharaoh's daughter to locate Moses in the bullrushes was the swarm of gnats that hovered over his hiding place."

"That's the whole point," said Solomon. "Evil things are to be frowned on as a matter of course, but we must never blind ourselves to the good that frequently comes out of them. It is my judgment that we need men like Jeremiah to ferret out things to lament over, and men like Marcus Aurelius and Epictetus as well to point out the value that evils almost invariably reveal."

"Seems to me, Solly," said Jeremiah, "that I have heard the phrase, 'Vanity, vanity, all is vanity,' attributed to you. I don't know whether you ever really said it or not, but they had a way in ancient times of saddling all the wise saws on you, just as in modern times every good joke that is sprung anywhere is ultimately attributed to Joe Cannon or Champ Clark."

"I said it, all right," said Solomon, "and taken out of what I might call the atmospheric context, I admit that it sounds rather exclusively pessimistic, but when the circumstances under which men say things are taken into account the real significance of a saying may appear to have a totally different complexion. Take that American railroad president, for example, who is said to have said 'The public be damned.' He didn't mean that he wanted perdition to catch the public. He knew perfectly well that if perdition ever caught the public, he wouldn't have any more consumers of his product, and that without a public to travel on his railroads he couldn't declare any more dividends. The thing he condemned was the overworking of the word public by agitators anxious to bolster up their sanities and insanities with references to the peepul. So with me. When, in the depths of a momentary agony of spirit, I howled out, 'Vanity, vanity, all is vanity,' I didn't mean that the sun, moon and stars were vain things. I didn't mean to imply that California asparagus, chile concarne and honey dew melons were vanities. I merely spoke feelingly out of the sorrows of my soul in a moment of exceptional stress."

"Which was what?" demanded Jeremiah.

Solomon flushed a deep red.

"Well," he said, after a moment's hesitation, "I don't particularly care to make my domestic trials a matter of club gossip, but since you ask the question I will say that that remark was made one first morning of July, when I received a dressmaker's bill for summer frocks made for my 3099 wives, and their—er—1496 unmarried contemporaries on my matrimonial waiting list."

"Titus Andronicus!" ejaculated Job. "And they called me patient on the score of a few carbuncles!"

"It was some bill," sighed Solomon, still apparently rueful at the thought of it. "Figure it out for yourselves. Fourteen bits of falal apiece for each one of 4595 ladies at $250 each—bonnets not included—comes to $16,082,500—and every bit of it frippery! I had to negotiate a loan with the Queen of Sheba to pay it."

"I am glad to hear it," said Jeremiah. "It is good to hear that a chap with your confirmed matrimonial habits gets stung once in a while. But I'd like to know what good you found in that bill."

"A very great good," said Solomon. "It brought me face to face with the necessity of Hooverizing on matrimony. I started a series of Hymenless Mondays, and cut down my domestic entourage to the tune of 52 wives in one year."

"I suppose if you'd lived in Noah's time you'd have given three cheers for the flood," said Jeremiah, sarcastically.

"Possibly," said Solomon. "That flood had its good points, and it wouldn't hurt the world much nowadays to have another, if we could only precede it with a selective draft designating who should be in the swim, and who shouldn't. The world is all right, but it wouldn't be a bad idea if it were to have its face washed now and then, because in spots it has become pretty dirty.

"Hear, hear!" cried Von Bissing, just over the Styx from Germany, enjoying the privileges of the house boat for a week as the guest of Frederick the Great, prior to his departure for the Bottomless Pit.

"You've hit it, Von Bissing," said Solomon, frigidly. "When you said, 'Here, here,' it shows you know just where those dirty spots are, and believe me, sir, if that flood ever does come, I'll stake my reputation on it that when it calls at the office your name will be one of the first to be paged."

There was a prolonged silence as the murderer of the Belgians slunk away, a silence that was ultimately broken by Jeremiah.

"You laugh-and-be-gay boys are mighty good special pleaders," he said. "You have rehabilitated the mosquito. You have turned polygamy into a moral force. You have made the dandelion a rival to the rose, and you have presented the gnat as a factor of great importance in an epochal event—but the greatest of evils of all time is on at this very moment—the war—and if any one of you will tell me what virtue there is in that, I promise not only not to lament over anything for a year, but to grin like a Cheshire cat every time I think of it for the next six months as well."

"Done!" cried Napoleon "It has brought out the honor of Great Britain!"

"It has proven the nobility of Belgium!" said Wellington

"It has established the chivalry of France!" chimed in Washington.

"And it has revealed the soul of America!" said Lafayette.

Whereupon Jeremiah rose up like a true gentleman and doffed his hat.

"You win, boys," he said. "I take it all back, but I shan't grin like a Cheshire cat for six months, as I promised. I'll laugh with joy and hope for the balance of the eternal years."

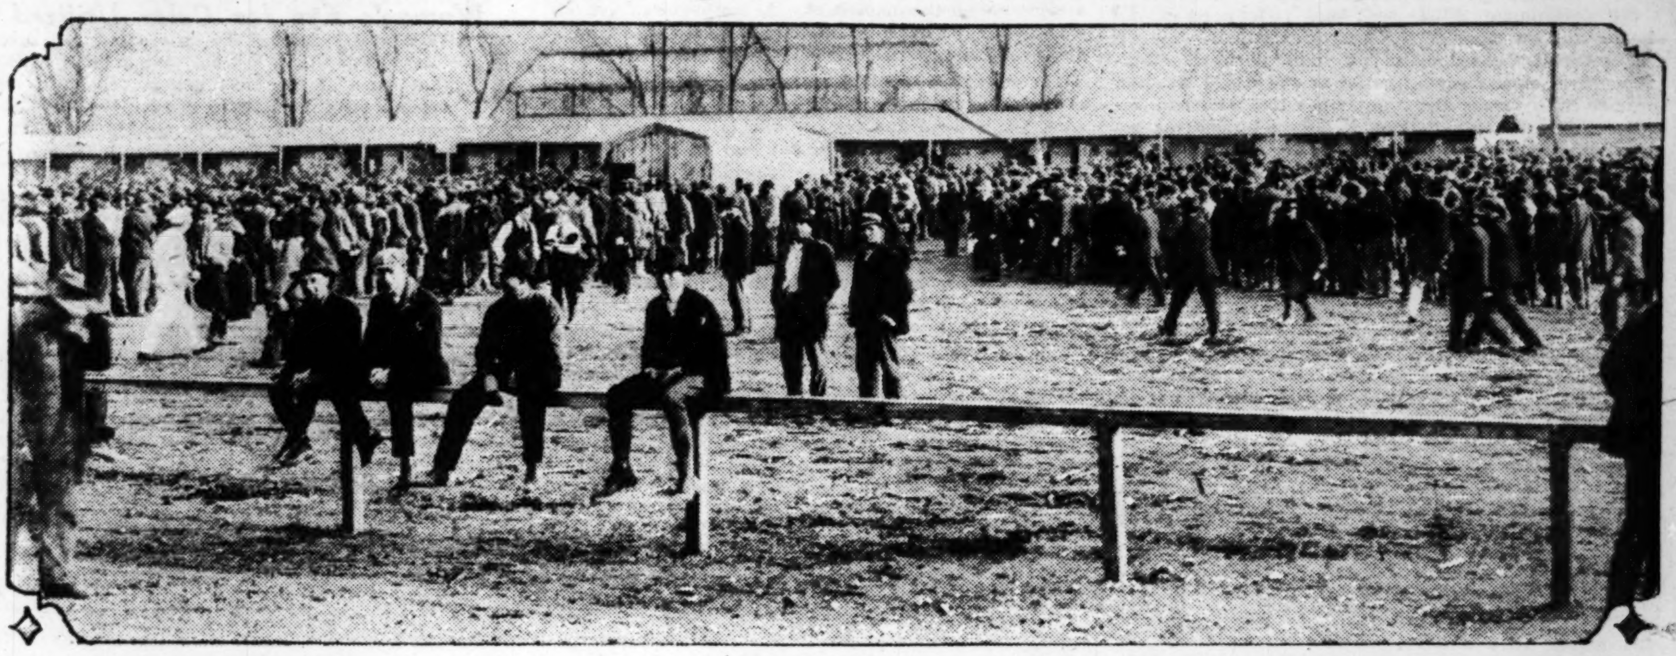
And the old man, resuming his chair, began to warble a little improvised lyric:

"Life's a giggle! Life's a joy!
Maybe sometimes things annoy,
But the chap that's sure to win
'Mid the battle and the din,
Is the cuss
Who in a muss
Lets the bloomin' sunshine in!"

America — First in Farm Tractors

THAT no country in the world today compares with the United States in the use of power on the farm, and that in particular we lead the world in tractors, is the assertion of W. A. Stone, writing in The Tractor and Gas Engine Review (Madison, Wis., October). The tractors on our farms, he says, will replace 1,500,000 horses and mules and 250,000 men, gone "over there." Twenty years ago, an emergency like the present would have spelled failure for the United States, he asserts. It is the tractor that is not only pulling us through, but pushing us up to a strategic position among nations. Thirty-five thousand strong and working in many cases 24 hours a day, they prepare our supply of staple food crops and later cultivate and harvest them. The man who farmed 100 acres a few years ago now has a tractor and does his 500.

Picturesque Life in One War Boom Town Which Isn't Going to Vanish With Peace



How the 20,000 employes line up for their money on pay day.

"Tri-Cities" of Alabama reaping benefit of Government's construction of nitrate plants at Muscle Shoals—Merchants near bankruptcy year ago now prosper with 20,000 highly paid workmen to sell to—Rent for year pays cost of house's construction—"Runners" from construction camps instead of from hotels, meet new arivals -:- -:- -:- -:-

A YEAR ago the towns of Tuscumbia, Sheffield and Florence, Ala., in the hills flanking the Tennessee River, were struggling for a mere existence. Their merchants were staggering along, "some of us," as one said, "with our feet in the bankruptcy court." The population of the three towns was about 15,000. Today they are built up till each overlaps the others, their population is near the 50,000 total, merchants are turning stocks twice and three times a quarter, banks are bulging with deposits and real estate is bringing an unheard-of price.

Who was the Alladin whose lamp-rubbing unearthed such magic?

Why, Uncle Sam himself. Right next door to these three cities, at Muscle Shoals, he began erecting a $60,000,000 industry, two hydro-electric plants to manufacture nitrates from the air. Primarily, this product was to be made into explosives to help beat Germany to her knees.

But the cessation of war is not going to mean that this huge plant is wasted. On the contrary, it means that peace time promises it a larger development than before, for nitrates form a major element in the most widely used fertilizers of agriculture.

Extracting nitrates from the air, an unlimited, close-at-hand source for this vitalizing agent, is a costly undertaking. It requires enormous power, power that is not only plentiful, but cheaply produced, and the only source meeting these requirements is water-power. The Government found it at Muscle Shoals, between Sheffield and Florence, and the trail to the new Eldorado was struck.

Since the day ground for the two nitrate plants was broken, up to the present time, labor has flocked to Northern Alabama from all points of the compass. Wages against which private enterprise can not hope to compete is drawing skilled and unskilled workers of every description in a never-ending stream. Every train adds its quota to the congestion and more can be used.

Plant No. 1 is between Sheffield and Florence. Plant No. 2 is between Sheffield and Tuscumbia. Both jobs will be completed shortly, and with them will be built two dams across the river that will develop more horsepower than Niagara Falls.

A large percentage of the Government's 20,000 workers on the two jobs are housed and fed on the Government's reservation at the shoals. The unskilled workmen are quartered in bunkhouses, 200 to each house. They are fed in huge dining halls having seating capacity of several hundred, at 25 cents a meal—a meal that cannot be duplicated in town at 75 cents. The Government not only gives them their lodging free, but provides them with free medical attention, furnishes them amusements and does all in its power to make their life on the reservation so pleasant and remunerative they will not become dissatisfied.

"Stay on the job," read signs conspicuously displayed all over the grounds. And most of them stay. They are making more money than they ever made before, and the "Tri-Cities" are reaping the benefit.

When it first became known that the Government considered establishing nitrate plants at Muscle Shoals capitalists got in on the ground floor by taking lease options on business property in the Tri-Cities. When the "returns" began to come in, it was seen that the lease speculators had boosted rents from 100 to 300 per cent. The increase was met without a murmur. Now store space is at a premium. There is none to be had. Being short of material, new buildings cannot be erected. There is no labor; it is all at the plants.

Naturally, there was but one outcome to such a condition. If one could not rent one had to buy, and buy many did, at prices which would have been prohibitive under ordinary circumstances.

Not so very long ago a business man in Florence took a chance on a piece of property removed from the business district, but on the principal street, occupied by a negro clothes-pressing establishment. The building was a mere shack. The business man acquired title to it for $1100. He sold that piece of property a few days ago for $11,000 cash.

Real estate is moving fast. Subdivision sales are held almost daily, and close-in lots, on unimproved streets, waterless, sewerless, lightless, bearing nothing but weeds, are bringing $100 a front foot or better.

A siding and canvas dwelling erected by the government for employes.

The same conditions obtain with rents. Ordinary frame dwellings in the more select sections are leased at $60 to $100 a month, according to size and conveniences.

A paperhanger completing a job on a little six-room house outside of Florence, that had cost the owner only $600 to built (it was without modern conveniences and virtually thrown together) sought to rent the place.

"What'll you offer me a month for it?" asked the owner.

"I'll give you $40," said the applicant. The owner laughed.

"Nothing doing. I've already been offered $50."

The stock and fixtures of a poolroom-cigar store at Florence, valued at $3000, were snapped up at $12,000, within a few hours after they were offered for sale.

The holder of a five-year lease on another storeroom, that a year ago rented for $80 a month and that had been boosted to $160, refused $600 for the lease a month after he had signed it.

Being "full up," there is no occasion for the hotels maintaining "barkers" at the depot. Instead of this type of hustler, newcomers are greeted with the lusty cry of labor agents competing for nitrate plant "prospects."

"Westinghouse baggage over here!"

"This way for J. G. White!"

And in unison:

"Free taxi to the plant!" and the grabbing begins.

The "free taxi" is a springless, three-ton truck, and the trip three miles over the roughest road in Dixie.

Although the three towns are connected with a street car line that is afflicted with constant breakdown because of an overloaded plant, there is no electric transportation between town and Plant No. 2. What a find for the jitney! Accordingly, jitney lines sprang up over night. The fare to and from town to the plant is 50 cents, and the road is black with "flivvers."

One of the taxi drivers is an instructor in chemistry in an Alabama high school. He drove to Sheffield from his home, a distance of 40 miles, intending to take employment in the chemical research laboratory at Plant No. 2. The position was not ready for him.

"I had lots of time and nothing to do," he explained, "so I put my car to use. I guess I'll stay a while. In 10 days I have cleared, over all my expenses, including oil, gas, repairs, lodging and meals, $125."

There are many doing even better than that. Though money is on the rampage in the "Tri-Cities," the workers do not necessarily spend all they make. Payday at the plants is a busy day, and the demand at the postoffice for money orders is tremendous. Money order lines form early and stay late, and the same may be said of the lineups before receiving tellers in a half-dozen banks.

At present the hardest problem facing civil authorities of the three towns is the housing situation. The demand far exceeds the supply and the situation has become so serious, not only in the "Tri-Cities" themselves, but at the plant reservations, that the Government has stepped in. Contracts have been let for the erection of 50 frame dwellings in Sheffield, 50 in her husband was in the army, and that she wanted to arrange for getting her allotment of his pay and her wife's allowance from the Government. The place she really sought was the Red Cross.

All government, it has been said, is founded on the home, and so most of the questions which came up for settlement were based on some domestic situation. The most frequent caller at the board was the woman who would airily announce that she had decided that "that Bill Spivins ain't been supporting his poor wife and family the way he ought to, so I just thought I might as well come down and have him put in the army." If she really had evidence that a registrant was evading the provisions of the dependency clause, it was noted, and investigation made, but when, as was often the case, the informant was moved by personal feelings, she rarely came back again.

There is a record of a man, living in the northwestern part of the city, about whom 37 letters were written, complaining that he was a slacker. A thorough investigation disclosed that the man's dependency claim was absolutely perfect—he was simply not on good terms with some of his neighbors, and they tried that way of "getting even."

Relationships were queerly twisted up in some letters. "Just a line to let you know I am a widow and four children," wrote a mother. "Previous to his departure we were married to a Justice of the Peace," another woman advised the board. A third explained: "I have a 4-months-old baby and he is my only support." "Both sides of our parents are old and poor," a correspondent complained. A mother was gravely worried. "You have changed my little girl into a boy," she protested; "will it make any difference?"

The draft law made it possible for the great hand of the Government to reach anywhere, pick up a man, turn him around and inspect him critically, and then set him down in France, or put him back from where he was taken. When it is considered that the St. Louis District Board passed on the cases of 27,653 men, it would be strange, indeed, if some man were not placed in the army when he deserved exemption, and if another were not allowed to stay at home when he should have been in camp. But it is easy to criticise, and hard to improve, in such cases.

The business was in the most delicate of materials—human rights and feelings—while at the same time it had to be transacted under the most urgent need for speed that ever confronted man.

The tide of men and women, white and black, flowed ceaselessly through the board office for many months, each unit with his or her own list of peculiar problems, and each met with sympathy, understanding and a tireless disposition to see that all received justice. And thus did the clerks and stenographers at table and typewriter fight beside the boys with bayonet and gun to win the battle for human rights.

Woman's Eye for Color Utilized

EVERYBODY knows that a woman can match colors better than a man. When it is realized that some of the most delicate chemical tests depend on this ability, it may be understood why women are making good in certain branches of the chemical industries. Says a writer in The American Exporter (New York, October):

"The entrance of chemically trained men into the army munition plants and dye industries of the United States has created a labor shortage in the laboratories of the commercial chemist. To meet this contingency, women are being impressed into service as laboratory assistants. The type of work for which the women are fitted appears to be routine determinations such as silicon, evolution sulphur and color carbon. At one leading plant all tests are run in duplicate until sufficient confidence can be placed in the ability of the women to do accurate work. By observing the results of numerous duplicate determinations which have been extended over a period of several months it appears that the new coworkers are extremely accurate in the use of the analytical balance.

It took all her word gymnastics to put things straight, for the matter was as twisted and tied up and wrapped around itself as a cable caught in a flywheel. "Mysterious George" was really Harry Lansing. He'd been living in Los Angeles with his wife and their 2-year-old boy and everything was peaceable, until one of those family misunderstandings put the whole works on the blink. The family on both sides joined in, and I reckon those otherwise respectable people had tramped around and yelled and cut capers worse than Arizona Indians at a snake dance. George, or Harry, had stood this civil war in a thimble as long as he could, and then made over his property to his wife and pulled out for parts unknown. That brought all parties to their wits again, and his sister, Mary, started out to find him. She got wind that he was somewhere around Midway, and had herself transferred from her school in Los Angeles to Oil Strata, hoping that in the natural course of events she'd happen to run on to him. If George hadn't agreed to go back, after all this, I reckon Van and I'd have finished up with him where the mob left off.

You might have thought that now Mary would be willing to grant Van most anything he wanted; but that wasn't her build. He'd started something big and he'd got to put it through before there was any sentimental talk; and that he had met some obstacles he hadn't counted on only made all the more reason for playing the camel and humping himself.

The hoodoo jinx that was on Van's trail must have heard the way Mary said that, for from that minute he had his tail between his legs and ki-yi-ing off toward Death Valley, where I reckon he died of disappointment. The very next day old man Jordan came through with his contract, and the other standpatters followed like sheep through a gate. It seems they'd been stalled off by something Henry C.'s man had spread around, to the effect that Van was a sort of vanishing-pea artist in his line, and had best not be trusted. It was the kind of lie you couldn't disprove, not if your record was as clean as the peak of Mount Shasta.

A couple of days later Van opened up an office in Oil Strata, and his company swung into stride. You know what the Petroleum Producers' Association is now, but I'll bet you've never heard one little particular of its early history. That was the visit of Henry C. to his son's office. It was the Saturday after business opened up, and Miss Lansing and I were helping out with some rush work—at least she was helping and I was sitting around visiting. We all looked up when the Bakersfield train drew in at the station, and who should get off but Van's old man. He was big enough to be dangerous, and came down the street like a war cloud on legs, with a trouble maker swinging at the end of each arm. Mary sensed a collision and, grabbing the two of us, she shoved us into the back room.

"Let me talk to him," she warns us through the crack of the door, "until he loses that frown."

But Henry C.'s frown was the kind that don't come off with soap and water. He opened the outside door as if he thought somebody would be holding it against him, and stamped in like the original bull that made history in the crockery store. Mary came forward to meet him from behind the desk, as pretty and polite as a butterfly trying to stop a landslide.

"Is there anything I can do for you, sir?" she asks.

"Who's the head of this fly-by-night concern?" he roars.

"I am in charge for the present," she answers.

"Well, it's the man I want to see!" he shouts. "Isn't there a man in the place?"

Van wasn't built to look at exciting doings through a crack in a door, and he got tired of having Mary bellowed at. Shoving open the door, he stepped up to his dad.

"Yes, father," he says, "there is a man here!"

Well, it took a lot of fast talk after that to make Henry C. acquainted with his son—his new son, that is, not the one that had gone broke in the commission business. But when he'd got the facts all straight and had sized Van up, full length, quarter view, profile and front face, he was so pleased he could hardly talk. The old boy was the gamest sport that ever stood treat when the drinks were on him.

"Van Tyle," he says, "I'm proud of you. Couldn't have organized the thing better myself. Hereafter we'll work this business together. I guess I can arrange it so that the Gusher Oil Co. will absorb this little affair of yours on pretty good terms"——

"Excuse me, father," Van interrupts, "but if there's to be any absorbing, the Petroleum Producers is going to be the snake and not the toad."

And after Van had showed his books and his list of subscriptions and the valuable properties he had signed up the old man came around to his way of thinking.

"I'll sign one of your contracts at once," he says. He turned to where Mary had been standing, quiet, behind the desk, all through the mixup. "If this young person will hand me one"——

"Oh, father," says Van, "let me introduce you to this young person. You should know her, because"—he stops and looks at Mary a minute, and then takes his nerve in his hand and jumps—"because Miss Lansing has promised to be my wife."

"Huh!" says I, so surprised I speak out where I had no call to butt in at all. "What's this? When did it happen?"

Mary raised her eyes to Van's face, and they were just blazing with pride and joy.

"It happened," she says, "as soon as I knew the go-devil had found the nitroglycerine."

Cured His RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me. Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 176E Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.—ADV

New Hair Growth After BALDNESS

HAIR GROWN ON MR. BRITTAIN'S BALD HEAD BY INDIANS' MYSTERIOUS HAIR GROWER

My head at the top and back was absolutely bald. The scalp was shiny. An expert said that as he thought the hair roots were extinct, and there was no hope of my ever having a new hair growth.

Yet now, at an age over 66, I have a luxuriant growth of soft, strong, lustrous hair! No trace of baldness. The pictures shown here are from my photographs.

Indians' Secret of Hair Growth Free

At a time when I had become discouraged at trying various hair lotions, tonics, specialists' treatments, etc., I came across, in my travels, a Cherokee Indian "medicine man" who had an elixir that he asseverated would grow my hair. Although I had but little faith, I gave it a trial. To my amazement a light fuzz soon appeared. It developed, day by day, into a healthy growth, and ere long my hair was as prolific as in my youthful days.

That I was astonished and happy is expressing my state of mind mildly.

Obviously, the hair roots had not been dead, but were dormant in the scalp, awaiting the fertilizing potency of the mysterious pomade.

I negotiated for and came into possession of the principle for preparing this mysterious elixir, now called Kotalko, and later had the recipe put into practical form by a chemist.

That my own hair growth was permanent has been amply proved. Many men and women, also children, have reported satisfactory results from Kotalko.

How YOU May Grow YOUR Hair

For women's hair.

RECIPE FREE

My honest belief is that hair roots rarely die even when the hair falls out through dandruff, fever, excessive dryness or other disorders. I have been told by experts that often when hair falls out the roots become imbedded within the scalp, covered by hard skin, so that they remain for a time like bulbs or seeds in a bottle which will grow when fertilized. Shampoos (which contain alkalis) and hair lotions which contain alcohol are enemies to the hair, as they dry it, making it brittle. Kotalko contains those elements of nature which give new vitality to the scalp and hair. To prove the GENUINENESS of Kotalko, I will send the recipe FREE on request. Or I will mail a testing box of Kotalko with the recipe for 10 cents, silver or stamps. Satisfy yourself. You want to stop falling hair, eliminate dandruff or cover that bald spot with healthy hair. Get the testing box, apply once or twice daily—watch in your mirror! Address:

The Curious Case of Marie Dupont - -

—something you would tell me. Well, I thought if you knew we were already married you might keep something back; and I wanted the truth." He laughed harshly. "I'm getting it, I guess."

"Then you believe all this?"

"My God, I don't know what to believe!" Guy answered with a jerk at the door.

"Perhaps, like Szemere, you think I warned her of his coming?"

"No, I think you've been square with me. I realize that you need not have told me anything about her. But there's one thing I know—she had seen that man before she met him in the library."

"Seen him? Where?"

"She was standing at an upstairs window when we got out of the cab. I happened to look up and when she saw me looking she jerked her head away."

He flung the words at Hugh, then waited.

"If she were afraid of meeting him, why did she come down? She could easily have made an excuse."

"I don't know—I don't know! That's what's driving me mad—I don't know anything!"

The sound of the outer door closing came to Hugh's ear, then Amarinth's quick tread on the sidewalk.

So, she had seen Szemere arrive, had known when she came into the library that he was there! Hugh recalled how he had stepped between them to shield her from the Count's sight, and with the memory came the vision of her face at that moment. Instantly all doubt of her vanished. Suspicion could not exist in his mind, side by side with her image. She had gone away, where or why he did not know, but he knew she would come back.

He hurried to his study and, unlocking the drawer from which the night before he had taken the necklace, he took out the box in which lay the dirk with the carved bone handle.

He glanced about the room, seeking a hiding place, then passed into the library. There, he finally decided on a window box from which a thick growth of ivy climbed a low trellis. The blade pierced its way through the soil to the bottom of the box and he buried the handle well under the surface. Then he smoothed the broken earth above it and carefully readjusted the displaced creepers.

CHAPTER XVIII.

GAVOCK looked at his watch and returned it to his pocket with a puzzled lift of the brows. Half-past 5 and Miss Lowther had not returned. He had replaced in the envelope awaiting her the bills he had taken out for Andrus and he was now anxious to turn the money over to her and to give her back her jeweled cross.

The telephone bell rang, but to his disappointment it announced not Miss Lowther, but Amarinth.

Gavock put the cross away again in his pocket, and after a brief deliberation carried the portrait of Alix Floria into his bedroom. He had no doubt as to the purpose of Guy's visit.

The young man wasted little time on greetings. "I've come to ask you some questions, Mr. Gavock," he blurted out. "You mistook Miss Dupont for someone yesterday and last night you said it was for someone who is dead. Is that true? Is she dead?"

"My dear boy!"

"You can't blame me for doubting you, can you?" Guy protested. "After what you said last night about lying to shield a woman you could hardly expect me not to!"

"You're right," Gavock admitted. "But it happens that Miss Dupont does not require shielding, so I am free to indulge in the luxury of telling the truth. I mistook her for a girl named Alix Floria, who was murdered in Paris seven years ago."

"Oh, so there's no doubt about her being dead?"

"Of course not."

"Who was she, anyway?" Guy asked, feigning casual curiosity.

This curiosity struck Gavock as natural and he saw no reason for not satisfying it.

So he told the story of Alix Floria, being careful, however, to let fall no hint of the doubt of the body's identity. And as he talked he did not dream that his narrative struck familiarly on his listener's ears.

"Mr. Gavock, do you remember what you said to me last night—about coming to you if I ever wanted help? You knew then, didn't you?"

"Knew? Knew what?"

"That Miss Dupont is Alix Floria."

"My dear Guy!"

"You recognized her in the photograph"——

"But I was mistaken"——

"No, you were right. She is Alix Floria. Listen." Quickly Amarinth told the story of the girl as he had heard it from Hugh Senior and Count Szemere, omitting only the fact of her strange disappearance.

"I've asked her to marry me," he said at last, "and this is what I have to face. If this Rumanian goes to the police the affair will be in all the papers tomorrow morning."

"I fancy that threat was mere bluff," Gavock said.

"But he threatens to go to the police, to accuse Miss Dupont not only of stealing the necklace, but of killing the Prince," Guy urged excitedly.

Gavock laughed. "Never! He will never be permitted to drag the indiscretions of any Prince, dead or alive, into the public press. And for yourself, you have only to withdraw your offer of marriage"——

"I may as well tell you the truth—we're already married!" And Guy poured out the story of the hurried wedding.

"Of course, I can get an annulment," Guy muttered, "but it's a nasty mess for a man to be in."

Gavock studied the frowning face before him. "You love her, of course?" he asked.

"I did!"

"Did! When? Yesterday? Then you do today and will tomorrow and many days after. Love isn't killed in an hour, don't think it!" A wave of feeling crossed his face and he laid his hand on the young man's arm. "Don't be in a hurry. Nothing has been proved. I cannot believe that Miss Dupont is that dancer. Alix Floria was killed. I have the word of a man who knew her well, a man who saw her body. Don't act in haste. Wait. I am sure Szemere will not dare to move openly"——

"He's hot after that cross—he'll go any lengths to find it."

"What cross?"

"The missing pendant. Didn't I tell you about it? It's a Greek cross that the Patriarch of Constantinople gave to Prince Xico, who was an archbishop, at least, so Szemere says. It's as valuable as the rest of the necklace, and the stones in that are so big it's hard to believe they can be real."

"Did he describe it?"

"I don't remember, but it's probably like the necklace, barbaric looking, set with emeralds, rubies and diamonds, enameled on the other side. But I must go. I must find out what Mr. Senior has done."

"And you'll let me know if I can do anything? I'm sure, however, that you need not worry about Szemere. And don't make a mistake about the other. Wait until you're sure. Don't throw away a gift of the gods, dear boy. That's what I did, Guy, 20 years ago, and I've paid for it with 20 years of loneliness. Wait, dear boy, wait!"

"You're very kind," said Guy, flushing uncomfortably. "Good-night."

Florence and 25 in Tuscumbia. Others will be authorized as they are required.

It is not the residents so much as the transients who are inconvenienced by the lack of adequate lodging facilities. Almost any night belated arrivals, unacquainted with conditions, storm the hotels and lodging houses, only to be turned away at every hand with: "Sorry. Full up."

"Fix me up a pallet on the floor, won't you? Anything will do for the night. Perhaps by tomorrow"——

But the clerk has heard that same plea so many, many times it has become boresome, and he wearifully dismisses the applicant with: "Can't. All the bedding's in use."

There is only one thing left for the belated transient to do. He does it—walks the street or curls up under a tree for the remainder of the night.

No one is much concerned with him. Tomorrow he will be one of the multitude with as little interest in the next one. He will have been absorbed completely in the milling, mulling mass, tapping the pot of gold at the end of the Government't rainbow.

Reclaiming Disabled Soldiers for Industry

information before the disabled soldier of what he is entitled to, notices are being posted at the cantonments telling men where they can go when discharged, field workers actually are visiting the hospitals, so that no soldier will be overlooked; the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A. and kindred bodies and the newspapers are helping to get this information disseminated.

In this way these men are reached at the moment when they are apt to become most disheartened. They learn that in England there is a one-armed telephone engineer who was a butcher before the war, a hand bootmaker who used to be a laborer, a blind waiter who became a masseur, an armless carpenter who now is a building inspector, an armles bricklayer who now is building airplanes, a clerk who lost his left arm and his right hand who now is a draftsman, an office boy with his toes gone who has become a chauffeur, a laborer with both legs paralyzed who has learned to run 20 looms in a cotton mill, unaided. If they can do this in England, the soldier decides, they can do it in America! At the moment the cloud is the darkest the sun breaks through.

When the training has been completed the soldier will be given a tryout in regular work, to learn if he has grasped the lessons taught, to tell if he is physically strong enough to do the work and to disclose if he has a facility for that kind of employment. Any wages he may receive during this period for his work will be over and above the compensation allowed by the Government to a student. No deduction will be made from his allotment.

Permanent employment will begin at the point where, in the opinion of the board, the probationer has adjust himself to the requirements of the occupation or pursuit as a workman. The shifting from probationary to permanent employment may be made either in the same or another establishment, and the disabled man will have the same freedom of choice and action as any other workman on his own resources. Government support will cease when the probationary period has been passed.

The aim of the board always will be to direct disabled man upward and to provide him with training for an occupation in which he can become as proficient as a normal man, yet it must not be overlooked that some of the disabled men will not become fully competent to earn the prevailing wage. Therefore, where a disabled man is unable, because of his handicap, to earn the full prevailing wage for his occupation, an adjustment, in accordance with the rules and regulations of the shop is to be made. Where working agreements are in effect between employers and employes, the regulations thereof will govern the procedure in making such adjustments of partial wages. If there are no such rules an adjustment is to be made by the employer, the employee and a representative of the Federal board. Whatever the arrangement, the employes' right to accept or reject it is not impaired and he is not to be prejudiced in seeking other employment.

As the official friend and adviser of the disabled men, the board will keep in touch with him for such period after he enters employment as may be necessary to complete in each individual case his establishment as a civilian worker. He will be protected against injustice or exploitation by the adjustment of difficulties, if need be, to the extent that he be further trained even and placed in another or more desirable employment

La-may Face Powder Stays On Better Than Any Other

Now you can use a pure face powder that beautifies your complexion wonderfully and is guaranteed not to injure the most delicate baby skin. And it really stays on better than any other face powder. It does not contain white lead or starchy rice powder (Poudre de Riz) to make it stick. The specialist who makes this improved powder uses a medicinal ingredient that doctors use to heal the skin. In fact, this new powder helps to prevent and reduce enlarged pores and pimples. It is also astringent, discouraging flabbiness, crows' feet and wrinkles. Because it is pure and because it stays on so well this La-may powder (French, Poudre L'Ame) is now used by over a million American women. The large size is only fifty cents and the trial size is twenty-five cents. Remember, La-may is guaranteed absolutely pure. Five thousand dollars reward is offered any chemist who finds it contains any white lead or rice powder. Refuse substitutes. Your common sense will tell you that when you are offered a substitute it is sure to be a demonstrator trying to sell an inferior powder that pays a big commission. When you use this absolutely pure La-may and see how splendidly it beautifies your complexion, you will understand why it so quickly became the most popular beauty powder sold in New York. How to Make Your Salary Worth 10% to 30% More

A Simple Device That Anyone Can Apply With Quick Results

By Peter Rhodes

Mr. FERRIN

HOW much are you earning—twenty, twenty-five, fifty, one hundred dollars a week, or more? It doesn't matter. Whatever your income you can increase its buying power 10% to 30% and you don't have to change your job. You don't even have to speak to the boss.

I don't deny that it is unusual to make such a sweeping statement. But let me tell you my story. Then decide for yourself.

Two years ago I made $2000 a year, and I was always in debt. Try as I could I was unable to get ahead. Nor could I figure out from week to week where my money went. Neither my wife nor I were spendthrifts. Our tastes were simple. We had two little children whom we dressed well but not extravagantly. Yet our income was absolutely inadequate.

Finally things came to such a state that I decided something had to be done. I already had a pile of unpaid bills amounting to about $300, and things were going from bad to worse. I simply had to have more money—not only was I failing to save anything for a rainy day but I couldn't make both ends meet.

In a quandary I consulted a friend of mine, a Mr. Underwood, whom I admired very much because I knew him to be quite successful—at least with the same size family as mine he lived better than we did and I had heard him talk about investments he had made, so I knew he was getting along much better than I.

Imagine my amazement when this friend confided in me that instead of an income two or three times as much as mine he was earning exactly the same amount that I was —$2000 a year—and that he was able to save $600 a year —in other words, he was really earning about 30% more than I was on the very same salary!

I couldn't understand how he did it. The Underwoods seemed to have so much more than we did. Of course, there wasn't any grand opera in their program, but they did go to the theater regularly; enjoyed most of the pleasures of life; they wore good clothes; entertained their friends on Sunday evenings; had two well-dressed children and were about the happiest and most contented couple of all our married acquaintances.

My friend, Mr. Underwood, saw my amazement and told me the secret. It seems that a few years ago he had gone through the same experience that I was going through.

They had no plan; they were living in a happy-go-lucky fashion, without any system—in fact, the very same way we were now living.

Finally, he came to the realization that what was keeping them poor was the money that they frittered away. He realized that the little leaks in personal and household expenses were preventing them from saving money and even meeting their bills on time.

Then he determined that he could easily live within his income and also save money if he could in some way make his money go further. With this idea in mind, Mr. Underwood worked out a plan which enabled him to save $600 each year and still enjoy the pleasures and enjoyment that make life worth living.

This plan which has worked so successfully for my friend has been incorporated in the Ferrin Money Saving Account Book and Budget System, a system that can add anywhere from 10% to 30% to your savings, just as it had for him and for me. For no sooner had I heard my friend's story than I followed his example, and it has worked out just as successfully in my case as it did in his. It really is the same to me as an increase in salary because I can enjoy more pleasure now than I ever did—and I get real joy out of them because I know I can afford them.

The Ferrin Account System

grew from the realization that a simple automatic system of accounting was absolutely essential to success in personal money matters.

This amazingly simple method has been introduced by the Independent Corporation, because the publishers of The Independent (and Harper's Weekly) recognize the nation-wide need of such a device—at this time especially—and because the founding of such a system of money-saving fits closely with the program of efficiency which is being developed by its Efficiency Service and its Division of Business Education.

The Ferrin Money-Saving System is encompassed in a handsome Account Book bound in half Blue Silk Cloth Back—Cadet Blue Cover, paper sides—turned edges semi-flexible—stamped in gold on front cover. It contains 112 pages, size 8¼x10¾ inches. This wonderful aid to money saving, this watch dog of your income and expenditures, will tell you to a penny where the money goes. It will keep actual track of your spending and enable you to plug up the leaks. It will keep you out of debt. It will help to put money in the bank.

Letter from Head of Financial Department of Largest Corporation of Its Kind in the United States.

INDEPENDENT CORPORATION.

Gentlemen:

I consider your account book a remarkable contribution to the people of this country at this time. I refer especially to your discovery of the absolute necessity of the budget idea as applied to personal and household account keeping, and I am amazed that this fundamental and absolutely essential idea has not been employed in a simple form long before this.

In our company we have 5000 employes, and it was a revelation to me in giving them advice regarding the making out of their income tax returns to find how few had any intelligent idea of their income and their living expenses. It was that perhaps more than anything else, that brought home to me the great service that your new budget account book will render to the people who need it most, no matter what their income is.

The simplicity of your plan, which by comparison with previous methods of account keeping, would seem to be well-nigh automatic, appeals to me strongly.

They say you can't teach an old dog new tricks, but I will say to you that I am going to use the Ferrin Book for my own family expenses and consider it will make money for me right from the start.

(Signed) D. S. BURTON.

The Budget System

The Ferrin Money Saving Account Book is the first and only device of its kind.

Incorporated in it is a recapitulation for every month of the year, which shows at a glance the Budget and amounts paid out during the month for the various classified items of expense. It is the only book to our knowledge which has a Budget column for every month.

You simply lay out your budget according to the sample budgets given for incomes of one to five thousand dollars a year. This can be modified easily to suit your special conditions, or we will glady arrange a budget for you, whatever your income.

BUDGETING your income on the simple Ferrin System is the most important factor in money saving, and this is the only book that shows you exactly how to do it. It is more than a book—it is a system and contains compact information on keeping expense accounts; making an inventory of household goods; making safe investments and other financial matters of vital interest to every family.

No Better Time to Start

Today, with almost hourly increases in the prices of food, clothing and every necessity of life, the apportioning of an income calls for the exercise of the utmost intelligence and thoughtfulness. The beginning of the New Year is an excellent time to put the Ferrin System into practice. Start Budgeting your income with the first day of 1919. It will require no resolution to continue.

The Ferrin Money Saving Account Book is a most practical gift to any newly married couple entering upon the business of domestic management, and particularly under present conditions. As Christmas gifts you could offer nothing more essential or more useful and timely than a Ferrin Account Book.

Two Minutes a Day

The Ferrin System takes only about two minutes a day. No knowledge of bookkeeping is required. Any child who can read can keep the accounts. Instead of being a hardship, saving becomes fun. Keeping records the Ferrin way is more enjoyable than a game. And the pleasure lasts forever.

Read the following letter from Mr. Carleton F. Brown, Treasurer and General Manager of the Corona Typewriter Company:

> "I today received the Ferrin Money Saving Account Book, and on showing it to some of my friends they were very much impressed with the idea and requested me to order one for them. I would therefore appreciate it if you would send me five more of these Ferrin Saving Account Books. I am sending you herewith my check for $12.00 to cover the cost of these five, in addition to the one which I have just received."

Also the following from Mr. D. G. Shephard, Publicity Manager of the Fairmont Gas Engine and Railway Motor Car Company:

> "My wife and I have been making entries in the book only a little over one week, and already have discovered many household 'leaks' to an approximate sum of $5.00. We have the Ferrin method to thank for these discoveries."

Examine It Free

So confident are we of the great value of this Ferrin Money Saving Account Book that we will gladly send it to you on approval, without a penny in advance. Keep it five days. See how simple it is. See how much you have missed by not having it before. See how much it will mean to you from the very day you get it. Then if you feel that you can afford not to have it, return it and you will owe nothing.

But if you feel that it means the beginning of a new era of financial independence for you, send only $2, the small sum asked. The Ferrin Money Saving Account Book is an investment and will return its cost many times over every year. The system is good for four years, which makes it cost about 4 cents a month! And you need send no money until you see it and examine it and are satisfied that it will pay you big returns.

Mail the coupon or send a letter now, while the matter is on your mind.

What a change 47 years have wrought! In 1871—as this painting depicts it was France which, through Jules Favre and Louis Thiers, implored Bismarck to have mercy. All-Important Facts About Teeth

All Statements Approved by High Dental Authorities

Here are some facts which everyone should know, for they mark a new dental era:

The source of nearly all tooth troubles is a slimy, clinging film. You feel it with your tongue. The chief object of teeth-cleaning is to get rid of it.

That film is what discolors. It hardens into tartar. It holds food particles which ferment and form acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth—the cause of decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. And many serious diseases are nowadays traced to them.

That film resists the tooth brush. It gets into crevices and stays. The ordinary dentifrice doesn't destroy it. So brushing in the old ways has failed to save the teeth.

Now We Use Pepsin

To meet this condition, science has evolved a dentifrice called Pepsodent. It is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin, to dissolve that albuminous film.

Heretofore it seemed impossible, for pepsin alone is inert. It must be activated, and the usual agent is an acid, harmful to the teeth.

But science has now found a harmless activating method. Five governments have granted patents on it. And many able authorities, for three years, have proved its efficiency by clinical tests.

Now that they have accepted it, we offer it for home tests.

A Test Will Prove

Send the coupon with 10 cents for a special trial tube. Use it like any tooth paste, then watch the results. Note how clean your teeth feel. Note the absence of the film. Note how teeth whiten as the fixed film disappears. This test will be a revelation to you.

FREEZE-PROOF
JOHNSON'S FREEZE-PROOF
Prevents Frozen Radiators

Radiator Trouble and Worry is a Thing of the Past

Don't let it interfere with your business or mar your pleasure. Use Johnson's Freeze-Proof, then forget there is such a thing as a frozen radiator. Leave your car uncovered on the coldest day—leave it at night in an unheated garage—IT CAN'T FREEZE.

Johnson's Freeze-Proof is the logical anti-freeze preparation to use for automobiles, trucks, tractors, stationary and gas engines, and electro-lighting and heating plants. It is inexpensive—does not evaporate—is non-inflammable—easy to use—and guaranteed.

JOHNSON'S FREEZE-PROOF

does not evaporate, so one application is sufficient for the whole winter. It raises the boiling point 20° to 40°—chances of overheating are reduced correspondingly.

More Dependable Than Alcohol

The present high price of alcohol—its low boiling point—quick evaporation and inflammability—make it impractical.

Purchase your supply of Johnson's Freeze-Proof early from your dealer and read and follow directions carefully. A little time spent now cleaning the radiator and putting on new hose connections will save you unlimited time, trouble, worry and expense during the Winter.

One package of Johnson's Freeze-Proof will protect a Ford to 5° below zero, one and half packages will protect a Ford 30° below zero and two packages to 50° below zero. For larger cars, or to protect to a lower temperature, use additional Freeze-Proof according to the scale on package. Cost $1.50 per package in U. S. A. East of Rockies.
